THE MOST ADVANCED SOFTWARE ENTERTAINMENT EXPERIENCE

Take charge of an entire planet from its birth until its death-10 billions years later. Guide life from its inception as single-celled microbes to a civilization that can reach for the stars. THE LIVING PLANET inspired by James Lovelock's Gaia hypothesis, SimEarth simulates the Earth as a single living organism.

THE THINK TANK

Set in the near future, as an alternative reality, Battle Command is an arcade/strategy game in which the player controls a single "Mauter" Assault Tank in one of 16 scenarios (missions) in the ultra war, fought between two dominant races in the new World. Such are the defensive capabilities of each side, full scale attacks are suicidal, so any offensive moves are, by necessity, small "behind the lines" actions performed by elite troops in specially designed vehicles. The Mauter is the latest such machine - capable of being lifted in and out of hostile territory by fast stealth choppers and armed with the most advanced weaponry the Northern scientists can devise.

GUN LAW

"BILLY THE KID" is a one or two player action/strategy game set in the Wild West, which allows the player to assume the identity of either a gun totting desperado with a heart of gold , Billy himself or his ex-best friend, sharp shooting, law abiding pillar of the community, Sheriff Pat Garrett. # SOFTWARE SHOWDOWN

This map gives you some indication of just how big the finished Rolling Ronny is going to be. But you'll have to wait till September for it.

After surviving the infamous Boardman Vauxhall Cavalier, Les Ellis returned from the recent European Computer Trade Show a nervous wreck and clutching this report

VIRGIN

The Virgin stand collected quite a bit of attention for a few reasons. First, and most definitely least of all, was the fact that Jeremy Beadle was hanging about there. Second point of interest was the huge cutout of the Fat Slags from the Viz comic. Thirdly, and probably the main attraction judging by the faces of the members of the press, there was a woman wearing the most ridiculously short skirt that you could ever dream of.

This is Rolling Ronny, the first game to appear from the Virgin/Starbyte deal.

The latest news from Virgin is of their exclusive deal with German developer Starbyte. The first games to appear from this collaboration will be Rolling Ronny, Sarakon and Warriors of Darkness. Rolling Ronny is a cute, fun, arcade game where the eponymous Ronny has to run about town doing errands for people. The graphics are astounding, with screens packed full of colour and hundreds of little characters. There should be versions for all three 16-bit computers.

Sarakon is to be released on the Leisure Genius label in late May, with a three-format screening. The game is basically another version of Mahjong, which Activision first brought over to the UK under the guise of Shanghai.

The last Starbyte release, Warriors of Darkness, is a long way off yet. However, if Virgin's PR is anything to go by (which it isn't), then the game will be worth waiting for. Apparently, we'll be getting a stunningly illustrated fantasy arcade game.

Also being demoed at the show was 147 3-D Snooker from that cult author Archer Maclean (he of Dropzone and IK+ fame). All kinds of shots are possible in what Virgin

US GOLD

With a dearth of Sega Master System releases (see Sega City on page 14), US Gold were proudly proclaiming that consoles are here to stay. Still, I managed to fight my way past the free sandwiches and coffee to find several 16-bit releases that looked easily as good as anything on the consoles.

US Gold's latest arcade conversion from the Capcom house is Mercs. Playing a hardened soldier, you must use your anti-terrorist training in a top secret operation for the US Government. While visiting a central African country, the US President has been taken hostage by a group of terrorist extremists. So an elite group of mercenaries has been assembled to execute a lightning mission and snatch the President from under his captors' noses. The game has eight levels of pure arcade action and features a simultaneous two-player mode. Out soon on the Amiga and Atari ST for £25.99.

Roleplaying freaks among you will be enthralled to know that US Gold are releasing two new adventures. Might and Magic III is just around the corner for PC owners, and features an evil nemesis called Sheltem who has decided to annihilate the islands which you inhabit. Of course you and a party of friends band together and trek off through the wilderness to give this Sheltem a taste of his own magic.

The second RPG is Planet's Edge: The Point of No Return. Earth has vanished and as one of the last remaining survivors of the human race stuck on a moonbase it is up to you to find out what happened to it. There are over 60 worlds to explore and loads of puzzles to keep you going.

US Gold's next Capcom coin-op tie-in is Mercs, an action-packed blast-'em-up combining all the best elements of the great arcade hits. Here you get to the end of the level one and are confronted by a monstrous piece of military hardware. Guns of the ready...

Release within three months.

US Gold were also plugging their new deal with Millennium (producers of James Pond and Moonshine Racers), with details of Stormball and Tentacle for early summer. Looking further ahead, US Gold hope to release the Millennium games Strike Command, Shinto's Revenge, Robin Hood, Cybernetics and RoboCod.

Before leaving the stand, I did sneak a look at an interesting AD&D game. Shadow Sorcerer is being promoted as a new concept in RPGs. The version I saw was a lot easier to control than most of the other games of the genre, using a Populous isometric viewpoint to control your party. The game is still very much work in progress, but with all accounts it's one to keep and eye on.

★ Pygnosis have some new releases for the autumn. Agony on the Amiga is a multi-level, magical, slashing game for £25.99. Also at that price, on the Amiga and ST, is Barbarian II (without Maria Whitaker) which features 2000 frames of animation, six levels, 50 different enemies and numerous attractive backdrops.

★ Arc, remember them, are releasing loads of stuff in the not too distant future. Brute, which is set in the future, is a fast moving action game where you must defeat the dark lords and protect the holy ones. Amiga and Atari ST versions soon.

★ Anyone remember Encounter, the fast-moving 3-D shoot-'em-up that wowed Atari 8-bit and C64 owners of yester-year? Well, Paul Woakes has dug up the old classic and given it a new lease of life on the Amiga and Atari ST. For such an old game and concept, it's a bit pricey at £20.42.

★ Gremlin have taken the best even further. Lotus Esprit Turbo Challenge was heralded as one of the best driving games ever. In October, on the Amiga, ST and PC, Turbo Challenge II will be released. Also across the 16-bit formats in November comes Space Crusade, programmed by the creators of Hero Quest.

★ French software company, Infogrames have a new batch of releases coming up. Billiards Simulator II features American and French rules plus a billiard player's nightmare, an eight-sided table! You can either learn the rudiments of the game in practice mode or play against another opponent with the two-player option. Out now for £24.99 on Amiga and Atari ST.

★ Elite have been having a quiet time of it recently, but on June 26 they release the 16-bit versions of the Sega coin-op Last Battle. The prices are £25.53 for the Amiga and PC versions and £20.42 for the ST version. Also, the footy game European Championship 1992 will be out in autumn 1991(!), converted from the Tecmo coin-op World Cup 90(!).

Legend is Mirrorsoft's follow-up to the tremendously successful Bloodwych.

MIRRORSOFT

The least you would have expected here is a nice cup of Maxwell House, but Diet Coke awaits the thirsty visitor at the Mirrorsoft stand. Waiting to make its way onto a journalist's coffee-stained notepad here is news of another Turtles game. Turtles II will be based on the successful Konami four-player arcade machine. Probe, the people who recently did Viz, have landed the unenviable job of squeezing this mammoth game into the 16-bits. They promise that Turtles II

Looks juicy, doesn't it. First Samurai features revenge, death, destruction and no Bart Simpson. Great potential, but will it fulfil it when First Samurai makes a public appearance this summer?

be infinitely better than the original computer game (not too difficult).

Also in the Mirrorsoft stable waiting to bolt is a new 3-D strategy roleplaying game called Drop Soldier. However, Mirrorsoft are keeping the reigns on the Amiga, Atari ST and IBM PC versions till winter 1991.

Other games worth a mention are Duster, a 3-D action and strategy futuristic farming game (I kid you not), and Fire and Ice (without Torville and Dean), an arcade run 'n' jump game featuring a large dog who has to guide his litter around a maze.

Legend (no tie-in with the film or the software house), from the makers of Bloodwych, uses both 2-D and 3-D in a world where happiness and joy are things of the past. Legend will be out at the end of the year on Amiga and PC. Another evil demon-fighting game, First Samurai, will be out a little sooner in autumn for all three 16-bitters.

On the Cinemaware label, TV Sports Baseball will be out in the summer for the Amiga and IBM PC at £29.99. Following that is the ultimate Battle of the Sixes game, Rollerbabes, a mixture of roller derby, hockey, wrestling, boxing, skateboarding and mud-wrestling.

Now - where was that Diet Coke?

coin-op. The game promises full 3-D graphics and stunning sound FX, and should be out in May for Amiga and ST.

A similarly impressive coin-op is Thunder Jaws, centred around a mechanical shark. As with most It's as a courier never used to be like this. In the olden days, you could quite happily zip in and out of the traffic on your 50cc. Nowadays, the only way to get about is on water, and you constantly risk attack from helicopters and the like. Try your luck in Domark's Hydra, a conversion of the cracking coin-op.

Tengen games, there's a simultaneous two-player mode to double the fun. Amiga and Atari ST versions in June for £24.99.

Further into the future, Domark were prepared to reveal plans of Pit Fighter for October, Race Drivin' in November and Ramparts for release in January 1992.

Steermikkel! Yet another baseball game makes its way onto computer. However, Domark's RBI Baseball is a bit different from the norm because it features some great behind the scenes screens to liven up the gameplay.

DOMARK

Ahh, the Domark stand and the first proper cup of coffee of the day, soon to be followed by some hot news. Now it seems that Domark are getting into consoles too. The rapidly expanding company were pleased to announce news of Prince of Persia and Super Space Invaders on the Master System. The launches in September and November respectively will coincide with the computer versions, also to be handled by Domark.

RBI (Runs Batted In) Baseball is coming out at the end of May on Amiga, Atari ST and IBM PC at £29.99. It will feature all the excitement of a real baseball match with some extras to add to the fun.

Nintendo owners will also have a version, although Domark haven't given anything to do with that.

More conversions from Tengen are lined up, the most impressive being Hydra, based on the three-month-old

FLIGHT SIM IN ACTION SCANDAL!

Les Ellis investigates

Bandit on your six. Better make some quick movements or Chuck Yeager ain't gonna be the only Charlie around here.

Old Chuck Yeager has been around a bit. In fact almost as long as that other chubby chappy, Arnold Palmer. But whereas Arnold likes to take things at a slow, leisurely pace, Chuck is a man with a need for speed.

Chuck Yeager has already appeared in his own computer sim, Chuck Yeager's Advanced Flight Trainer, but the release of Chuck Yeager's Air Combat on the PC heralds a new age in flight sims. Air Combat still contains all of other flight sims, but it also has more than its fair share of action-orientated content.

The reason for this explosive concoction of game styles is that the programmer, Brent Iverson (LHX Attack Chopper), collaborated with the great man himself to bring his excitement and enthusiasm onto the screen for all to experience.

There are over 50 missions included, taking place in WWII, Korea and Vietnam. The range of aircraft is also immense, both on the allied and enemy sides. The game is packed with dogfights, which take up most of your flight time. And beginners needn't feel daunted for there are options which give you invincibility, infinite ammo and easy landings.

Visually, the game goes totally over the top. There are 20 different external views with full use of the 256-colour VGA graphics. The 3-D creation routines run at a stunning rate, making the game a pleasure to play, rather than a chore. There's even a full-function VCR to replay those classic dogfights.

Chuck Yeager's Air Combat will be released from Electronic Arts on the IBM PC at the end of June for £29.99. The Amiga version should follow later in the autumn.

can be done in Birds of Prey.

There are 12 different types of combat mission to complete in any of the 40 planes. The game is also totally true to real life. For instance, say you blow up an enemy runway, you can watch the enemy repairing the runway and then observe the enemy hangar opening up to allow an aircraft to roll out and take off.

With fast 3-D graphic routines and stunningly realistic sound, Birds of Prey takes simulations to a new height of perfection. The 1Mb Amiga version will be out in July (hopefully) priced at £29.99, with the Atari ST and IBM PC versions following later in the year.

The infamous F-117 Stealth Fighter: one of the most expensive aircraft ever made, invisible to radar, it goes in, does the job and gets out before the enemy know what's hit them. Note the missiles slung underneath, these act exactly as the real things. If the same applies to the aircraft you can find out why this plane is nicknamed the 'Wobbling' Goblin.

GAME ALMOST FINISHED SCANDAL!

Electronic Arts' Birds of Prey has been called quite a few things in its time. The huge project started out as F-117A Aggressor and was planned for release in 1989. As the release date grew nearer and the game got larger, it was obvious that F-117A Aggressor wouldn't make it out in time. Still, Argonaut, its designers and programmers, aren't ones to admit the fact that it was late, so they changed the name to Hawk and pretended it was a whole new game. Yet again the release date in 1990 flew by, so they changed the name to what we now know it as, Birds of Prey. But whatever

Now isn't that just typical! You leave your jeep with a parking attendant at Heathrow who not only parks it next to a runway, he also ricks the wheels! Let's just hope that this cargo drop from the Hercules contains a few spare ones that fit your axles.

er you call it, this is one massive game. The reason - excuse - for this time delay, has been due to the programmer's insistence on making the game better than anything else on the market. Indeed, Electronic Arts, who have funded this project for almost four years, claim that anything that can be done in real life

* Just released from System 3, the home of Last Ninja, is Myth, an arcade action adventure through four massive levels. There are loads of puzzles and even more enemies to overcome. If it reaches the same success as it had on the C64, then we 16-biters could be in for a treat. Amiga and Atari ST versions soon for £25.99.

* On Line Software, no relation to Sierra, have released Battle Bound on the Amiga and Atari ST. The CD specialists hope this disk-based, magical arcade beat-em-up will whet our appetites for when they get to work proper on the CD-TV. Just £24.99 will make you whet.

* Ocean have signed up the suicidal Psygnosis game Lemmings for release on the NES and Game Boy. They are hoping to get it out for Christmas, although red tape may mean it could be 1992 before we see it. Ocean also have a couple of film licences for the NES. Hudson Hawk, licensed from the Bruce Willis film, should be out for Christmas, while the conversion of Spielberg's Peter Pan film Hook is scheduled for Easter 1992.

* Activision are back in action. July releases on Amiga, ST and PC include R-Type II and Beast Busters, both from great co-ops. These are to be followed by Amiga and ST versions of Deuterosand, a PC version of F-14 Tomcat, Hunter on Amiga and ST, and Ghostbusters II and Rad Gravity on the Game Boy.

* For those Nintendo owners who earn £100,000 a year and drive a Ferrari Testarossa, Mindscape have come up with the Miracle Piano Tutor, retailing at £249.99. This four-octave keyboard plugs straight into your NES and, with the Miracle Piano Teaching System cartridge, you can create magnificent sounds in the comfort of your own home. # BIG IN

"Rimujiin noriba wa desu ka?" were the words uttered in a slow slurred saki-induced manner by our man on the Japanese streets, Shintaro Kanaoya. Having uncovered Sega's dastardly plot to paint the Game Gear white, been witness to the first PC Engine game to feature a combination ROM/RAM cartridge, and walked off with the blue print for the Super Famicom TV, he was in need of silencing. Well, he managed to shake off his pursuers, and here's his story...

Minisarna yokoso. Have I got a treat for you this month! Big in Japan is a whopping three pages. Two pages dedicated to the usual comprehensive collection of explosive previews, exclusive hardware news, and general fact-packed information regarding the software scene in Japan. And a further page crammed with the very latest tricks, tactics and underhand dodges for all the top consoles. Whichever way you look at it, you're a winner if you read Big in Japan.

Let's start this month with the Super Famicom. Super R-Type is the game to look out for. Released in July, it will demolish all other shoot-'em-ups. For those of you with good memories, R-Type caused a stir when it came out on the PC Engine a few years ago. Indeed, it is a very good game. However, Super R-Type will make it pale into a very pale thing indeed. For a start, it features a completely new scenario. Impressive

Super R-Type on the Super Famicom features a shotgun laser which acts like a shotgun in that the shots disperse and almost form a shield of bullets around you.

3-D backgrounds, four different skill levels, auto fire as standard if desired, new weapons - the works!

All the elements of the original are to be found in Super R-Type. However, the aliens are weaker, their weapons bigger and wackier, and the action faster and more frantic. What more could you ask for? Try Dungeon Master in September... This maze and monsters mash-'em-up is close to the numerous other versions, although it's rumoured to have a different dungeon. More sleepless nights...

How about this for a neat idea! The Super Famicom TV lets you plug in any Famicom game into the cartridge slot on top of the monitor while the controllers plug into sockets on the front panel. And when you've had enough of Final Fight, you can watch the TV.

A game that was a huge success on the more serious (which some might unkindly but quite correctly call more boring) computers makes its way onto the Famicom this Summer. The game: Lagoon.

Sim City's out now. Nothing much has changed from the other computer and console versions. However, there's now a character called Doctor Light who's got green hair and glasses, and offers advice (in Japanese). Old Doctor Light lets you build things called Surprises for $100. You get something beneficial at the end of it, but as its title suggests it's always a surprise. There are eight things it could be:

- The mayor's house which doubles surrounding land values.
- Fun fair which gives you $200

- income.
- A zoo which gives you $100 income.
- A station which also provides you with $100 and raised land values.
- Bank, from where you can borrow $300. It will also encourage people to live in the vicinity.
- Casino, $500 income.
- Large police station which has the effect of one and a half police sta-

The attention to detail in the Mega Drive version of Bonanza Brothers is fantastic and will cause a few very smiles. Try stepping on a broom for example (just think back to all those cartoons in which that happened) or even a coke can.

By the way, anyone who asks the advice of the caddy in Hole In One and is dismayed by the fact that it's all in Japanese, don't be. It says things like "Hit the ball straight and it'll go in" and "Watch out for the wind". In other words, the caddy is completely useless.

Looking ahead there's something called Hyper Zone. It's dubbed an arcade game of the future, but is really a race game like F-Zero. The difference being that you're in the air rather than on the ground.

cent of the classic Zaxxon shoot-'em-up and really does look very impressive with its solid isometric 3-D. Arcs is another of the ever popular breed of action RPGs like Lagoon, Dungeon Master and Drakkhen. There are four characters to choose from; two men and two women. I've mentioned it before, but the fantastic Bonanza Brothers is just around the corner. Word is, it has a two-player simultaneous mode so there's no reason for it not to be as addictive as the arcade version.

- Windmill, $100 income.
- Incidentally, the monster in the Tokyo scenario is rumoured to be Mario. Attack of the Fat Italians? A 'B' movie in the making.
- Finally, on the Sim subject, Sim Earth is due to make an appearance

For those of you with Japanese Mega Drive, you can now buy an adaptor that enables you to play American Sega Master System games. What's the point... Much more useful is the soon-to-be-released adaptor that lets you play Master System games on the Game Gear. Of course, this device hasn't been given Sega's blessing around September time.

Another non-Japanese game is Drakkhen. Released a week after my birthday (which is May 17th, so please send cards and presents to Shintaro Kanaoya c/o RAZE...), it will be almost identical to the other versions.

SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN GGs

The Game Gear has been re-released in Japan! You can now buy it in dazzling white complete with a white carrying case and a TV Tuner, all this for £140. Ho hum.

LESS FAT TOO

Mega Drive time. Marvel Land is repulsively cute and colourful. It's a jolly arcade adventure with clever puzzles and so on, but is disgustingly cute.

Far better for your street cred is Alien Storm. Sickly-looking pink aliens with demon heads get blasted by a scantily-clad woman carrying a laser bazooka. All this plus a 3-D shooting scene in a supermarket.

More killer mayhem (this time with a supernatural twist) can be found in Arcs Odyssey. The game's a two-player simultaneous action RPG where the screen scrolls diagonally most of the time. It's all very reminis-

Arcs Odyssey on the Mega Drive is an arcade action RPG, one of the new breed games in which the emphasis is on action rather than boring still screens. Much of the game is played on a diagonally-scrolling background.

Very briefly, the GG Shinobi is unsurprisingly the Game Gear version of Shinobi. It's the same game as before but on a smaller machine. To come are the classic Magpy and the politically insensitive, Good Luck Gorbys. The point in Gorbys is to get resources and food to the people that need them. I don't know that such a serious issue should be treated in a fun manner, but I guess it just shows how popular MKH&S is to all but the Soviets.

TOOT IF YOU DID IT

Onto the PC Engine. The two that have attracted attention this month are Cobra II on CD-ROM, the sequel to the adventure game in which no matter how hard you tried you couldn't die, and Populous.

Cobra II is set for release in June. While the graphics look great, I'm still sceptical about the playability. There are 3000 graphical screens, but that alone doesn't make a game. I've a feeling that it is just a retelling of one of the early Cobra comics (which it is based on) and not an interactive game.

The only significantly different thing about the PC Engine Populous is that it is the first game to have to use a combination ROM and RAM card. Because of the amount of information Populous has to cope with, it couldn't all be dealt with in the PC Engine's small RAM size. Subsequently, more RAM was added on the actual card which makes it look slightly bulkier, but is definitely eye catching. Other than that, no change. After all, would you put a flower in Mona Lisa's hair. No, which goes to show you can't improve on a masterpiece.

Speaking of masterpieces, two Tetris clones are coming soon: Columns and H&tris.

A fond farewell until next month. But just before you go, flip over the page for a huge collection of hints and tips for the very latest Japanese console releases. Abayo.

If you haven't noticed yet, RAZE has gone absolutely tips crazy this issue... so too, it seems, has Shintaro Kanaoya. In an astonishing fit of generosity, our man in Japan has unplugged himself from the saki drip and come up with a superb collection of tricks and tactics for a wealth of Japanese console games. And he's also full of Eastern promise; "these are the biggest, the best, the latest, and the most exclusive tips you'll find." Er, thank you Shintaro. Remember; RAZE leads, others follow.

PARASOL STARS

PC Engine

Fancy 99 credits? A lot of luck is needed to get this most desirable present. Get the rainbow-coloured necklace when one appears (be warned, this is hugely rare). Next get the three stars. Now all you have to do is defeat the end-of-level boss and collect a large coin. Normally this coin would ¥500, but by following this procedure it will be a ¥100,000 coin. Proceed to the next level and you'll have 99 credits.

PARASOL STARS

SEGA CITY

By Julian Boardman

Tips attack month, but still a bit of room for all your normal faves

Bit of a tips frenzy this month folks, but first of all some news about upcoming releases and work in progress for the Mega Drive and Master System.

Electronic Arts are going a bit mad with two conversions from Amiga and PC onto the Mega Drive. King's Bounty and Centurion will be familiar to anyone who owns a PC and head up EA's effort to become one of the leading names in roleplaying and strategy for the Mega Drive. There is a huge gap out there for such games, particularly ones that don't follow the Phantasy Star menu-driven (and very limited) style of gameplay.

King's Bounty sets you up as a bounty hunter under the employ of the head of the land. You get to wander about recruiting an army to take you into battle, collect clues and generally play detective to find the criminals that you have picked up the contract for.

Centurion places you at the head of a legion and it is up to you to help build up the Roman empire and your career with the ultimate aim of knocking off Cleopatra. You have to organize games, collect taxes and mastermind military campaigns to become successful.

Coming soon is another puzzle game that looks set to become a bit of a cult. It is called Block-Out and is played in a Welltris like pit. The difference is that instead of being flat shapes, they are 3-D blocks. The object is to make a solid level so that it disappears and you therefore don't get anywhere near the top and into the game over area. It's basically a variation on a well-worked theme but that said, it is VERY addictive.

Domark are also dipping their toes into the Sega pond with two planned conversions for the Master System. First up is the highly-acclaimed

GOT PILES?

Have you got problems with what to do with those piles of cartridges that manage to fill up the living room every time you get your Mega Drive out to play? Does your mother go skitz when she spills your dad's tea on the cat from tripping over that "difficult" pile of carts? Have you nearly gone head first into the telly as you skillfully tried to leap over the mound of abandoned cases scattered across the carpet? If so, then do not fear. Lift, "the world's leading innovator" of home storage systems, has launched Playkit. It provides storage for up to nine carts and can be stacked or clipped together to make that "interesting" modern art display on the shelf. Playkit is available direct from Lift on (0296) 615151 at just £8.99.

Prince of Persia that looked so good on the Amiga and PC with its realistic human animation. They're hoping to get it finished for September, although it could hold over to Christmas.

Following that in November will be Super Space Invaders, a direct conversion of the top-selling Taito coin-op. It brings the old idea up to date with power-ups and so on, but keeps the original's addictive qualities. It is hoped that there will be a simultaneous launch with the other computer versions which Domark are also working on. All this work in being done by The Kremlin, in Surrey. Domark's own out-of-house developers.

Rumours that the Game Gear is just a portable Master System may not be a load of old cobblers after all. Thanks to American chappies Direct Distributors Inc you can now buy an adaptor that allows you to plug those MS carts into the Game Gear and play Alex Kidd to your heart's content. You plug your cart into this thing and then plug the whole caboodle into the cartridge port on the Game Gear. It works like the Powerbase converter on the Mega Drive, and is available for around £30. Contact Stephen Schofield at 1491 Boston Post Road, Old Saybrook, CT 06475 USA. Or you could go for Harry Ruppenicker at Goltsee 157 Koeln, 5000 Koeln 41 Germany.

SONIC'S ACE

Sonic the Hedgehog is ace - and that's official! I managed to get a sneak preview at a trade show last month, and it is truly superb. Excellent graphics that rank up there with Mickey Mouse and gameplay that is even better. All I can reveal now is that it is the way Sonic moves that provides most of the entertainment and brings a whole new dimension to the world of arcade adventures. Look out for full review next issue.

narly

In celebration of RAZE's tiptopic issue, here come two pages packed with cheats, hints, tips and solutions

SUPER MARIO WORLD

Super Famicom

There are more secret rooms than real ones in this fabulous Mario game. Jason Clotworthy from Peckham reveals a few of them. In the second stage of world two (the underground cavern), jump into the second green tube (above you), dodge the American footballer and get the empty shell. Now take the shell back to the four yellow blocks and kick it up to the highest block. You will now reveal a vine which you should climb to collect a key. Take this to the keyhole. Now you can enter the stage on the left of the start map and turn the empty green boxes into full ones. After doing that, go back to stage one of world two where a surprise secret stage awaits you. Later on in world two there's a warp to world seven, although Jason won't tell how to get there - yet...

To get nine lives, start the game with two players. When on the map screen, press the LEFT or RIGHT button depending on if you want to transfer the lives from Mario to Luigi or vice-versa

MEGA MAN 2

NES

Uh, oh, complaints time. Tom Harrison-Read from Harrow writes in to say that the previous Mega Man 2 code I printed in issue 4 didn't work. (Whoops!) But being such a great, super, terrific chap, Tom gives us the real McCoy and a few juicy tips.

A1 B2 B4 C1 C5

D1 D3 E3 E5

To kill Dr Wily when he has mutated to the green android, you must use bubbles and dodge the bullets. When he's low, jump above him and fire.

SUPER MARIO LAND

Game Boy

Not-so-simple Simon James from Telford sent loads of tips (and paper-dips!). The first is for this easy Game Boy Mario extravaganza. But it's not so easy now as Simon has found a new, harder game. When you have completed the game, wait till THE END appears on the screen. Press START and Mario's head should appear instead of the mushroom. Now try to complete the game in this more difficult mode. When you get back to the title screen, you should have a level select which is operated by A or B.

CASTLEVANIA

NES

Want to know how to get past the end of level nasties? Simon James has the answers.

Level 1 (The Bat) - Use the axe.

Level 2 (Medusa) - The firebombs drain her energy the best.

Level 3 (Mummy Man) - Use the firebombs to kill one at a time.

Level 4 (Frankenstein & Igor) - Use axes to hit Igor then Frankie or attack Igor with the whip and while he's stunned get Frankie with the firebombs.

Level 5 (Grim Reaper) - Get rid of all his rings then attack with the boomerangs.

Level 6 (Count Dracula) - Jump over his shots and whip him in the head till he's dead. When he turns into a bat, throw firebombs at him and whip him in the head while he's stunned, but watch out for his jumps.

Also, when you get to the demon bat, smash one of the blocks in the room to find the double shot.

FAXANADU

NES

Steve also helps out on this latest game to slomp into the UK charts. Visit the being in the first town who will give you 1500 gold pieces. Go off and spend it on useful things like weapons etc then go back to the being and continue getting money.

BIONIC COMMANDO

NES

If you're hassled by a particularly annoying level, Steven Renny from Seghill in Northumberland reveals how to start again with full energy. Press A, B and START at the same time.

GREMLINS 2 NES

Goodness me, who is this little tipster I see before me? Why, it is none other than Luke "Dumbo" Fenech from Battersea, the phantom elephant joker who's been supplying us with page bottoms for the past two issues. Sorry for spelling your name wrong in last month's masthead on the comments pages, but here's a Rescue: The Embassy Mission cart for your trouble. More jokes could receive similar rewards...

PS: How does an elephant get down from a tree? Sits on a leaf and waits til autumn!

TIPS, TIPS, TIPS

You, fellow dudes and dudettes. If you've got a tricky tip or cheeky cheat on any NES, Game Boy or Super Famicom game, then why not send it in. You never know, you could be like Luke Fenech of Battersea, this month's winner of a free cart. Also, why not send in a picture of yourself (even drawings will do) to accompany your tips. The funniest will be printed every month. Write to Harly Nintendo, RAZE, Unit 3, 7 Back Street, Trowbridge, Wiltshire BA14 8LX. Ciao!

CONTRA NES

TEENAGE MUTANT HERO TURTLES

NES

You, ninja dudes. As the second Turtles movie, Secret of Ooze, sweeps through the cinemas in America, I can bring you a complete playing guide to the original version. Yep, thanks to Andrew Gorman of Pymarth in South Wales, everyone can slice and dice Shredder and still get home in time for a 12-inch ham and pineapple (hold the anchovies!).

STAGE 1

Go left past the first hole, dodging the tractor, and on into the third hole. Kill everything and go to the first animal. Now change to Donatello. Jump right over the animal and hit him from behind till he dies. Now go up, but not into the first building or hole, but into the second hole. Get pizza and repeat till you've got full energy. Go left, kill everything, and onto the first ledge. Let the frogman go by till you can down-hit him through the boxes. Kill the man with boomerangs and go left up the ledge. Continue left along the floor, jump over the animal, land and then hit him. Repeat until he dies.

Keep with Donatello. Go into the door on the bridge. Go right, up the ladder, and right till you reach the furthest ladder which you should climb. Go left, kill everything, continue left to the furthest ladder up on the ledge. Climb it and go right and kill everything and collect the pizza. Go up the ladder and walk left till you get to the furthest ladder and climb it. Now change to Michaelangelo (my favourite pizza muncher).

Go right and defuse the first bomb. Continue right and defuse the second bomb. Now go left, up the gap and defuse the third bomb. Go right, dodge pizza cutter, and defuse fourth bomb. Go right to defuse the fifth bomb. Go left, up gap, dodge pink leaves and change to Raphael. Now go right

STAGE 4

Enter the truck, go left, then up and left. Enter building and go right till you reach a ladder which must be climbed. Now go right, then up through the gap (by jumping as high as you can and pressing FIRE). Collect the rocks and go right and give the pizza to the turtle with the lowest energy. Drop down the hole, go left and open the door. Go in the Turtle's truck and left till the end of the road. Now go down and shoot the other vehicle. Shoot the barrier with the rocket and go right to blow up the other wagon. Continue right to shoot another barrier, and go down where another truck must be blown up. Now go left up the ladder and right up the other ladder. Walk left till you meet another ladder, go up it and right up the ladder. Walk left and jump over the ledge, go down ladder, collect scrolls, down ladder, right and down ladder. Collect the man in a square and go over the blocks. Jump over the next block, jump then go left and fall into water. Repeat this and get 60 scrolls for each turtle. Now pop back into the Ninjabot, er, Heromobile and go left then down to shoot another wagon. Shoot the barrier and go right till you can shoot another barrier. Now shoot the wagon, go down then right and shoot the wagon. Shoot the barrier and go over the bridge, shoot next the barrier, go over the bridge. Go left, down and over the bridge.

Now go left, then up, left, up, left and shoot the barrier. Left, up, left over the bridge. Left, down, right and into the building. Jump onto ledge, right, down ladder, left, drop off ledge onto other ledge and all the way right till you come to the ledge with the robot on it. Kill the robot and go right up the ladder and collect the pizza. Enter the building and go right, then up ladder, go right then back up the same ladder.

Enter the building and go right up the ladder. Get the pizza and go down the ladder, then right, and up the furthest ladder on the right. Go left, jump onto the ledge and up the ladder. Jump over the ledge and walk right. Stop in front of the metal object and get the pizza on the far left. Go down ladder, walk left, go down ladder, right, down then jump up. Go right then jump down and continue left through the door. Left, then up through the hole. Continue through the holes till you get to number 18.

STAGE 6

If your energy is full and your weapons up to scratch, go straight down till the screen stops moving. Go in the hole, down the ladder and walk left. Climb down the ladder, and down the next, right, down ladder, right and into the door.

STAGE 7

Walk right then down the ladder, left, down, left, down. Go right and collect pizza, go left up and ladder. Walk right and use the scroll from now on. Jump up, go left, through the door and left. Do not drop down the large or small holes. Walk right a bit more and drop down the other small hole. Go right and drop down hole. Left, over hole, down ladder and collect pizza. Go up ladder, right, down hole, left, down hole, right and dodge the laser beams. Pick up the invincibility. Go down the hole and left through the door. Right and dodge the laser beams. Go up ladder, walk left, turn turtle around and shoot with the scrolls at the man with the laser. Go left through the door and onto the ledge on the far right. Unfortunately that's where Andrew's tip ran out, so if you can get any further sent in your Turtles hints to the normal address.

A FINAL TIP comes from both Paul Bush and John Porterfield who reveal how to share your boomerangs around. Select boomerangs and throw a few. Now before they come back switch turtles and when the boomerangs return, the new turtle will have boomerangs too.

Atari Lynx

Where else do get a fact-packed column dedicated to the Atari Lynx and crammed with exclusive previews like Strider II and Viking Child, sizzling scoop reviews like Block Out, mini competitions to win fantastic Lynx memorabilia, tips and tricks for all the big Lynx games, and much, much more? No where! So stick right here and prepare to be dazzled!

STRIDER II

US Gold/Atari

●ETBA ●Lynx

Back in RAZE 3 we reviewed US Gold's Strider II for the Atari ST and Commodore Amiga. The good news is that a Lynx version is being developed as you read this by US Gold. Whether the game is released under US Gold's banner remains to be seen. Atari certainly want the game, so it could well appear sporting an Atari badge rather than US Gold's. But that's a minor detail.

The original Strider appeared around two years ago on coin-op and computer simultaneously. It was a huge success. The follow-up on the Lynx looks set to cause an equally large stir.

Jumping 100 years into the future – for that is where Strider II is set – you enter the far off world of Magenta. The female world leader has been kidnapped by louts and taken to a secret location. You are the one delegated to get her back. With your athletic frame you can perform spinning jumps, sliding tackles and climb up ropes while swinging at enemy attackers. Then there's your sword and gyro gun...

There are five levels to travel through. Each becomes progressively tougher. You start your day with a quiet country stroll through the forest where you'll find a menacing menagerie of monsters and mutants. From there you enter the two towers which form part of the planet's outer defences. Level three takes you deep into underground caverns while level four finds you in the planet's generating station. The final stage takes place aboard the kidnappers' space craft.

Without doubt Strider II is an important and exciting release for the Lynx. Don't even ask about release or price dates. The game is claimed to be around 50% complete. Given the generally longer development times necessary for cartridge-based software, you could be seeing Strider II in the shops around September.

Scenes from the first forest section of Strider II on the Lynx. You've only just started your mission which stretches over five levels. Your aim: rescue the kidnapped leader.

VIKING CHILD

Imagitec/Atari

●ETBA ●Lynx

At long last the rush of UK Lynx developers is happening. Already telegames, Paygnosis and US Gold have demonstrated their commitment to the machine. Imagitec is responsible for the Nightbreed RPG, Fat Rats and the Viking Trilogy – are the latest UK development house to switch on to the Lynx.

Prophecy 1 – The Viking Child is Imagitec's first stab at a Lynx game, but according to the firm's Martin Hooley 'there are many other projects under way.'

The story goes thus. From the barbaric Vikings comes Brian, the prophecy child. And it is in his steps that you tread. All is peace and tranquility until one day a gale force wind blows through your pathetic town sweeping all the inhabitants but you away. While hunting through the rubble of a once proud town, you bump into Odin who informs you that his evil son, Lord Loki, was responsible for the destruction and demise of the townsfolk. But all is not lost as the people of your town have not been killed; simply imprisoned within the great halls of Valhalla.

Having been informed that it's your destiny to seek out and save your people, you pack all you need for a raping and pillaging orgy and set out on your quest.

You must travel through 16 areas of the Viking land and defeat Loki's many dark followers.

The Viking Child is a hack, slay and search platform and levels romp around a scrolling landscape. The game is due for release in the next few months and will be given the full authoritative RAZE coverage when it appears in its finished form. The 16-bit version of the game was met with great enthusiasm by reviewer Les Ellis in RAZE 2, and by all accounts the Lynx version will be equally as impressive.

Strider jumps for joy at the thought of appearing on the Atari Lynx.

DESIGNER LYNX T-SHIRTS UP FOR GRABS

Here's your chance to sport the latest in designer Lynx wear courtesy of Atari. The Lynx logo and a chap from the California Games surfing section tastefully adorn these sought after collectors' items.

To enter the competition simply match the characters printed below to the games you think they come from. The characters appear in the games

- A  Strider II, Block Out and Viking Child. It's up to you to decide which character comes from which game. If you think character A comes from Strider II, write Strider II as your answer to question A. Continue this procedure until you've got answers for all three characters. Send your completed entry on a postcard or stuck down envelope to Atari T-Shirt Competition, RAZE, The Words Works, Unit 3, 7 Back Street, Trowbridge, Wiltshire, BA14 8LH. The first six correct entries out of the box win, although bribes will be taken into consideration. Please state T-shirt size (small or medium). All entries must be in by June 24th.

BLOCK OUT

Atari • £29.99 • Lynx

You know the type. Looks dead easy. Is easy, in fact. But drives you absolutely insane with its mind-bending frustrating play. Tetris, Columns, Pipemania and countless other games fall into this bracket.

Pick up Block Out and you won't put it down again - the adjustment.

The objects can be rotated in any of the three dimensions - X, Y, and Z. When you're happy with the lie of the object you can drop it down the well where it will hopefully interface perfectly with the other objects already at the base of the well.

In Block Out the well is sectioned. If objects completely cover a section, all the objects in that section will disappear. Your aim is

Block Out by California

Dreams is similar to Wells in that you must drop irregularly shaped objects into a pit and try to fit them together. The idea is simply to fit the shapes together in the best possible way without making it impossible to fit any further blocks.

0 000000
0000289
0000055
0000289
0000000
5x5x12

game is really that addictive.

You're faced with an overhead view of a deep well into which you must drop irregularly shaped objects. Certainly sounds easy enough. However, things are complicated by the fact that the objects don't normally fit together properly without some form of

to continue filling up sections with the shapes and try not to approach the surface of the well. Reaching the surface means game over.

Block Out is horribly playable, and is made even more addictive by being completely customisable. For instance, there are three main levels: Flat Fun, 3-D Mania, Out of Control. You can also choose the size of shapes: flat, basic and extended. Then there's rotation: fast, medium, slow. Finally, you can choose the depth of the pit from between three and 12 sections deep.

LYNX HACK SHACK

As ever the Lynx Hack Shack is bursting. You can fill it out further by sending your game busting solutions to Atari Attack, Unit 3, 7 Back Street, Trowbridge, Wiltshire, BA14 8LH. A Lynx cart to the best tip sent in.

The guest appearances by Robin Hogg and Mark Caswell in RAZE 7 caused an incredible response - none favourable:

As that Welsh dork Robin Hogg could not bring himself to tell all the readers how to do an unreal in California Games, I will inform them how...

Paul Dodd, West Midlands

I could stuff that Robin Reliant geezer on surfing any day...

Jon Fieldhouse, Kent

Oh my God! What the hell was Mark "corkhead" Caswell thinkin' when he sent in his supposed Lynx tips? If we wanna know how to play the goddamn game, we can read the flippin' instructions! We don't need some prat writin' in an tellin' us nothing that isn't already in the manual.

Aidan Hunt, Suffolk

After reading the crap Xenophobe cheats by Mark Caswell, who is obviously Gorky, I think he has only got as far as the fifth space station because his cheats are about as useful as a ZX81...

Sammy McFadden, Bath

ROADBLASTERS

According to Sammy McFadden of Bath you shouldn't use a nitro immediately on collection. Instead save it until you get to the finish. Just before you reach the chequered road, hit the nitro for an interesting effect.

ELECTRO COP

In RAZE 6 we printed a solution detailing doors, how to open them and what they would reveal. On level 7, door 1, the code printed was 6012 when it should have been 6021, points out Graham Inwood of Berkshire.

XENOPHOBE

First, says Sammy McFadden of Bath, know what the numbers at the top right of the screen mean.

These are vital for completing the game and knowing where important features are. The left-most number refers to the space station, the next tells you which floor you're on while the last digit informs you of the room number you're in. The room number is the most important - there are eight rooms to each floor. You are always transported to room 1. If there is a lift it will be in room 3. If there is a self destruct it will be in one of the following:

4	4	5
6	2	5
8	5	1
10	1	4
11	4	5
13	2	5
15	5	1
17	1	4
18	4	5
20	2	5
22	5	1

Following are a few (useful) tips for getting by in Xenophobe:

- If there is a self-destruct unit, use it as it speeds up the game and prevents health loss.
- Pick up everything because most things have a use. Mugs, pails, vitamins and fluids give you 64 health points. The comlink gives you the percentage of infestation and a disk allows you to use the teleport system (these are the green squares in the rooms displaying infestation).
- The machines which throw bombs can be used. Stand in front of the black rectangle in the middle of the machine, press Option 2 to fix it and then press Option 1 to collect all the bombs you could ever want.
- On level 23 you'll find the Mother Factor. She won't go for you; all she'll do is move forwards and backwards quickly and lay an egg occasionally. You can only kill her by shooting the egg and then her eye.

LIFE & DEATH II

THE BRAIN

Mad Doctor Ellis becomes a brain surgeon; let the massacre begin

MACHINE MANIA

CAT scan - Because it uses iodine, it can't be used on patients allergic to fish. Will show up many problems.

MRI scan - Can't be used for patients with pacemakers owing to the strong magnetic field put out.

X-ray - Not much use to anyone, but will show up fractures in the skull.

Angiogram - A method of x-raying the blood vessels by injecting them with a suitable substance.

The original Life & Death created a somewhat cult following. After all, it wasn't everyday that you could diagnose indigestion and continue to remove that person's appendix as a cure. But Life & Death was missing that certain je ne sais quois. Although the patients often screamed and squirmed beneath your deadly scalpel, you never really felt you were inflicting the greatest pain possible. But with the sequel, all that is about to change. For in Life & Death II you get to operate on the most complex of all the human

Your place of work, the Neurosurgery Wing of Toolworks General. The receptionist's name is Edith MacDonald, and she's situated right in the middle. If you get lost, she will help you out. The classroom is situated at the bottom left hand corner. This should be your first port of call as there you will learn all there is to know about brain surgery.

It's getting to where this hospital isn't big enough for Schmidt and Griffin. I heard Griff was ganked off an aneurysm procedure yesterday just because Heidi was on the IXG.

organs: the brain. After receiving a memo of welcome from Dr Ryan Skelton, Chief of Neurosurgery, you sign in at Toolworks General Hospital. Before you get down to Pick up the latest bits of gossip at the staff canteen. You can also watch that prat at the coffee machine have a nasty accident with your coffee. (Keep your ears open, as your colleagues will always have something to say about your progress.

the real blood and guts of the game, you would be wise to attend the classroom lessons on surgery techniques. Later on in the game, it would be prudent to return there for advice and guidance on more awkward operations (like opening up someone's skull).

After learning the rudiments of neurosurgery, you are left loose on live patients. Your first task is to examine them and diagnose their ailments. To do this, you must first carry out a physical examination of your patient, looking at their head, arms and legs to discover any symptoms that may help in your diagnosis. From then on, you

If all else fails, you can always return to Edith MacDonald and find out exactly where you're supposed to be. In fact this nosy old cow knows just about everything there is to know, I don't know why they didn't make her the chief neurosurgeon.

Now you've got all your information at hand, you must decide what action to take. The wrong treatment has catastrophic results and trial and error is an unwise approach to take. Just because the game is based around brain operations, it doesn't mean that every patient must be trawled into the operating theatre. Some patients will not react too favourably to a lobotomy when all they needed was a bit of physiotherapy.

Not only a steady hand and a keen eye are needed to become one of the hospital's best first-year neurosurgeons. You'll also need to have a sound knowledge of your subject, and be able to diagnose all your patients successfully. The more ops you carry out without glitches, the more certificates you'll see appearing on your office wall.

Of course, if you're not quite up to the calibre of surgeon required for such a demanding job, you could always try out for that vacancy down at the morgue.

The staff were not amused by your initiation of Freddy Engen. Get to class before I have you forcibly removed!

DOCTOR, DOCTOR...

- * Why are dentists always sad? Because they're always looking down in the mouth.
- * Doctor, doctor, I feel like a pack of cards. Don't worry, I'll deal with you in a moment!

"Aha! The ol' pacemaker trick! Bet the Doc doesn't try that one again!"

The CAT scan is just one of the tests you can carry out to try and discover what is wrong with the patient. But remember, if they are allergic to fish, the CAT scan will kill them - snigger, snigger...

The ST is just

The Atari ST is the perfect introduction to the world of computing. The power of the ST allows you to run "serious" applications as well as playing games, and the ST system is flexible enough to allow you to expand as you develop your interests and expertise in different applications.

With so much diversity and power it is easy to see why the Atari ST family is one of the most successful ranges of computers in the world. But best of all is the built-in growth potential. The 520ST user of today is the TT user of tomorrow; beginning with games or a simple word processor, anyone can learn about computers and gradually acquire the skills of the professional computer user. And unlike many other systems, an Atari upgrade is not wasteful. Much of the software available for the 520ST will run on both the Mega STe and the TT systems. With an Atari an upgrade means that you can add new capabilities and expand your computing horizons without losing everything you have acquired along the way.

If you thought that computers were all about playing games you've been missing out on the real potential that you and your computer have. To find out more about either the Atari ST or peripherals for any applications simply fill in the coupon and send it to Atari at the address below.

Whether you are looking for a leisure computer, an educational computer, a computer for all the family or a powerful business system, look no further than the Atari ST Range.

The Atari 520ST is an easy way for you and your family to learn about computers while having a great deal of fun. This best-selling computer has an impressive range of features that fit many requirements at home or in the office. A generous 512K RAM memory is included as standard - enough to run large spreadsheets and databases as well as the latest generation of computer games. There are plenty of expansion ports available for printers, modems, monitors and hard disk, and other peripherals allowing you to increase the power and flexibility of your system as needed. MIDI expansion ports are fitted as standard. MIDI (Musical Instrument Digital Interface) is the music industry standard interface that allows you to control both recording and playback of synthesizers and other digital instruments with your computer.

There is no other computer range in the UK that can offer its users such a wide variety of software support, ranging from educational learning programs to 16-bit computer games to professional quality desktop publishing packages.

The ATARI ST

the beginning

The power of the new Mega STE range makes it a serious contender for those who are after power computing. It is an ideal machine for the student or computer enthusiast who wants to run memory intensive applications such as Computer Aided Design (CAD) or graphics applications. The Mega STE features separate keyboard and central processor with a 1MB floppy disk drive and a 50MB Hard Drive for data storage. The Mega STE features a fast 16MHz operating speed, which can be switched to 6MHz to run any programs developed for the 520ST, making it even easier for you to upgrade.

For those of you who want to run a 'home office' with separate files for word processing, spreadsheets and accounts packages the Mega STE - with its vast amount of built-in hard disk storage - is an excellent choice. For those running graphics intensive programs the faster operating speed will make the Mega STE a much more productive machine. The Mega STE also features an extensive range of expansion ports that allow you to add even more power and flexibility to your system.

The portable Atari Stacy is completely compatible with all monochrome ST programs, but allows for complete portability.

It features a superb wrist backlit LCD mono screen, split horizontally and has all the standard ST ports. It is available in various configurations, with Hard disk as standard. It weighs approximately 15.2 pounds and has its own carrying handle making it easy to transfer from place to place. Because the ST, with its MIDI interface has become the accepted standard in the music industry, the Stacy is a boon machine for musicians with a busy schedule. Songs and sequences written at home can be stored on the built-in hard disk, then the whole computer can be easily transported to the studio or gig, with minimum stress, they can even be worked upon and improved on the road. Although it is the most specialist member of the ST family, the Stacy is still versatile enough to be used for all serious ST applications.

The incredibly powerful Atari TT, at the very top of the Atari range, is the first in a new generation of high specification professional personal workstations based on the successful Atari ST standard. Similar in style and design to the Mega STE, the Atari TT features a separate keyboard, 1MB floppy disk, 50 MB Hard Drive and the same range of excellent expansion ports. The basic model comes configured with 2MB RAM which can be expanded up to a massive 26MB. With a Motorola 68030 central processor, the TT runs at up to 32MHz. But speed and power are not all the TT system offers the professional user. Six standard built-in screen resolution modes mean that there is always one suitable for the purpose that you have in mind. For animation or computer graphics, choose from a palette of over 4,000 colours with the ability to display 256 on screen at any one time, and the exceptional 1280 x 960 pixel high resolution mode is one of the best screen modes available at any price.

— More than just great games

GREMLINS 2

THE NEW BATCH

Don't expose him to bright light, don't get him wet and never feed him after midnight... But we broke all the rules and let Les Ellis loose

If you thought the damage they inflicted on Kingston Falls was bad, wait till you see what hundreds of Gremlins running loose in a NYC tower block does. Yes, those cute little furballs of terror are back on our screens, wreaking havoc like nothing on Earth.

You'd have thought that the world would have been saved of the terrors since Mr Wing took Gizmo back from his irresponsible kidnappers in the first movie. But the old man didn't last too long in New York, and has now died, leaving his premises to be taken over by Daniel Clamp and his multimillion-dollar empire.

Where Mr Wing's old shop once stood is now the monstrous Clamp Centre, fully automated and home to hundreds of Clamp businesses. By pure coincidence, Billy and his girlfriend Kate have also moved to the big city and are currently in Mr Clamp's employ as a commercial artist and Clamp Centre tour guide respectively. While working in the Centre one day, Billy hears a mail clerk whistling one of Gizmo's little tunes. Anyway, to cut a long story short, Gizmo was found in the rubble of Mr Wing's shop by Clamp geneticists who are now experimenting on him. Billy rescues Gizmo from the genetics lab in Clamp Centre and takes him back to his own desk. But, wouldn't you know it, Gizmo gets hit by a freak leak in a drinking fountain and the evil Gremlins are hatched. Which is where we pick up the story. Unlike the Elite computer conversions of the film, the

GIZMO'S GADGETS

- Tomato – basic weapon, can't be powered up.
- Match – can be powered up to fire in three directions.
- Paper Clip – can be powered up, to throw in three directions.
- Bow and Arrow – when powered up, shoots five projectiles.
- Bow and Fire-Headed Arrow – best weapon available.
- Crystal Balls – used as money to buy things from Wing's shop.
- Flashbulb – when touched, will destroy all enemies onscreen.
- Pogo Stick – used to jump on the enemies to kill them.
- Time Stopper – temporarily freezes all the enemies.
- Balloon – helps Gizmo go over a hole in the ground.
- Life – recovers your life.
- Power Pak – powers up your weapon.
- Gizmo Clone – extra life.
- Heart – steps up the number of hearts onscreen.

• A hop, skip and jump and you're home safely. Well, you've completed the first section of the first level. The first level has two stages as do the other four levels. The exit leads to a lift which shunts you to the next stage. All the levels apart from the first feature a large end-of-level guardian. In level two you'll find Mohawk, in level three there's the Electric Gremlin to contend with while levels four and five feature a much-maligned Mohawk. But then, you'll never get that far.

• A number of hearts are shown in the upper left of the screen during play. You get a meagre three hearts at the start of your game playing session. The maximum number of hearts possible onscreen at any time is four. Gizmo is subject to one damage point when hit by an enemy, falling down a hole or bumping into a barrier. Two damage points result in one heart being lost. When all hearts are gone from the screen, Gizmo has well and truly snuffed it. In fact, he's kicked the bucket, deceased, has been, is no more, popped off, gone to meet his maker, history passed on, left the land of the living.

NES version is based around the more adventurous exploits of Gizmo and not "boring" Billy. We first meet Gizmo on his way to Billy's office. From here he gets thrown into the air duct system, where Giz discovers that the Gremlins have spread throughout the whole of the building. After climbing out of the duct, our furry friend finds Clamp TV station, and tries to make his way to Daniel Clamp's office. On his way, Gizmo bumps into a whole array of weird and no-so-wonderful mutated Gremlins in the genetics lab. Finally our hero reaches his main goal, the Clamp Centre Control Room, where he wages his final battle with Mohawk in spider form.

Along the way, Gizmo can pick up extra weapons (see Gizmo's Gadgets). He can also pop into Mr Wing's shop, which miraculously appears at certain points throughout the Clamp Centre, and purchase special items.

If Gizmo fails in his personal quest against the Gremlins, the whole lot of them will be let loose upon New York. And what a disaster that would be.

ELITE
£24.99 ● REVIEW #3

• Oh, Gizmo, stop trying to sneak a quick slash behind that chair. There simply isn't time for that sort of thing. Instead, take time out to visit Mr Wing's Magic shop. You can buy all sorts of useful gadgets in exchange for the crystals collected on your quest. A balloon will transport you over chairs, a life ray will get you back to full health, a power pack will power up the weapon in your possession, a Gizmo clone will add an additional life and a heart will increase the total number of hearts making up your health bar.

• Jump onto the moving platform. When it reaches its destination jump off, but take care not to participate in tomato sand which or get rolled by the bats.

• Up, revenge of the mutant ninja tomatoes. Step aside or be crushed. You can shoot them and collect the cash left behind. But don't get any ideas about taking a nap on the chairs above you!

• You can either jump this combination or go around it. Watch out for the rat; shooting it gives you money.

• When an enemy is beaten, an item will be left behind. A crystal ball (like the one shown here) can be exchanged for various items at Mr Wing's shop, a flash-bomb will destroy all enemies across smart bomb-style, a page-stick enables Gizmo to leap on all enemies for a short period, and the time stopper halts all enemies for a short while.

• At the end of each level a power up item appears (except for the tomato which is available at the beginning of the first level). At the end of the first level you'll find a match which shoots out flames. The second level provides you with a paper clip which can be thrown at the enemy. With a rubber band and pencil encountered in level three, Gizmo can assemble a bow and arrow by using the paper clip from the previous level. Finally, in the fourth level, you can use the bow and arrow to shoot explosive!

Bright spark, Les Ellis gets positively charged over this microscopic puzzler

On some of the levels, the molecules are already on the screen and you have to remove them by building up the links.

It's a sign of the times we live in that the sole act which changed the way we live more than any other should have a computer game written about it. When Al Einstein split the atom in the early 20th century, who would have thought that a Liverpudlian comput-could this be the start of a whole new genre?

Psychosis's attempt at a puzzle-educational game is based around the simplest of ideas. All you have to do is join an atom to other atoms to form a solid grid without any loose links between the atoms. Okay, so it doesn't sound that easy, but the premise is pretty simple. Unfortunately, there are a couple of barriers that have to be overcome before you solve the grid. Your main enemy is the space in which you work, it is limited to just a few atoms across and down and is very restricting. Time is also spinning around them. As you progress through the levels, the less time you will have and obstacles will start to appear onscreen. The obstacles take the form of decorative icons which stand for nothing but awkwardly obstruct the logical route.

Atomino is a game you really have to sit down and play; it's not the sort that looks enthralling from over someone's shoulder. The challenge of the strategic elements is set about right, although the game can get so infuriating that you give up in despair. A strange release from Psychosis.

Level one is fairly easy - and is about to be completed in a way complex manner. The pit on the right-hand side holds only six pieces and shows which atoms are available to be used on the grid.

er software house named Psychosis would want you to get all those atoms together again? Certainly not old Albert himself, I would venture to say. Indeed, atoms also featured heavily in Thalion's Atomix late last year, so

IT'S A LINKS GAME

Stopper - has only one link and is useful for ending paths.

Two-way - useful for creating and connecting corners.

Three-way - can be used to divert a straight line.

Four-way - Murphy's law dictates that this piece normally turns up when you don't need it.

not on your side; it quietly licks down in the corner but can soon bring Game Over if you're not quick in your construction.

Before the atoms have to be placed on the grid, they fall into a pit on the right-hand side of the screen. The pit holds up to six atoms, each one with its own little connector(s) spinning around it. The atoms must be judiciously placed so that they link as many of their connectors with loose connectors on the atoms already placed on the screen. Get the idea?

A level is completed when all the atoms on the screen are bonded together with no loose connectors

THE COMPUTER GAME.

King of the Crap Jokes, Les Ellis, bumps into a few close friends

Not only was Viz the funniest of the glut of comics to appear in the early Eighties (well, okay, 1979), it was also the most controversial. Featuring such characters as Johnny Farpants, Sid the Sexist and Roger Mellie (the man on the telly), it soon doubled, tripled, quadrupled, etc its original circulation of 150 to become one of the best selling magazines in Britain. Indeed, the UK circulation of Viz today is regularly over one million, with only three other periodicals topping its figures. But even with want to be associated with Biffa Bacon? - I think not. So in stepped Virgin to save the day and keep the Viz characters alive. And along with Virgin came street cred, and, more importantly, advertising (including Sega's). But, of course, everything has a price and in this case it was college trendy types using the mag as another wardrobe accessory.

Between races you get a top tip, which makes interesting reading while the next level loads and decompresses.

In the pancake flattening bonus stage, Buster Gonad must use his incomprehensibly large testicles to squash pieces of dough produced by the pancake machine. Make sure the pancake is completely flat or it doesn't entitle you to a bonus.

such terrific sales, Viz became a victim of its own success.

When Viz started out, it could truly claim to be a "cult" comic. The jokes were sharp and intelligent. But, like most potted success stories, Viz found that sales alone would not keep the magazine alive, and advertising in a magazine with such dubious content would be risky to say the least. Would Coke and Pepsi really Having chosen Johnny Farpants (there's always a consolation going on in his underwear), you enter the first bonus stage. The higher you get, the more bonus speed-up tokens you receive.

Mellie spouts off in his normal fashion. The language may be offensive to some players, so if you are easily upset by crap words then don't buy Viz the Game.

Stand up and be counted. With no sign of the Fat Slags anywhere, these three brave men decide to enter the race. You must choose from Biffa Bacon, Johnny Fartpants or Buster Gonad.

Ever wondered who inflates all those balloons at a royal wedding? Why they call it Johnny Fartpants, Johnny's favourite group is Earth, Wind and Fire and his love movie Game with the Wind.

But the phenomenon continues, as do numerous clone magazines that have popped up over the past few years (Zix, Toxic, The Damage, etc). As we all know, imitation is the sincerest form of flattery.

And so we come to the latest in a long line of Viz spin-off merchandising. After postcards, calendars, boxer shorts, T-shirts and even alarm clocks we now have the Viz computer game.

Viz the Game is based around a race between three of Viz's most infamous characters: Biffa Bacon, Johnny Fartpants and Buster Gonad. The race takes place over five stages, with the winner becoming the Viz champion of Fulchester. During the race, each character must take part in two bonus stages, specific to the person under your control. For instance, Johnny Fartpants must use his undoubted bottom-blowing powers to inflate balloons. Meanwhile, Buster Gonad will be flattering pancakes with his unfeasibly large testicles, while Biffa Bacon must be assisted in drinking pints. The reward for your hard work will be extra tokens which increase your speed through the game.

Roger Inrelevant starts off the race in the middle of the countryside, with the whole of the event commented on by the inimitable Roger Melle. From the country, the race moves on to the town, a building site, a beach and finally a disco. You must win every section to become champ, although fail on just one leg and you'll have to re-race that section.

Roger Melle gives an incisive and comprehensive rundown of events in the race through Fulchester. As you join us here, Biffa has just suffered a set-back, while Buster Gonad had bounced into the lead. But the race is only half run, and there's still a lot of work to do.

Like Virgin's previous comical tie-in Monty Python, Viz the Game just about manages to translate onto computer. Although to truly appreciate the game, you'll need to have read a good few issues of the comic.

Biffa Bacon's bonus round allows the brute to accumulate power and gain bonus tokens by drinking pints. The more you drink the further you get - although be sure not to get too legless during the race.

Here's Buster Gonad who's having trouble keeping up with the rest due to his incredibly large testicles. If you stray out of your lane too often, Rodney Fix will chuck bricks at you. When hit you lose time and gain a shame token. Three shame tokens mean you're out of the race.

Double the trouble as JB meets the Lee brothers

DOUBLE DRAGON

by the Black Warriors, an evil gang under the rule of the mysterious Shadow Boss. He alone must fight the whole gang – his brother's Gone a Bunk – using whatever weapons come to hand: rocks, baseball bats, empty barrels, boxes, plus his own repertoire of oriental fighting moves. Billy has the arduous task of fighting through the slums, factories and wooded outskirts of the city to reach the hide-out of the Shadow Boss, only to find that he is, in fact, his brother Jimmy Lee. What a git, eh?

This brings us back to my original point, who needs brothers? All they do is nick all your toys when you're little, then all your girlfriends when you're older. It is all because of this rogue family member that you have to fight through four levels of bloody hard and stupidly big baddies, risking life and limb, in the hope of getting back the only steady girlfriend you're likely to see for a few years!

The graphics are quite superb, with backgrounds that would put many other bigger machines to shame – even in black and green. The only problem is that sometimes it is very difficult to work out which character you're controlling due to the blurred effect the Game Boy gives. The sound is very impressive, with a super in-game tune pounding away throughout. The effects aren't quite as imaginative, but the playability, in a good light, is easily as good as any other version of the game.

BILLY'S BOVVER

By pressing the X button, you can pick up and throw any of these items that you'll find scattered around the floor.

Brothers, eh? Who needs 'em? Certainly not Billy Lee. He and his brother Jimmy grew up in the slums of the city, learning their martial arts skills as a necessary defence against the rough thugs of the streets. Sadly, they gradually grew apart but both retained their awesome fighting skills.

Now Billy is faced with his biggest challenge yet: the kidnapping of his girlfriend. Marion has been snatched

BALLOON KID

More brotherly trouble for Julian Boardman

Another family saga hits the Game Boy. This complete jerk called Jim decides he's going to have a mess around with a few balloons and entertain his sister (nuff said). Lo and behold; surprise, surprise; shock, horror; a gust of wind carries him away to a far distant land. But his clever sister, Alice, thinks of a way to save him. Yes, you've guessed it, she too decides to go for a ride hanging onto a load of balloons.

Despite all the evidence to the contrary, Jim does possess a modicum of intelligence and common sense, and addresses the problem of how Alice will find him. While Jim is floating through the air, he releases a balloon every few hundred yards or so in order that Alice can follow his trail. So Alice, in a clear case of the heart ruling the head, flies off and tries to find Jim somewhere in the city of Penclivania.

Balloon Kid basically ends up something like Wonder Boy in the air, but not quite as good. Alice has

THE CAST

Alice – the heroine who is out to rescue her brother Jim.

Jim – the little rascal who's caused untold grief for his big sis'.

Samm – Alice's eternal rival who pops up in the Game Link option.

During the stages you occasionally come across a Game Boy (I). Entering it will get you into a bonus stage where you have to collect 20 balloons in order to gain an extra life.

The big chap at the bottom is an area boss. One of these guys appears at the end of every other of the eight stages.

to float her way past various birds and creatures determined to pop her balloons and ruin her chance of ever seeing her cute, but mischievous little brother.

There's also a two-player Game Link version where you compete for the balloons with your friend Samm and a simple Balloon Trip game where there are no birds or fires.

Despite the corny storyline, horribly cute main characters, and the similarity with other platform games, I must admit that Balloon Kid did actually keep me playing for quite a long while. If you've got a spare £20, you could do a lot worse than swapping it for this.

SHADOW DANCER

Julian Boardman invites you to come dancing - doggy style

Since this sequel to Shinobi arrived in the arcades two years ago (and you all thought it was Revenge of Shinobi that was the sequel), each different conversion has taken on its own little plot line and subtitle - my own personal favourite being "One Man and his Dog". In this case, the plot goes something like this. Joe Mushasi, or Mushy to his friends, has decided that after the incredible ordeal of the first Shinobi adventure, he deserves a rest, and has set off around the world to visit all his friends. While visiting his chum Kato in New York, he is horrified to find that Kato's flat has been ransacked and his friend worked around any hardware limitations on the quality of the background graphics to produce a game that stands up well to its arcade counterpart, both in looks and playability. The five frenetic levels are bal-

The action begins inside JFK airport, the first target for the terrorists' bombs. You and your dog must fight your way through three stages to get to the end of level boss who's based on 0737.

sonal favourite being "One Man and his Dog". In this case, the plot goes something like this. Joe Mushasi, or Mushy to his friends, has decided that after the incredible ordeal of the hacked and slashed by what appear to be indiscriminate thugs (hey, that's life in the big city).

However, on contacting Kato's acquaintances, Mushy discovers that his friend was close to uncovering the full details of a terrorist plot to bring the city to its knees. It transpires that the evil-doers are planning to plant firebombs at strategic points throughout the city.

Mushy decides to avenge his mate's death and save the city. With the help of Kato's dog Ninja, Joe sets out to do his bit as the all-American ninja hero.

US Gold have done a fine job of the computer conversion. They have anced just right. The early levels are short enough not to become a pain every time you play, but taxing enough to make you concentrate every step of the way.

On the down side, Shadow Dancer is fairly old now and doesn't stand out from an already large number of similar ninja beat-'em-ups. Even so, it is a good product and if you lack a Shinobi game, this could amply fill that gap in your collection.

The SF 49ers' quarterback decides to boost his pension by endorsing a game. Julian Boardman checks out the size of his superannuation

Anyone who saw this year's Superbowl from Tampa Bay will realise why football (not soccer) is so huge in America. The tension in that stadium, not to mention across the world (well, my mate's living room anyway), as the Bills' kicker stood up in the dying seconds to take the 50-yard field goal attempt, which would decide the outcome of the game, was remarkable. Despite what you may think of the typically OTT showbusiness rubbish that surrounds it, American football can still be one hell of a game.

Why then does Joe Montana Football on the Master System totally fail to capture any of that atmosphere? The PC version, though, is a completely different bag of jockstraps and is detailed later on in the review.

The Master System game is played over four five-minute quarters between one or two players. The rules of American football apply where possible (things like foul rules don't make an appearance), four downs to move ten yards up the pitch and so on. After the coin is tossed, the kick off takes place and the receiving team has possession. A play-select screen then comes up, giving you a choice of play depending on your situation: a defensive play, offensive play, field goal attempt or punt. During offense, Joe Montana's recommended play will be highlighted as Joe's Play. There is so little variety in the plays available that you might as well just go for that and let him get on with it.

The joystick gives control over the quarterback, so he can dodge tackles or run until the ball is passed. Control then goes to the receiver who can try to shake off his marker to make the pass complete; once he's got the ball, he can run like stink to gain as many yards as possible. Obviously the pass may be incomplete or intercepted just as in a real game.

Sadly that is where the similarity with the real game ends. The limited number of plays to select means that decision-making is never a problem; the small sprites and perspectiveless side-on view result in confusion rather than speed, and once you have found a couple of plays that work well for you, it all becomes far too easy. Even before you get it sussed, JMF never becomes involving or addictive, barely diverting.

The game seems to have followed Joe Montana's recent form, down the pan.

PC strikes Gold

The PC version, designed by Sega and distributed by US Gold, is completely different. In fact the only similarities it has with the Master System version are the name and the daft picture of Joe "Aren't I big and tough?" Montana on the front.

The PC version is one of the most advanced American football simulators I have ever come across. The wealth of options make it a game that can really appeal to someone who knows their running backs from their wide receivers; you can really get deep into it. On the other hand, after getting used to the plays and controls, it's the sort of game you can pop back to for a quick half hour bash.

Some of the advanced features include a playbook that allows you to design your own plays, a replay editor that lets you create your own highlight films of a game, and a huge database of players and teams from which you can mix and match to make the perfect side. Not only that, once you get used to the simple controls, the game soon becomes very playable. My only reservations about recommending it to anyone would be the irritating disk access for anyone running it from floppy. Get a hard drive!

The kick off punt is about to take place. If you receive a long kick in your end zone, it will probably be worth carrying the ball out of the back line to get a touchback. Doing this will give you an automatic first down on the 20-yard line.

JOE'S FOOTBALL LEXICON

Down - A chance for the offense to gain yardage. The offense has four downs to advance the ball towards the goal line. In order to keep the ball, the offense must either score or gain at least ten yards by the end of the fourth down.

First down - The offense's first play after the kick off. Whenever the offense gains ten yards, it earns another first down.

Line of scrimmage - Where the teams square up to begin each play. It is determined by where the ball rested at the end of the last play.

Safety - Taking your ball into your own end zone and being tackled there. Results in change of possession and two points for your opponent.

Time out - Called by either team at the end of a play to allow for a quick strategy session. The clock stops during this session.

Touchback - Gaining possession of the opponent's ball in your end zone and being tackled there. Results in your team getting a first down at the 20-yard line.

QUADREL

Julian Boardman gets out his crayons and plays with a Frenchman

There is a certain mathematical theorem that goes thus: any map or flat shape that is sub-divided into any number of different sections can be painted with four colours in such a way that no 'one section is painted with the same colour as a section adjacent to it. Quadrel is based around this theory.

The game presents you with a

The more advanced levels soon become too complicated to give any chance of developing a strategy.

number of different shapes each of which are divided into designs ranging from the simplistic to the convoluted. You then have to use your skill and judgement to paint all the sections with four colours - yellow, red, blue, green - in such a way that it follows the aforementioned theorem.

To make things slightly more difficult, you only have a limited number of colour in your paint pots. This could provoke a situation where one of the last few spaces could only take, say, a yellow, but you have unfortunately run out of paint. Should this happen or a space is surrounded by all four colours, meaning that no colour could be successfully placed there, then your game is over.

The game offers two solitary

The four paint pots show the colours that you can use, player one always uses the pots on the left. As you use up your paint, the pots become visibly emptier until the counter at the side reads zero. The clock in the middle is for timed games and works in a similar way to a chess clock, starting and stopping as your turn comes around.

Several strategies can be employed but none is more successful than using just two colours for a lot of the time, thus preventing a situation arising where one space is surrounded by all four colours.

modes, voluntary and involuntary. What this means is that you either get a choice of where to paint or the computer decides which section must be filled next. The two-player modes, either against the computer or another player, are a race to see who can prevent the other player from making a move first.

Perhaps it is over my head but half the time it seems to be more luck than judgement that you succeed - especially on levels that include over a hundred tiny sections to paint. This gives it a "take it or leave it" feel and prevents Quadrel from ever becoming really gripping or addictive, only ever vaguely entertaining.

SWITCHBLADE

"Give us back our hero," they cried. So we chucked Les Ellis at them and told them to be grateful

First of all, a quick recap. The original Switchblade (released 18 months ago) featured an heroic blade knight called Hiro on a quest to find pieces of a fireblade which were scattered deep in the cyber-world of Thraxx. The fireblade was the ancient source of power for all blade knights, and thus had to be recovered at all costs. The weapon was originally destroyed by an evil dude called Havok, who dispatched his nightmarish minions to stop you in your tracks. But at the end of the day, good triumphed over evil and Havok was forced to retreat to a volcanic island where he could plan his next nefarious deed.

Whaddya mean you forgot your brain?!

Now Havok is wreacked upon you once more, and the wicked old man has smashed up the fireblade again (have Thraxxians never heard of SuperGlue?).

You encounter trouble in the underground city. Here a rocket-spitting robot insect lives in totally the wrong direction. You can also see an open doorway. Could this be the way to a part of the fireblade or will it just be more of Havok's misad.

Unfortunately, the original Hiro has left the country of Thraxx in search of fame and fortune in the new land of America (okay, so he's dead). So the people of Thraxx call upon his namesake son Hiro to retrieve the five pieces of the fireblade.

This large gun appears on level two spitting death in all directions. One false step and you could topple over the edge of the cliff.

In level two the action moves outside to the cliffs. The doorways lead into the cliff to small rooms which contain helpful icons. Some may have enemies, but all are worth investigating.

Hiro's adventure begins in the underground city, with 600 screens of heroic (hiroic?) action lying before him. On leaving the city, you will move out to the cliffs, then up into mountains. From there, you'll trip down to the docks where you can catch a boat which will take you to the volcanic island where Havok practises his weakening.

Each location holds its own mysteries; sometimes there may be a hidden room, other times it could be a seemingly impenetrable wall which can be sliced through with your sword. But while you are wondering about the solidity of the landscape, Havok's hordes are, in the best tradition, wreaking havoc on you and your health bar. Your energy can be replenished by either picking up food that is conveniently scattered around the place, or by entering one of the local shops which will be more than happy to sell you some grub in exchange for money you should have picked up.

Switchblade II isn't exactly a strategy adventure but you will need a good memory and shrewd decision-making if you're to survive the quest. However, to describe it as a platform hack 'n' slash game would be unfair as there's much more to it than the ordinary beat-'em-up fare. If you want a challenge, yet don't have months to spare, then Switchblade II is the ideal game.

DISC

Frisbee thrower extraordinaire, Julian Boardman discusses the latest offering from through the tunnel

The tiles at the back are marked with different geometrical shapes to denote the number of hits they require for the corresponding floor tile to disappear. The number of sides on the object indicates the number of hits, from a hexagon down to a circle. Some of the squares will be marked with an infinity sign, this means that they cannot be removed and it is fruitless to hit them. Occasionally a square may be showing a question mark, this will reveal a mystery bonus. The bonuses can be anything from Speed disc to Power disc and may well win you the match.

No matter how hard you try, something always gets lost in the translation. In this case it was any last trace of credibility the manual had. It is not just the fact that there are a number of mistakes (even I make mistakes!), it is that they tried to be really clever and put loads of long sentences and colloquialisms into it and they all turn out wrong. For example, one way to knock off the other guy is to make him fall down a hole, this becomes "By precipitating him in the abyss after leading him to make a mistake," which, frankly, sounds as though you trip him up and then urinate on him as he lies in the gutter. A manual like this does not promise a good game.

Two guys face each other across an abyss on platforms of eight squares; four wide, two deep. Behind each of them is another set of eight vertical squares which correspond to the horizontal tiles. By throwing the disc when it is in your possession, you must try to hit your opponent's vertical tiles. If you hit one often enough it will make its matching horizontal tile disappear, leaving a big hole in the floor.

Your aim is to hassle your opponent so much that he loses his senses and accidentally jumps through a hole to his death. You can also inflict some grievous bodily harm on him if you happen to hit him with the disc,

Two-player mode would have benefited from a split-screen effect giving each player's personal view, but instead of this the ends are swapped so that each player has the same advantage over the other. To make sure of the fairness of the match, a player has to go two clear matches ahead to win.

usually by rebounding it off the wall. If you manage to zap all his energy, then this too will bring about his downfall. Either way, the game is about as exciting as throwing a tennis ball against a wall.

Like most "future sports" games (this one is set in the second millennium), you get a motley bunch of degenerates to play against. There's also a tournament option - if you ever feel the need to keep the game loaded for more than five minutes. Above all, I can't help wondering that I've seen this game before. In fact, clearing away the cobwebs from my mind, Disc seems like a mishmash of the last stage of Raid Over Moscow and the ravine section of Beach Head II.

Admittedly, there are some attractive backgrounds and the animation's quite good, but the whole game is just too shallow to warrant a £24.95 price tag. Even in the present budget market, Disc would find itself under attack from far better value games.

JETFIGHTER II

The most advanced tactical fighter has been loaned to Julian Boardman. Let's hope they don't want it back in the same condition they sent it

The original JetFighter was a bit of a corker by all accounts – I never played it – and was acclaimed by several hacks as the best flight sim on a desktop computer. The sequel, therefore, has a load of stuff to live up to.

US Gold have started pretty bravely with the scenario. It is one of those on-going adventures inside the simulation – as opposed to just a flight simulation program – featuring 150 separate, albeit dated, missions. Communist terrorists have successfully invaded California (hey, if you're going to invade someone, make it hot), and it is your job to fly missions into the mainland from the carrier USS Constellation, in the hope of defeating the Commies. These missions start off fairly easily, picking off single rookie jets and the like, but by the time you get up to mission 150 we are talking multi-role interdiction, with the balance of power lying in your sweaty hands.

TIME FOR DINNER (MAN)

Bob Dinnerman has been on a personal crusade to create the most realistic, affordable flight simulation since he designed the coin-op Discs of Tran for Bally. To get where he wanted, he launched his own company, RD Technologies, and created the highly popular and critically acclaimed F/A-18 Interceptor for the Amiga and JetFighter for the IBM PC. It is to this noble and selfless end that he has produced JetFighter II. (Translation of packaging blurb ©1991 Julian Boardman.)

Free-flight gives ample options to tailor a particular practice scenario to your taste. You can decide where to take off, where to land, how many bandits you want to shoot down, even what time of day it is.

You get a choice of four planes

The game can be played in three ways: the adventure, which is the full campaign to recapture California; combat, which is the chance to play one mission but it does affect your combat rating; and free-flight, which doesn't, but does give you the chance to practise take-off and landing.

"It's all over..."

RAZE JULY 1991

to pilot: the F/A 18 Hornet, F-16 Falcon, F-14 Tomcat and F-23. The F-23 is apparently the most deadly aircraft ever built, blending radar stealth with the latest self-guiding, cup-of-tea-making weapons – and all at speeds of up to Mach 3. Each plane has its own separate cockpit configuration and HUD and animated landing gear retraction.

But don't balk at all this technology. Should you be what is known as "a crap pilot" then all is not lost. There is a free-flight trainer that just sticks you up in the air

What you get with JetFighter II is a very professional, and impressively constructed package. The graphics are fantastic, helping the feel of the game, and the sound from an AdLib card is booming enough to ruffle your hair.

through which you can view the beautifully shaded, light-sourced, dithered and thithered horizon and landscape (of course CGA mode doesn't quite convey that impression). The 3-D driver is one of the fastest I have seen and also includes features like animated explosions, opening parachutes and allows you to come to grips with the planes without affecting your rating in the combat adventure. It also gives you a chance to practise landing, as there is no autopilot. A newcomer to flight sims should spend at least six weeks practising the landing procedure. Believe me, anybody who is not familiar with Electronic Arts' F/A-18 Interceptor, written for the Amiga by the same guy who did this, will have big trouble trying to land this multi-million dollar air-

However, I am still left wondering if flying into California is really enough excitement to last for 150 missions – even if the aim is to release it from the stranglehold of the Communists. There is nothing in the gameplay to make it stand out from other flight sims, it is neither better nor worse than any other. However, the graphics really do warrant a viewing. After all, if you're going to get a flight simulation, you may as well get one with great graphics.

RED YAWN RISING

The idea of the USA being invaded by the Communists has been around since the paranoid days of McCarthy's Commie witch-hunts of the late Forties and Fifties. Movie-makers were quick to pick up on the drama and feed on the very real fears, at the time, of just such an invasion. So RAZE is happy to present the filmography of the movies that represented and heightened the nightmares of a generation.

The Red Menace (1949, dir: RG Springsteen) Robert Rockwell stars as a war veteran who is duped by the Communists. Unintentionally funny McCarthy-esque propaganda. Invasion USA (1952, dir: Alfred E Green) Fully-fledged Invasion by "The Enemy" that never actually mentions Communism, but you know who "They" are. Relies on too much stock battle footage to be of any value.

The Russians are Coming! The Russians are Coming! (1966, dir: Norman Jewison) Popular, but at the time overrated, comedy about a Russian submarine that lands off the New England coast. Good comedy by Alan Arkin in his first starring film role.

Telephone (1977, dir: Don Siegel)

Charles Bronson stars as a Russian agent sent to stop a crazy defector from triggering hypnotised sleepers to cause havoc in the US. Lee Remick, Donald Pleasance and Tye Daly assist in this slick thriller.

World War III (1982, dir: David Greene) Robert L Joseph's thriller transferred to the small screen stars Rock Hudson as US President on whose decision a possible nuclear holocaust rests. The Russians are invading Alaska and David Soul is sent to investigate.

Red Dawn (1984, dir: John Milius) Patrick Swayze, Charlie Sheen and G Thomas Howell pick up early roles in this pretentious and overly violent tale of how small-town teens become guerrillas after the Russians invade.

Invasion USA (1985, dir: Joseph Zito) Chuck Norris stars in this gratuitously violent yarn about Russian terrorists landing in Florida. Avoid.

Russkies (1987, dir: Rick Rosenthal) Well-meaning but uninspired reworking of The Russians Are Coming! The Russians Are Coming! about a Russian sailor washed ashore in Florida and the three youngsters who befriend him. Leaf Phoenix (brother of River) helps deliver a message of fellowship.

craft on a carrier that seems to be the size of a postage stamp. You do get the state-of-the-art HUD landing assistance to guide you in but it is still not one of the easiest tasks you could wish for.

THE EMBASSY MISSION

Les Ellis interrupts the snooker to bring you an urgent news-flash

In America, people say, where were you, when you heard of Kennedy's assassination? But in Britain, people ask each other, where were you when you saw the SAS assault on the Iranian embassy in London? Of course, most of us were at home watching the World Snooker Final.

If the world of black balaclavas and smoke bombs is for you, then this covert offering from Nintendo should provide an interesting challenge. But Rescue isn't a brand-new concept, the game is a new guise for Infogrames' old game Hostages — which was very favourably received in 1988.

The scenario is an all too familiar one. A foreign embassy has been taken over by a ruthless band of terrorists. By threatening the lives of the 14 hostages, they hope to free terrorist prisoners from all over the world. But their demands are totally unreasonable, and after 11 days of intense negotiation in the hope of reaching a peaceful settlement, it has been decided that there is only one course

Your first task is to place three snipers, Mike, Steve and Jumbo, at strategic points around the embassy. Unfortunately, the terrorists have commandeered the embassy's search lights, so the approach involves much ducking, diving and somersaulting.

Once your three amigos are in position, you can give the order for the aerial assault on the building, straight in the top floor of the embassy.

Either way the aerial crew, Ron, Dick and Kemco (!), will have to rappell (abseil) down walls of the building and each smash through one of the windows. The aerial crew now become your rescue crew as they scour the three floors of the embassy in search of the ambassador and the other 13 hostages. As in a shooting gallery, both good and bad guys will pop out of doors into the corridors, so you must be totally sure of your target before you blow it away. The mission is only totally successful when all of the hostages are rescued and every one of your team has returned.

There are three levels of difficulty, with five missions in each. Each mission has a different time limit, and as the difficulty level increases so does the speed of the enemy and search lights.

It makes a welcome change from arcade adventures and shoot-'em-ups to receive an original, albeit converted, game on the Nintendo. The whole look and feel of the game is very fresh and inviting, with graphics that would shame most other NES and Master System games.

of action left. A memo is sent to a top secret base informing you, Lieutenant Colonel John R Clarke of the US Special Forces division, that your team of crack undercover problem-solvers has been called in to help.

Depending on what time you have left on the clock, and how many snipers survived the first assault, you can choose whether to use the snipers to knock out the terrorists appearing near the windows of the embassy or send the rooftop crew

HEAVYWEIGHT champ

Jools, RAZE's own heavyweight champ, refused to be the butt of any more weight jokes, so it was left to the super light featherweight Les Ellis to slug it out with Buster Douglas

Boxers are a strange breed. What sane person would jump into a ring knowing that they're going to get their brain punched? But fame and glory does take your hat off to lovable Frank - I mean, who else could turn from boxing brute into pantomime fairy? Boxers, eh, a law unto themselves. In the latest game to bash its way bring immense fortunes, even if they lose (remember Bruno?). In fact losing is becoming something of a British art, with Gary Mason and Nigel Benn following in Frank's large footsteps and gaining recognition from classic defeats. But you must Between rounds you get an intermission screen. If your fighter is breathing heavily then he's going to struggle, if he's breathing normally he'll probably survive any major onslaught - the same goes for your opponent. If it looks like things could get tricky, turn to your corner man for a bit of advice (although sometimes it's not very helpful).

KINGS OF THE RING

"Gritty" Bob Santana - the easiest of the lot; hit him hard and fast and he won't last long.

Tom "Bulldog" White - strong and fast, favours body punches; use combinations to beat him.

Mike "Spunky" Williams - moves fast, doesn't hit too hard and can take a lot of punishment.

Robert "The Crusher" Bernard - has the power of three normal boxers, but is vulnerable to body punches.

Keith "The Man" Gibson - undefeated champion, excels in all areas.

M'lords, ladies and gentlemen, in the blue corner we have the reigning champ. While in the red corner is the challenger, Lesley "Bomber [Man]" Ellis.

onto the Sega, you guide a young fighter called "Stingin" Steve Davis from gutter street fights to a world championship fight. Five boxers stand between you and the heavyweight crown (see Kings of the Ring). One of this motley crew can be played by a "friend", although they are all normally controlled via computer.

The ring is viewed side-on, with both boxers coming out of their respective corners to start the bout.

Everything is pretty much as standard boxing - punch, punch, block, punch - until out of the blue you get hit by an indefensible punch that sends you reeling across the ring and smashing into the ropes. I forgot to mention that every boxer comes equipped with three of his own "special" punches. The only way to avoid one of these smashers is to dodge and duck your way around it. Luckily, you'll see the computer's power meter build up when he's going for one, so you are usually prepared for it.

Easy to get into, with a two-player option as well, Heavyweight Champ weighs in at £25. Can you overcome the odds and become World Champ?

World Class LEADERBOARD

Les Ellis, the oldest swinger in town, gets out those plaid trousers again

Golf games are a bit of an oddity on consoles. The irony is that most of the people who vehemently defend their existence would be the last people to spend a Sunday afternoon actually traipsing around a real golf course, hitting real golf balls. Still, that's electronic entertainment for you: if it involves any effort then the console equivalent will take all that out of it. Indeed, we, the public, devoured the computer versions of the Leaderboard series with relish. Never before could anyone know so much about the sport without actually setting foot on a course.

It comes as quite a surprise that we should have to wait till now to get a Leaderboard version on the Master System; the version was originally planned a year ago. Meanwhile, games such as Goffmania have provided a steady diet, but none have entirely satisfied the appetite of Master System golfers.

Cough, wheeze, pant. After travelling what seems thousands of yards, you begin to wish that this course had provided courtesy buggies. However, a simple chip shot should put you onto the green with a simple putt to sink for the hole.

World Class Leaderboard is no different in play from the original Leaderboard. However, it does contain some extras and improvements over the original. For a start, the graphics are enhanced, featuring complex reconstructions of trees, bushes, lakes and even sand bunkers. The game itself is also far larger than Leaderboard, containing four courses. The first three are accurate representations of real courses from around the world (although the RAZE travel budget won't allow me to verify this): the world famous St Andrew's, Florida's Blue Monster at the Doral Country Club and the massive course of Cyprus Creek. The last course is specifically designed for World Class and combines all the toughest elements of the world's courses with the finest greens and longest fairways that any golfer could hope for.

Up to four players can compete in a stroke play tournament; ie, the player who takes the least shots to complete the 18 holes is the winner. There are three levels of difficulty, and a practice range where you can hone your putting and driving skills.

All said and done this is a perfect translation of the original World Class Leaderboard – as far as I can remember the old stalwart. In comparison, Goffmania is purely a simple arcade game. For a real challenge, settle for the original and best golfing series from Access/US Gold.

If it's cool and trendy clothes you're after, then look elsewhere. Even when World Class Leaderboard originally came out over three years ago, the clothes were still out of date. Will these golfers ever take notice of what "neat" people are wearing? I mean, you win hundreds of thousands of pounds putting a little ball down a hole and then spend the money on tartan trousers!

SCI

TAITO • £35

The arcade follow-up to Chase HQ has finally arrived on the Engine! The idea is much the same as the original, but instead of ramming the crims off the road you have to blast 'em off.

Practically every element from the great original has survived – even Nancy, your help at police headquarters. After receiving your orders from Nancy, you jump back into your high-powered pursuit car, which still looks like a cross between an Escort and a Porsche 928S. Time is of the essence as you have just 60 seconds to track down the criminals' vehicle, and a further 60 seconds to destroy it once it's found. Disabling the crims' car, van or lorry is simply done by firing at it constantly.

There are five villains to track down, over five tough, winding levels. At the end of level five, there's a final race to get to the crooks' warehouse. Each level also contains its own helicopter, which will quite generously drop extra weapons for you to pick up. But the weapons, like a rocket launcher, only last for eight mega powerful shots, so they mustn't be squandered.

SCI on the Engine is a stunning conversion. It contains nearly all of the features that were in the arcade machine – even the speech! The background and roadside graphics throughout are excellent and scroll along at an alarming rate. The car sprites are also very detailed and move quite intelligently across the track trying to block you. Finally, music and effects are superb, translating the coin-op with all its sonic glory.

VERYTEX

ASMIK • £35

The Mega Drive isn't exactly starved of blasters, is it? And it's not like any of them are particularly bad or anything. Most are very good in fact, and that's why when a new one comes along, it has to be something very special indeed to get noticed in the crowd. Unfortunately for Asmik, Verytex looks like it will get lost in the masses.

Power-ups are, of course, in abundance, which to a certain extent is the downfall of the game. After only a few minutes of play you find yourself at maximum power, with nothing to look forward to getting. Even the impressive level guardians, which practically fill the whole screen, only require a mild effort to send them wherever large end-of-level bad guys depart to.

There are some saving graces though. The backdrops are excellently drawn, combining floating space structures with smooth parallax scrolling. The explosions too are fairly smart, and helped by some decent sound effects. It's just a pity that these aesthetic attractions aren't complemented by some depth of gameplay.

MEGA DRIVE 79%

ROLAN'S CURSE

SAMMY • £25

Years ago the people of Rolan were terrorised by the evil King Barius, lord of the demons. But through their great bravery, the Rolans were able to defeat him. But being the nice (stupid) people that they are, instead of killing Barius, the Rolans imprisoned him in a castle sealed with magic.

All was fine till a few years later when an old folks nature tour stumbled on the castle and accidentally opened the doors (contrary to what was written in their National Trust guide book). Barius soon escaped and planned his revenge on the people who had imprisoned him there.

But the people's choice – you – is ready to face Barius and all his old cronies, so the Rolans have nothing to fear – right? You start in your village with little more than a sword and a few wise words from your elders. From here you just have to wander around the landscape, which is viewed from above, trying to find Barius's main henchmen. As you explore the countryside, you'll come across many wonderful objects that can prove of great use: shields, magic rings, axes, potions, etc. But killing monsters and picking up goodies is just half the fun as you also have to find a gateway that leads to the next area, and even closer to Barius himself.

Rolan's Curse is not a bad little game. Although the graphics aren't poor, they do little more than make the game functional. The sound is also fairly mediocre. The two-player option is a major bonus, allowing both players to venture around the place simultaneously. The major gripe is that the game is just so repetitive, although a password option does reduce some of the tedium.

GAME BOY 64%

PHANTASY SOLDIER III

RENO • £35

At first look, you could be forgiven for thinking this was another version of Strider. The graphics aren't quite as stunning, but there are those ubiquitous sloping platforms, and you have a special magic sword and even perform a skidding stop. But these are just similarities, the differences are many, the primary one being that you play a woman.

After a thoughtful cartoon telling you the story at the beginning, you get straight into the action. Like Strider, you can run, jump, crouch and fire. There is also a wide choice of magic, although this must be used wisely as it is limited. On some levels you can also change the character under your control, from a young girl who looks like your fairy godmother to another who's dressed up as a lion (with a whip).

The immense attention to detail and depth of content make Phantasy Soldier III a pleasure to play. Visually, each level varies greatly from the last. All the action takes place in front of some very smooth parallax scrolling, which adds greatly to the atmosphere. This is then polished off by a four minute cartoon sequence at the end of every level, detailing your progress. It's no wonder that Phantasy Soldier is into its third airing.

MEGA DRIVE 85%

POWER MISSION

NTVC • £25

Strategy fans are not really that well catered for on the Game Boy, but all that is about to change!

The year is 1999 and the country of Jagoda has just attacked your islands with their powerful battleships. Your job, as the commanding officer, is to destroy this enemy fleet using the fleet of ten units under your control. The fleet contains anything from battleships and cruisers to destroyers and submarines.

The game is set out over a map split into a 28x28 grid. After placing your own ships, you can try to locate the enemy's by either using a radar or moving one of your ships closer. Attacks should be launched with caution as you only have a limited supply of ammo. In all there are 11 enemy fleets to destroy, and each of them gets craftier as you progress.

Okay, I admit it, Power Mission is actually Battleships under a different guise. However, this doesn't mean that it isn't any good. The suspense certainly builds up when you are moving into enemy territory, which is enhanced in two-player Game Link mode. Power Mission doesn't boast stunning graphics or a pounding soundtrack, but it does have immense addictive qualities. A suitable alternative if you can't find two pencils and a notepad.

HAL WRESTLING

HAL AMERICA • £25

Are you grossly overweight? Do you wear Y-fronts and bover boots? Do you enjoy inflicting immense pain on other people like yourself? Is your name Julian Boardman? If so, then Hal have come up with the ideal wrestling game for you.

At the start of the game you decide whether you want to play versus the computer, or another player (down the Game Link), or take part in a four-man elimination match. You then choose one of the eight fighters available, each who has 14 moves, from a Brain Buster to an Atomic Drop.

It all sounds quite intriguing, but Hal Wrestling is a little bit of a disappointment. The sprites are good but very blocky, sometimes making it hard to tell which wrestler you are controlling. Similarly, the music isn't that bad, but it does irritate after a while. Most of all, the matches take far too long to run their course, making the game very tedious. Even people born with their underpants over their trousers would find this hard to enjoy. When is a wrestling game going to capture the real atmosphere of the American sport?

WONDER BOY III MONSTER LAIR

MEGA DRIVE ● SEGA ●
£30

Wonder Boy, that little bouncing loveboy, is back in a whole new game. But bear in mind that this is a conversion of the arcade machine, and nothing like the third game on the Master System. In your latest escapade you are joined by your close companion Wonder Girl on an adventure through nine action-packed levels.

There are two sections to the game – walking and flying – both containing an armoury full of weapons. The walking part is the hardest section, combining the shoot-em-up elements of the flying section with obstacles, a larger variety of creatures and more interactive landscape features.

By shooting the creatures in the Monster Lair, you can get them to drop either fruit or weapons. The fruit will boost your energy (which depleishes on contact with animals) while the weapons only last for a few screens when you're returned back to a pea shooter.

At the end of each flying section

Watch your step, there could be something fishy going on here. Get out of the way when this guy starts to spit.

(where Wonder Boy and Girl jump on friendly dragons), you encounter a big, mean, ugly animal. It could be a snake, or a bat, or even a hive of bees. But, beware, sometimes you may think you've polished off a guardian, when it could just reveal something even more menacing!

The graphics are very colourful, although they slow down a bit when there's too much going on. The sound, too, is relatively happy, although not a patch on the PC Engine CD-ROM version (understandably). A very addictive game, that's great fun in two-player mode with loads of continues.

AMBITION OF CAESAR

MEGA DRIVE ●
MICRONET ● £30

War games are always a bit of an oddity on the Mega Drive. For a machine that's aimed at the shoot-'em-up fanatic so much, it's a surprise to see any war games at all. Still, Shintaro Kanao's always moaning on about the unoriginal Japanese game market, so war games must be a breath of fresh air for the little chap. And, let's face it, when the Japs put their minds to it, they come up with some of the most accurate war games around – just look at any Koei game for proof.

The title of this says it all. You play the part of the Roman general Caesar who must basically survive all sorts of attacks from other kingdoms, whilst trying to expand the Roman empire into other territories.

You have control of your armies right down to the garrison in each town. Most of the action takes place on a square grid, from which you can move your forces around the countryside. When you bump into an opposing force, the action zooms in close for a man-to-man look at the conflict. It's worth noting that no control is had over individual aspects of your garrison, so you must sit back and watch as either your ill-prepared garrison gets well and truly trounced or the opposition start to eat dirt as you overpower their weaker forces.

VOLFIED

MEGA DRIVE ● TAITO ●
£30

Even when this game came out on the PC Engine, it was considered pretty old hat. But now Taito have tried to fob us off with it on the Mega Drive. This game is simple – very simple – and the programmers have done the impossible with the Mega Drive version and made it unplayable! How could they have made a Painter clone unplayable? Unbelievable.

Okay, so this isn't quite your basic odd alien creatures which travel around your trails and swirl around in the empty space.

It seems odd that Volfied should be released at exactly the same time as Qix on the Game Boy, an Painter game, there are a few extra elements. For a start, you don't have to fill the whole screen, from 75%-90% will suffice, depending on your level. Also, you get to pick up little goodies like lasers, speed, lives, etc. to help you survive the almost identical game. Are we trying to progress, or just digging up old ideas that programmers hope we have forgotten?

MEGA DRIVE 64%

There's a good range of difficulty levels, helping even beginners to get into the cut and thrust of military encounters with few headaches. Overall, the graphics are quite impressive – for a war game – and the battle screens show particular finesse. A good introduction to war gaming, yet a tough challenge for experienced warriors.

THE WINNING TEAM

DOMARK ● £29.99

What with the launch of their £7.99 Respray label and a constant supply of good quality compilations, Domark have taken the budget market by storm over the past months. However, Domark have very strict release conditions, which means that most of their cheapies are either Indicators and Cyberball.

Klax is one of those games that followed in the wake of Tetris. The screen shows a large hand holding a conveyor belt down which coloured tiles tumble. The idea is to arrange the tiles in a basket at one end of the conveyor so that so old that nobody wants them, or, as is more the case, the games have already appeared on compilation elsewhere. But choice isn't always a bad thing, and if you thought twice about buying a compilation to get that elusive game, you could well find that the game's been released on its own in the Respray collection.

Domark's bullishly titled The Winning Team isn't exactly the best collection of games to hit the market, but it is interesting in that it contains some titles which you might have thought about buying first time around, but just resisted at the last moment. On offer are Klax, APB, Escape from the Planet of the Robot Monsters, they align with tiles of the same colour to form three in a row (known as a klax). There's some great digitised speech and applause to liven up the game, and a two-player mode increases the lastability.

Domark's Tengen tie-in, APB, is just the thing for all you budding coppers out there. You play a rookie cop who has to venture around dangerous city streets clearing them of the filth of crime. Your captain briefs you before each mission, telling you what arrest quota the City expects of you. Later into the game, you are issued with an All-Points Bulletin, detailing criminals who must be picked up on your way to Dunking Doughnuts. Overall, this is a very amusing and addictive little game, although it has already appeared on the TNT compilation.

Unlike most arcade adventures, Escape from the Planet of the Robot Monsters doesn't take itself too seriously - thank goodness. The two main characters, Jake and Duke, are enlisted in an inter-planetary SWAT team who must travel to a robot-infested planet and rescue hundreds of beautiful young women - including the sultry Sarah Bellum MD. It seems that the prof and her colleagues have been captured by the robots who want to turn them into Robo-Zombies. The action takes place on a Marble Madness type landscape, although the inhabitants are a lot more hostile towards visitors. Loads of blasting makes for frenetic fun, and the added attraction of teamwork ensures this is one game that you can come back to and still have fun.

Similarly, if you play Vindicators you'd do well to coax a friend into joining you. You both take control of futuristic battle tanks which have to clear 14 space stations of alien infestation. A small amount of strategy is needed to ensure you don't run out of fuel, but mostly whoever gets the best power-ups lasts the longest.

Do you remember those old Spectrum games where there was limited colour and the characters moved an inch at a time? Well, now you can bring back those old memories with Cyberball, a sort of American football in the 21st century. Basically, Americans have finally realised the danger of their great sport and have designed robots to take the punishment instead. Apart from that, there's very little difference between this and an American football game programmed in BASIC on the Spectrum. Speed and graphics hold this game back, just look at the superior Mega Drive version.

Taking into account the fact that every compilation must have one duffer game on it, The Winning Team doesn't look too bad. But with all of the games either out now or on their way for £7.99 from Respray, you'd be a fool to spend £25 unless you liked at least three of the titles.

OPERATION WOLF

THE HIT SQUAD ● £7.99

Mind your backs, here come Ocean's Hit Squad to storm the charts and blow away the competition. In particular bad taste, they release Operation Wolf. Still, if you want a damn good, mindless blast, then here's your game.

DALEY THOMPSON'S OLYMPIC CHALLENGE

THE HIT SQUAD ● £7.99

Even when this originally came out, it was thought to be a bit dated. But three years on, Daley's Olympic Challenge is most positively dead. The trouble is that (most) gamers have progressed past the dubious skill of being able to waggle a joystick quickly left and right.

DT's (dubious) Challenge consists of ten events that take place over two days. Before entering the contest, you get the chance to earn cans of L'e'c'z'z'd by bench pressing, picking up weights, etc. The cans of fizz can be used during an event to give you an extra burst of energy, so use them wisely.

The first of the training sessions where we see Daley busy pumping iron to earn those precious cans of liquid energy.

The events are 100m sprint, long jump, shot-putt, high jump, 400m, 1500m, javelin, pole vault, discus and 110m hurdles. The ultimate aim is to score over 9000 points and become a true superhero. Admittedly, the graphics are quite neat, but they can't save a concept that's almost as old as Daley himself.

This conversion of the Taito coin-op was a massive success when it was released in 1988, putting all other shoot-'em-ups to shame with its detailed graphics and innovative perspective. You take the role of the super-tough American soldier whose task is to penetrate enemy territory and rescue American POWs. The game is split into six different stages, from an enemy camp to the jungle and finally to the airport where you must protect civilians trying to catch a lift on your B-52.

The arcade machine came complete with a cabinet-mounted uzi, but even without that you can have some great fun. A great range of graphics and some super digitised sound effects make for a blasting good time.

BUDGET TIPZ

SHADOW OF THE BEAST

Amiga

Also appearing on The Monster Pack. If you hold down the joystick FIRE button and the LEFT MOUSE button on the last title screen until you have to change the disk, you get infinite lives.

SUPER HANG-ON

Amiga

This racing game from The Hit Squad has some stonkin' cheats in it. When you get to the top of the novice leaderboard, type YH50 as your name. This makes your bike faster, giving it better road holding and a machine gun.

SKIDZ

Amiga

If you're still stuck on Gremlin's ecologically conscious game on the 16-Bit Hit Machine, then hold down ALT+C for infinite energy or ALT+M to skip levels.

INDIANA JONES

Amiga, Atari ST

Enter your name as SILLYMAN for infinite lives.

BATMAN

Amiga

Ocean's Hollywood Collection compilation contains four top-hungry games. I've dug up cheats for all of them. Type in JAMMMMM on the title screen for infinite lives in Batman.

GHOSTBUSTERS II

Amiga

When the Activision logo appears, press CTRL+ALT+H to give you infinite courage on level one and infinite slime on level two.

APB

Amiga, Atari ST

If you enter your name as ALF you get infinite demerits, making it infinitely easier to clear the streets of scum. Also, when on the title screen push up on the joystick and press FIRE. This lets you start on screen 16.

ROBOCOP

Amiga

Hold down SHIFT and type ALEX MURPHY. Press FIRE on the joystick and every time you press the LEFT MOUSE button your power will be restored to full.

XYBOTS

Amiga, Atari ST

Believe it or not the cheat is exactly the same as APB. Enter your name as ALF to get unlimited energy.

MIAMI CHASE

Amiga, Atari ST

To clear level one with hardly any damage to your car, just stay at the very top of the screen under the trees. Now hold the FIRE button down and drive backwards and forwards. It seems that all the enemy cars get attracted to you, making them easy targets.

SILKWORM

Amiga

One of the best shoot-'em-ups around is great value at £9.99. On the control select screen, press F10+HELP+FIRE for infinite lives. The keys 1 to 2 will select the level.

* If you've had enough of the Ninja Turtles then look out for MicroValue's next release, entitled Ninja Rabbits. It should be out now and will set you back two carrots, a lettuce and £6.99 on Amiga and ST, while PC owners have to shell out £9.99.

* Mirror Image are continuing to release some blasts from the past. The next in line for the new image is 3-D Pool, originally released by Firebird two years ago. All three 16-bit computers will get it for £9.99.

* As well as Operation Wolf, The Hit Squad are releasing Rambo III, IK+, Predator and Platoon. Is there no end to this violence? All on Amiga and ST at the normal Squad price of £7.99.

* Accolade are releasing yet another compilation, this time based around sports, and suitably titled Accolade Pro Sports Challenge. Featuring The Cycles, Powerboat, USA Offshore Superboat Racing, Jack Nicklaus' Greatest 18 Holes of Major Championship Golf and Jack Nicklaus' Major Championship Courses of 1989. If that little lot tickles your fancy then save up your £29.99 for the Amiga and PC versions now.

* Gremlin have finally given in to the pressure from the public and launched a new budget label called, strangely, GBH. (They said they wanted something with punch.) Six titles are planned for the initial launch, with prices in the £7.99-£9.99 bracket: Supercars, Footballer of the Year II, Impossible, Venus: the Fly Trap, Ultima Golf and Combo Racer. All titles are Amiga and Atari ST only, except for Ultima Golf which also appears on the IBM PC.

HOT

Suzy Uki

The Oriental orifice pulsates with more coin-op pleasures as Suzy Uki rides into town

Sumimasen for yet another month free from my hot slots, but now the redness has completely cleared up and the doctor says I can get straight back onto the streets. And so here I am, all rough and ready for action, and waiting with open legs to straddle the latest sticky side-shows to amuse and excite, in search of the ultimate pleasure experience.

The reduced space this month is due to my insistence on squeezing in "Big Boy" Boardman and his rabbit tale. As you all know, I've always got time for big throbbing intrusions into my column. In fact, here come a few muscley men to whisk me away right now.

ROLLING THUNDER 2

Namco

Many years ago, before I'd found the delights of Afterburner's vibrating seat, there was a horizontal, platform cop game called Rolling Thunder. Well the cop with a shot is back to deal a bit more deathly justice in Namco's Rolling Thunder 2. Of course the news of the return of this smart, suave, special agent Rolling Thunder soon had my attention. There's little that excites me more than an athletic young figure all dressed up in a police uniform. But it seems the young man is spoken for, as accompanying him on this adventure is his busty partner Lella. Still,

THE SIMPSONS

Konami

As I travelled the ga-sens of Hong Kong, I couldn't help bumping into little Bart Simpson all the time. My, that little chap doesn't half try it on. I'd hardly taken off my leather boots (as is the custom when entering someone's house), than he was trying to get the whips and chains out. Anyway, the young lad needed some instruction, so who was I to deny him? The next thing I knew, he had me prostrate in front of his new four-seater.

The Simpsons special cabinet features four seats behind a large bench in front of a 26-inch TV-style cabinet. The controls for each play-

I'm not complaining, the more the merrier.

The action is set in that increasingly popular year of 199X, where communications satellites orbiting some countries have mysteriously been disabled. The two coppers are sent off on their way to find out just what

STRIKEFORCE

Midway

They're tall. They're strong. They're primed for optimum pleasure. Oooh. Unfortunately, they are also green (but who minds when the lights are off?). Yes, this collection of creatures are actually lizards from outer space. And you know what they say about lizards' tongues...

Midway's Strikeforce takes you to the planet of Mega-Star Apocalypse, where 22 human captives are being held. The Saurian lizard-men are using the people for slave labour and slowly turning them into reptiles which they hope to use to invade Earth. You control a muscle-bound marine infantryman (of which I've much experience) equipped with the latest, most lethal weaponry. It's just a shame that these lizard-men are equipped with the most lethal claw swipe around. Thankfully, though, you also get some big jetfighters kitted out with some powerful combat weapons.

Big green men from outer space have captured 22 humans. Go in like Flint to rescue them from their captors.

The best blasting fun is had by grabbing a friend (preferably of the opposite sex) and getting them to play with you. Simultaneous action for all to see - it's always better in front of an audience. There are 22 Saurian planets to venture across, with you eventually ending up at the Mega-Star.

All this may sound like something you've played before, but take my word for it, there's no substitute for experience.

are housed within the four other members of the Simpsons family. Your objective is to rescue Maggie (the baby) from the diamond thieves who kidnaped her when she swallowed the diamond they had just nicked. Each family member has his or her own moves, which adds greatly to the fun. Bart can skateboard people over, Homer splash dives on them, Marge vacuums them up, and Lisa whips enemies with her skipping rope (my sort of girl).

As always, the best fun is had with a group of people. In fact, playing on your own is very lonely. But this machine should be so popular, you won't have any trouble making a few friends on the seats. There's also an upright version available, but I prefer to do it sitting down.

is going on, and to put a stop to it. As the world falls apart around them, Leila and Albatross (madaguenames) encounter innumerable weird, menacing creatures. Most of them look as if they come from another planet, wearing red gloves over their odd-coloured wet suits. In fact, this game got me a bit wet too. There is just so much action in this game, you'll be reaching for a towel to soak up the sweat.

At the root of the problem is an organisation called GERDRA, your old enemy from the original game. It's all familiar stuff, which is just what I like because you know just where to go to get maximum pleasure.

BRIDE OF PIN-BOT Williams

If Bugs' little birthday celebration didn't cure your twitchy fingers, then get your arms around The Machine: Bride of Pin-Bot — another great pinball game. As you smack the little balls around the table, the bride slowly comes to life before your eyes. The first shot up the Shuttle Ramp goes straight into her mouth, and she gobbles it up with pleasure. With a quick gulp, she soon opens her eyes to see who's tickled her fancy. And that someone should be you, as this is one of the most exhilarating machines around.

The whole table represents the bride's curvaceous body. If you manage to get your shiny balls onto any of her flashing erogenous zones, points galore are ready for the taking. A novel Multi-Ball mode doubles you (and her) pleasure, as you have to cope with two balls at once. Get both balls in her eyes and you could be in for a chance of getting this big girl away from her horrible husband Pin-Bot.

Up at the top-right corner, Pin-Bot keeps an eye on his bride and gives out extra bonuses if you manage to get your balls up her Shuttle Ramp when he asks. By the end of the day, I really envied this girl, there's even a shoot again option, depicted by a rocket with "One more time" written on it shooting up between her legs. Pass the yoghurt.

OL' BIG EARS

Julian "Big Boy" Boardman gets "hands-on" experience of one of Suzy's pin "balls"

Bugs Bunny is 50 this year. But the old fart still refuses to retire and he's keeping all his mates out with him. Their latest escapade is via a pinball machine. All your old favourites are here, from Foghorn Leghorn to the Tasmanian Devil and his missus. And who could forget Wile E. Coyote, Tweety Pie and the Roadrunner?

One of the good things about this machine is the way you score, it is really quite unpredictable. Your first run may give you 250K before you even get near a flipper, but the next ball may score no more than 10K before it sails in between your carrot-shaped flippers.

The scoring starts with Wile E. Coyote's plunger skill shot that can award up to 500K, if you are damn lucky. It will then either drop through into the very innovative inverted play area or bounce around a few scoring bumpers and come flying out towards the flippers.

The inverted play area — the slope goes the opposite way to the rest of the table with a flipper at the bottom — gives the chance to knock out the watchdog targets and light the Big Score on the Daffy Duck two-way captive ball. Move the ball from one end to the other then back again to get 500K. From there you try to hit the ball up and out along the Twisty Slide for anything up to one million points. If you're unlucky enough for the ball to go to the side of the flippers, do not fear: a few hits in the right places mean that Speedy Gonzales's Kick-Out will come into operation, saving the ball and sending it flying towards the Looney Tunes target banks. If you manage to light every letter then you get a cool million.

As if that wasn't enough, if you are skilful enough to get the ball up the ramp and into the Tasmanian Devil's Shopping Spree then you can win anything from 25K up to a free ball.

But no pinball game is complete without a stupidly huge bonus, in this case 50 million. It all revolves around a skill shot to blow out the candles on the cake. Getting the ball in the right hole will blow out a random number of candles. If on your third ball you blow out nine candles then the 50 million bonus will be lit and you have ten seconds to get the ball back in the hole to win the 50 million. Nowhere near as easy as it sounds because ten seconds is not a long time when your ball decides to gently roll down the table and you get told to "Watch it!" if you attempt a bit. I came close to getting the bonus a couple of times, my ball bounced out of the hole, but I have yet to actually see anyone do it.

Even when the last ball has whistled irrevocably past the flippers it is not over, then comes the Surprise Package. You can hit the left flipper to accept or the right flipper to decline and pass on to your opponent. The package can be a bonus of up to a million points for you, a penalty of a few thousand points, a gift of one million points to the next player, or the machine will swap your scores around. That can change the outcome of a game and it makes the machine all the more addictive.

With the sampled slogans from all your favourite cartoon characters, the excellently designed cabinet and a truly superb game design, it looks set to take the amusement halls, pubs and clubs by storm. The only things that stop me from playing it all the time are someone else getting there before me or the pub shutting, if you get a chance to play it, don't get tight about a mere 20p — Suzy Uki is never tight.

Sticky FINGERS

If there's one thing every games player should have (apart from a game), it's a joystick. Even in the depths of a so-called recession, joystick manufacturers are claiming that you've never had it so good. Multi-coloured, infra red, stopwatched, autofired, tea-making... Whatever you want, they've thought of it. But where do you start? It's a joystick jungle out there, so let RAZE guide you through

THE TEST

Each of the joysticks was tested on four types of game: a shoot-'em-up, arcade adventure, wrencher and simulation. The test took a minimum of 30 minutes for each game, totally at least two hours varied play for each stick. The totally test time was over 60 hours.

SHOOT-'EM-UP

Any joystick suitable for shoot-'em-ups should have fire buttons, and lots of 'em. Autofire is essential, where as turbo/rapid fire (which only sends a pulse of fire when a button is pressed) is always useful. Not all autofires operate at the same rate, so an adjustable one is even better.

CRUISER MULTI-COLOUR POWERPLAY

● £10.21

The long-running Cruiser series has gone multi-coloured. Anyone not familiar with their design will need to know that the base looks like a large foot with the toes cut off, the actual stick is positioned just forward of the heel and the two fire buttons on either side at the front. The four suckers offer stability but it soon becomes very uncomfortable to use unless held in the palm of your hand. An unusual feature allows you to adjust the tension of the stick at the base, helping ease the strain on your wrist.

CRUISER MULTI-COLOUR

Shoot-'em-up: The lack of corners on the base confuses orientation.

Arcade adventure: Lack of corners made it difficult to have complete control in a game where it's essential.

Wrencher: Performed well on DTCC. Tension adjustment maximises performance, and physically the stick held up well.

Simulation: The tight setting allowed for fine tuning of manoeuvres.

SURESHOT STANDARD SONMAX

● £11.19

This is a remarkably basic joystick jazzed up by a transparent base. It features one large, front fire button, angled towards you. The leaf-switch is unbelievably quiet, which often makes you wonder whether you've actually pressed it. Unlike the Cruiser, the curved shape doesn't hinder and the Standard fits nicely in your palm. Four micro-switches do the business on directions, but make for an unusually long travel.

SURESHOT STANDARD

Shoot-'em-up: Fairly average. The long travel doesn't make short sharp moves very easy.

Arcade adventure: Behaves well because it is less susceptible to little twitches that could put you off course.

Wrencher: The loose nature of the stick allows for a lot of future waggling.

Simulation: Not accurate enough for the fine operations required.

STAR PROBE DELUXE

● £14.99

The first of the four-button, auto-fire, jet-plot type of joystick to come our way from Cheetah. It features two fire buttons on the base and two on the shaft. The metal shaft triggers eight micro-switches making it far more sensitive and less liable to wear than a stick with just four. Initially it feels a little tacky but a few hours play convinces you of its solidity.

STAR PROBE DELUXE

Shoot-'em-up: Hopeless. Far too loose to offer any accuracy of control.

Arcade adventure: Much the same story, often taking three or four attempts to get the right positioning.

Wrencher: Not much resistance to give yourself any injuries, should stand up to any hammering you give it.

Simulation: Poor. It takes a lot of hard work to get it to perform the way you want.

DELTA JET

PRODUCT 2000 ● £9.95

The base is shaped a lot like the shuttle vehicle from the original Star Trek series, and as such is pretty uncomfortable. On top of this is a micro-switched fire button, behind the button is a bulbous growth which does apparently hide the four directional micro-switches. Out of this lump comes a steel shaft that goes to the centre of an uncomfortable tapered square handle. A reasonable performer let down by its design.

DELTA JET

Shoot-'em-up: It doesn't improve your performance, but it goes nowhere near hindering it.

Arcade adventure: The loose, self-centring design is surprisingly useful.

Wrencher: I scored my best times on this joystick because of the aggressive self-centring. But will the nylon shaft take the strain...

Simulation: Gives quite a light touch which is what you need for gentle positioning of an aircraft.

CRYSTAL SEGA

POWERPLAY ● £13.26

Based on the much-loved – by the RAZE team anyway – Crystal. Well, I say based on but it is in fact identical, just changed to be compatible with the Master System (and coloured black to make it look cool). It performs superbly but my only complaint is that it would be nice to be able to switch buttons on: and two around for left- and right-handed preferences.

CRYSTAL SEGA

Shoot-'em-up: One of the most accurate and responsive joysticks available today.

Arcade adventure: Again the accuracy, despite only having four micro-switches, shines through.

Wrencher: Feels a little spongy, but not supple enough to take the stress.

Simulation: Zooming around the race track was no problem with this little number.

SX CHALLENGER CONTRIVER

● £35.75

Infra red joysticks are fine in principle, but unlike some TV and video remotes, you can't just point this one anywhere and be sure of it working. You spend too much time ensuring the receiver will pick up the signals, which is a pity as the stick itself is a good one and highly specified – it can even work on any machine, including the Mega Drive. The proliferation of fire buttons makes it ideal for either left- or right-handed people, and the fire buttons can be set up to either fire continuously or send out one shot at a time.

SX CHALLENGER

Shoot-'em-up: Reasonable and responsive enough for the average player.

Arcade adventure: Quite useful if you can manage to keep the signal going.

Wrencher: Responds well to gentle banging but durable enough to take the harder stuff.

JETFIGHTER

QUICKJOY ● £13.95

This Chinese-manufactured stick has a hand grip that lives up to its name; it does indeed look like a jetfighter's control stick. There's an index finger fire button in front of the large head, which itself houses another fire button and the speed controls for each button's autofire. It is designed solely for one-handed use as the base is geared to the optimum placement of the suckers rather than the unused hand.

JETFIGHTER

Shoot-'em-up: The response from the four micro-switches is a little sluggish.

Arcade adventure: The slow response can be worked to your advantage.

Wrencher: Worryingly flimsy and totally unusable as it chafes your thumb after a while.

Simulation: A good, accurate response helped by the easy location of the switches.

ARCADE POWER STICK

SEGA ● £34.95

This would be far more at home in an arcade than cluttering up your front room. It may be expensive, but the solid construction and impressive design justify the high price. Above each button is its MegaFire switch which enables autofire, the rate of which is variable by a slider. The shaft is very sturdy, with the round head allowing total accuracy. Like other Sega hardware, though, this is obviously overpriced. Even so, it's very impressive.

ARCADE POWER STICK

Shoot-'em-up: Very responsive and particularly useful with the MegaFire option.

Arcade adventure: No effort at all is required to get all those awkward diagonals.

Wrencher: The stick can handle it, but the positioning of the buttons can lead to wrist ache.

125+ CHEETAH ● £9.99

This leaf-sprung effort from Cheetah, more innovators than market researchers, should never have seen the light of day. It offers flimsiness next to lackiness and lack of control next to discomfort. In short, it stinks. For history buffs, Cheetah also produced a "Special" version for the Spectrum which featured a rotating shaft. It was supposed to be used in tank games etc, but sadly no software company utilised the unique feature.

125+

Shoot-'em-up: If you are not careful, you'll find yourself wandering all over the place.

Arcade adventure: If you manage to get through that small diagonal gap first time, you are very lucky.

MICROJET

PRODUCT 2000 ● £10.99

This three-button aggressive looking jet pilot type stick is one of the better

Product 2000 designs. If you are a one-handed, suckered to the table type player then this could well be the stick for you.

There's an index finger trigger, a repeating thumb trigger and a single shot button just to the left of that, which will make it difficult to reach for left-handed players. The grip can be a little uncomfortable after a while, the design makes your palms sweat, and the base does not lend itself to being held at all.

MICROJET

Shoot-'em-up: Good response and high level of accuracy.

Arcade adventure: Very easy to get through the tricky sections onscreen.

Wrencher: Too uncomfortable for long-term usage, also a little weak.

PC POWERPLAY

CHEETAH ● £24.99

Sadly another duffer from Cheetah. Firstly, the design seems to make it look the wrong way around; everyone who used it tried holding it with the fire buttons to the top to instead of to the left. Secondly, this design is also very tacky, far too much red plastic to appeal to the average PC owner. And finally, it is of such low quality construction that even when calibrated it never stays central. And why so expensive?

PC POWERPLAY

Shoot-'em-up: Next to hopeless. Inconsistent feel to the stick.

Arcade adventure: Not enough accuracy to help the gameplay.

Wrencher: Uncomfortable handle will hurt your palm.

POWERPLAY ● £20.42

No fancy frills or tackiness here, just an inappropriate name, not a simple, straightforward buff-coloured joystick that matches the PC very nicely. The tight, solid construction make this one of the most reliable joysticks on the market — it's the only one RAZE ever uses on the PC. Two fire buttons, two axis adjusters and a compact stick that offers control in any situation.

IBM PC JOYSTICK

Shoot-'em-up: Not bad, but long travel.

Arcade adventure: Once you get used to the nuances of an analogue joystick, it performs reasonably well.

Wrencher: Comfortable grip and solid steel shaft make for a usable wrencher.

GUNSHOT II

PRODUCT 2000 ● £6.95

Just two pound more than the Gunshot with a couple of extras. Firstly, there's the essential autofire option, sensibly mounted at the front of the base. There's a trigger button too, which is a necessity with today's fast shoot-'em-ups. The base is in a diamond shape which makes it a little awkward to use as a handheld, and aesthetically it looks terrible. Cheap and unappealing — but then so's a Citroen 2CV and look how many people bought those!

Shoot-'em-up: Performs well if all you want is left, right and fire.

Arcade adventure: Response is slow due to the long travel and loose diagonals.

Wrencher: Tough, but the travel means a very sore shoulder.

Simulation: Too loose to use in dogfights where all the directions are constantly accessed.

STARFIGHTER QUICKSHOT ● £35.99

Another infra red offering, but this time from the BMW of the joystick manufacturers. This package comes with TWO remote joypads, one receiver and is compatible with Amiga, Atari ST, Sega, Nintendo, the lot (except PC). Each controller has two fire buttons, which may prove a restriction on complex Mega Drive games. There's autofire, power on/off (four AAA size batteries), a two-way button for select and start and a slow motion switch for those tricky moments. Its range is 20 feet, which is significantly better than any other infra red controller. Ideal for folks with more than one machine.

STARFIGHTER

Shoot-'em-up: Nicely responsive, but watch where your thumb is going.

Arcade adventure: Four-way controllers are never accurate enough but this does well.

NI-5 QUICKJOY ● £15.95

Undoubtedly the better handling of the two Nintendo sticks, without all the nice lights and multi-fire buttons.

The NI-5 still has the thumb and trigger fire buttons, variable speed autofire but just two LED indicators. However, there are only six micro-switches in there, but this doesn't affect its performance. It's more convenient to use as a hand-held, as opposed to the table-top N-Pro. Although not as visually appealing as the N-Pro, at four quid cheaper, I'd recommend this to a Nintendo owner every time.

NI-5

Shoot-'em-up: Dial-a-speed firing makes shooting the bad guys dead easy.

Arcade adventure: Precision movements are very easy to get out of this hand-held.

good, it also performs well under pressure. Although suited more to hand-held use (no suckers), the small footprint means it doesn't tilt all over the place when on a table top. The two yellow buttons at the front of the base are square in shape with circular indentations, and the responsive click when pressed ensures you can safely rest a thumb on them without setting them off.

COMPETITION PRO STAR POWERPLAY ● £18.34

A very striking stick for the Master System, especially as the handle and fire buttons are chrome-plated, er, sprayed with a tacky silver paint.

(Ideal for vain gamers who like looking at themselves while they play.) Includes autofire and a slow motion feature – only slightly more than the boring Sega pad. The autofire is extremely rapid, so you won't even need Sega's rapid fire module. The robust exterior conceals an even more robust interior, complete with top quality micro-switches.

ZIPSTIK SUPER PRO

Shoot-'em-up: No-one in the office has got further on SWIV with any other joystick.

Arcade adventure: Those diagonals are a little too easy to fall into.

SUPER BOARD

QUICKJOY ● £17.95

If there's one thing that annoys me more than people not supplying plugs on appliances, it has to be companies that don't stick free bat-series in a product that needs them. That said, the stopwatch isn't really worth spending 50p on batteries for — can you think of a use for it? The fire buttons are also a moot point. Although there are numerous buttons on both the base and the shaft, you can't actually use both sets simultaneously! The speed control on the autofire is also a bit redundant as the firing doesn't seem to vary. Above all, the thing's far too big, zapping up as much room as a console on its own!

SUPERBOARD

Shoot-'em-up: Quick movement is impossible with this giant of joysticks.

SEGA POWERMATE

TEQNICHE ● £16.99

If you can't save up for Sega's Power Stick, then this is the next best thing. Personally, I think this robust table-top stick looks a lot slicker than the Sega's black stick, although the light colour doesn't really complement the Mega Drive. It features a slow motion control (which acts like pausing and unpausing the game very quickly), and two extra buttons on top of the SELECT, START, etc for a mysterious "future use". The Turbofire buttons are all adjustable, and come with lights to indicate their operation. The stick feels damn good on most games, the only drawback being the design and placement of the much used button A. This is too small and too far away from the normal size a and c buttons. Great value compared to Sega's expensive equivalent.

SEGA POWERMATE

Shoot-'em-up: Loads of firing options, although button A is too small.

Arcade adventure: Superbly accurate and a pleasure to use for hours on end.

The five fire buttons (two base, three shaft) are extremely responsive and come with autofire. Only one query: why the gross red base?

STING-RAY

LOGIC-3 ● £14.99

The Sting-Ray is a dedicated hand-held stick. (Try balancing this on a table top and it would probably fall in your coffee.) It's a lightweight stick and is designed with comfort in mind. The handgrip is moulded to fit comfortably in a normal size hand, with the trigger button ideally placed to accommodate the index finger. Similar to Konix's top-selling Navigator, the Sting-Ray looks and plays a lot better. If you like this type of design, then you'll do no better than the Sting-Ray.

STING RAY

Shoot-'em-up: Lots of intricate sweeping in and out of enemies was relievingly simple.

EXTERMINATOR CHEETAH ● £6.99

Cheetah seem to have covered the market on cheap and not-too-cheerful joysticks. The Exterminator has two buttons, one on the base and one on the top of the shaft. It's extremely uncomfortable to use as a hand-held stick and is very awkward to use on the table top. The long shaft doesn't inspire confidence in its life span, although the fire button on the base was the first thing to pack up with us. Still, at £6.99 what are you expecting?

EXTERMINATOR

Shoot-'em-up: No autofire – unless it breaks down, like ours, which wouldn't stop firing!

SEGA POWER PAD

TECHNIC ● £8.99

This pad's shape is identical to that of the original Mega Drive pad. The only additions are three turbo buttons and a slow motion switch underneath (which is nothing more than a rapid fire pause). The START button has been moved to a more central position between the four-way controller and the buttons. It feels heavier in the hand than the original and the buttons, in a garish orange and blue, don't lend themselves to the black styling of the Mega Drive and official Sega products. Apart from that it is identical in every way to the original controller. The only question is, do you want to pay £8.99 for the very useful turbo buttons and a slightly irrelevant slow motion?

SEGA POWER PAD

Shoot-'em-up: Accurate and responsive enough for highly skillful players.

Arcade Adventure: Four-way controllers are notoriously difficult for getting those swift diagonal moves with any accuracy.

A NEW BREED OF HIRO

Thanks to Gremlin, we are back in that land of obvious names, where Hiro tries to defeat Havok who sends out Cannonfodder the soldier to try and defeat him. All this happened because a bloke called Ohsorryladi'vedoneitagain smashed the sword and the son of the original hero, Hiro, called Hiro Hiroson hopes to follow in his father's footsteps by retrieving the bits of the sword and beating Havok at his own game by causing a lot of trouble, or havoc, all to save a nation of people collectively known as the Jeezwe'lbesogratefulifousaveus in the land of Thraxx.

Anyway, the point is that those green people at Gremlin were so happy that we gave them the much sought after RAZE Rave for their superb product Switchblade II, they just fell at our feet and begged us to run a competition - er, well, sort of. So we ummed and we ahed - after all there are a lot of demands on our competition space - but we eventually gave in after they promised us loads of free booze next time we visited their huge Sheffield headquarters (which are so big, they have their own postal district - right, Mr Gremlin?).

They've generously donated one of those nice big JVC ghetto-blasters with a CD player, radio, cassette recorder, remote control, foot massager and teasmade. (OK, so I lied about the radio.)

Just answer these questions, fill out the form, and send the whole lot off to I want to be called "Cleverbugger", RAZE, Unit 3, 7 Back Street, Trowbridge, Wiltshire BA14 6LH.

BLAST OUT THE NEIGHBOURS WITH A JVC COMPACT DISC

HIRO APPLICATION

I promise to buy Switchblade II, which is after all the whole point of this over-hyped competition, but may forget in which case I'd like the JVC ghetto-blasters in which to drown my sorrows.

THE COMPLETE COLOUR SOLUTION

Vidi ... No 1 in UK & Europe (Leading the way forward)

£179

Get the most out of your Amiga by adding:

"The Complete Colour Solution"

The Worlds ultimate creative leisure product for your Amiga. Capture dynamic high resolution images into your Amiga in less than one second.

And Look No Filters

Images can now be grabbed from either colour video camera, home VCR or in fact any still video source. The traditional method of holding three colour filters in front of your video camera is certainly a thing of the past. Because Vidi splits the RGB colours electronically there are no focussing or movement problems experienced by some of our slower competitors. Lighting is also less of an issue as light is not being shut out by lens filters. Put all this together with an already proven Vidi-Amiga/VidiChrome combination and achieve what is probably the most consistent and accurate high quality 4096 colour images ever seen on the Amiga.

The colour solution is fully compatible with all Amiga's from a standard A500 to the ultimate A3000. No additional RAM is required to get up and running.

You will see from independent review comments that we are undoubtedly their first choice and that was before the complete solution was launched. If you have just purchased your Amiga and are not sure what to buy next, then just read the comments or send for full review and demo disk.

*Actual unretouched digitised screenshot*

Features ...

- Grab mono images from any video source
- Capture colour images from any still video source.
- Digitise up to 16 mono frames on a 1meg Amiga.
- Animate 16 shade images at different speeds.
- Create windows in both mono & colour.
- Cut & Paste areas from one frame to another.
- Hardware and software brightness & contrast control.
- Choice of capture resolutions standard & Dynamic interlace.
- Full Palette control.
- Add text or draw within art package.

Amiga Computing: The best technicolour treatment. Vidi must be one of the most exciting peripherals you can buy for your Amiga.

Micro Mart: "In the flesh" When I first saw Vidi show last September it looked to be the answer to a frustrated Digi View owner's dreams - in fact to see pictures appearing on screen without the customary two minute wait seemed almost too good to be true. I have consistently produced more good quality pictures in the short time I have had Vidi than I ever did with DigiView.

Zero: Now under normal circumstances cheap usually means poor quality but this is not the case with Rombo. Why? cos Vidi-Amiga and I've tried them all.

Amiga Format: Where quality is concerned, Vidi produces some of the best results I've seen on any digitiser at any price.

Amiga User International: The latest addition to the RomboKit is called Vidi-RGB and brings this already impressive package to the realms of totally amazing CONCLUSION: Who will find this Amiga useful? The answer to this is almost anyone with a video recorder or camera and a passing interest in graphics.
