I've got this here column and a halfa-dozen other things I've had to rush and send in after a trip to England/Las Vegas. I've got to learn how to schedule this crap. Yeah, naughty word eh? Just don't try and edit it or you'll end up with a pen in yer neck, pal. Anyway, I'm late as usual, seems I always have been. On the way back from Vegas I thought I would actually break this twenty-seven year trend. I had a layover in Phoenix, of which I haven't been to since this decade began. I've been going back to Phoenix for the past five years; I've just never seemed to actually get around to leaving Maryland. It was only two hours that I'd have, but the airport is fairly close to Mill Avenue, the section of Phoenix/Tempe that everyone that's 18 and has a skateboard must legally hang out at. Thought I'd be able to take a cab out, grab a coffee at the Coffee Mill and perhaps visit an old friend at the Graffiti Shop. I'd actually have the time to do this. I'd arrived at the airport early, and got one of the first boarding passes issued. But of course, no plane was in sight. It was kinda' like that TV commercial for whatever new snake oil cure they have for insomnia now; you know, "If I get to sleep right now I'll still get three good hours of sleep, blah, blah, blah..." Except I had substituted destinations for the hours of sleep in question. Got to the point where I would have been happy just to step outside for a smoke, just to be back in Phoenix. Can you really, legally say you've been somewhere if it was only in the airport? Needless to say I had to settle for an airport bar, a full smoke, and half a Heineken instead of my originally planned reunion with the city I remembered so fondly. Big-ass tragedy. I don't know why I'm so fixed on that town yet won't commit to just buying the stupid ticket out, Christ; it's only a few bucks on SouthWest. Don't ask what any of this rambling has to do with GameShark, there is no link. Just memories of hour upon hour of Super Mario 3, Fester's Quest and whatever other games at J-Bud and Jeff's apartment.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN...AND THOSE LOVELY GAMESHARKS!

Accompanied by really bad beer, Slayer or Social Distortion and a girl that I ignored way too much. Back when things took place outside of the house and definitely outside of any lame job I might have held that week. Hmmm, guess all of that latenight game playing actually did pay off. Pretty strange.

editor's note

Chanukah...or happy whatever-holiday-it-is-you-might-be-celebrating during December! If you're not careful, I'll hang the stockings over the chimney with extra care and start singing "Jolly Ol' Saint Nicholas" at the top of my lungs until I explode! Or implode which ever comes first. I just love the Christmas season! The only time of the year where people (except CodeBoy) actually try to be nice, courteous and polite to one another...hmmmmmmm, notice I said "TRY!"

Whew, now that I've gotten that out of my system, let's talk business. To start I'd like to inform you that we've given our 900code line (1-900-773-7427) a slight makeover. Now you'll find it's updated with more codes, it's easier to differentiate between the Fs and Ss inside the codes and the guy talking doesn't have a lisp! (I hate to say it, but the last guy sounded like he was speaking with a mouthful of marbles...those big, devastator marbles! Sorry Mike.) Anywho, the code line's not all we've changed. Keep an eve out in stores for the GameShark CDX ® for the PlayStation® game console! And you quessed it; IT WORKS WITH THE 9000! I repeat it is compatible with the 9000 series PlayStation! You guys didn't think we'd leave you out in the cold to play these games without cheats did you? Sure, we like to see you suffer...but we couldn't hold out too long!

Be sure to keep a look out this season for our newest lineup of Dreamcast products. Nothing enhances gameplay like an InterAct product, no matter what season it is.

Now for something a little different... What kind of idiot would actually buy into this? For some twisted reason, which I can not and should not explain, I was searching EBAY the other day and came across an ad for the PlayStation GameShark 2.41 Upgrade CD. Someone was trying to sell an Upgrade CD on EBAY, and people had already begun bidding on it! Last time I checked it was selling for $6.50! $6.50 for a product that we supply to everyone, for FREE!? I understand that customer service may not be one of the fastest ways to get an upgrade, but please people, don't EVER buy an upgrade CD! Unless of course, it upgrades your toaster and/or hair style or something.

The holiday season is the greatest time of the year, no doubt about it!

Don't forget to:

The Voice of GameShark Fans.

Seems as though I have become a customer service representative for this installment of the Mailbox. I don't mind, I'm always glad to help! So let's see what we got...

Dear person,

I have one of your controllers and it seems to be malfunctioning. It seems as though my Chihuahua, Tiny, has chewed thru the cord. can you do anything for me?

Sincerely, Hungry

Dear Hungry,

As stated in your product's warranty, Interact Accessories does not cover negligence, abuse, misuse, accidental damage or act of dog. Nor will InterAct Accessories repair products that are damaged due to these conditions.

If you're still interested in replacing your InterAct product, we can offer you a new unit at a discounted price in exchange for your defective unit. Please contact customer service to get all the details!

Dear InterAct,

I have a GameShark for the PlayStation game console, but I want the GameShark Pro. Can I upgrade, or am I stuck?

Sincerely, Behind The Times

Dear BTT,

I apologize for the inconvenience but we have discontinued manufacturing the GameShark Pro for PlayStation. However, we do manufacture the GameShark CDX®. If you would like to upgrade to the most powerful GameShark available, please mail your GameShark to customer service with $35. We'll be sure to return the newest version available upon its arrival.

Please read on for more info regarding the GameShark CDX...

Dear InterAct.

My gameshark pro always seems to freeze up on such games as FF7 and FF8 and its starting to do this on other games. It seems that when I get to the "new game or continue" screen it won't work--- I chose continue (I do have a game saved with gameshark codes activated) and it says that it can't read the memory card but without the Shark it works fine. When I choose the new game it starts and works for about five seconds and then the screen freezes as the music plays on. I'm baffled, if there is any way this can be fixed please help I would hate to have to go out and spend another fifty bucks if I don't have to. Thanks for anything you can do.

Sincerely, Totally Confused

Dear TC,

You have experienced a very unusual problem. There are a few things to try. 1.) Certain codes will only work from the beginning of the game on. I believe FF7 is one of those games. Loading a game with the cheats turned on may cause a lockup. Try testing the code(s) from the very beginning to see if this is the case. 2.) Be sure to use codes from an authorized InterAct publication. Dangerous Waters, Big Wave and www.gameshark.com are the only InterAct developed sources for codes. If the codes you are using are from a different source, they may be untested and may not work correctly. 3.) Test one code at a time from the beginning of the game. If you do not experience a lockup or something unusual, the code should be okay. If something out of the ordinary does occur most likely the code(s) is invalid and should be removed from the Sharks memory immediately!

Great question, thank you!

Got a question? We'd like to hear from you.

Title: Rippin Riders
Developer: UEP
Systems
Publisher: Sega
Format: CD
of Players: 1-2
Difficulty: Moderate
Available: Now

Oh yeah, it's all coming back now. Misty airs over snowy ravines, rooftop riding and smacking face-first into sheer cliff walls before tumbling newly-bashed-in-head over compound-fractured-heels. Only this time the graphics are as great as the gameplay. The original installation from UEP Systems, Coolboarders, was the cause of many missed deadlines in our office, and led to the eventual banishment of my good buddy Jay to the California office, as he could not face the daily punishment of going up against my stylin' lines. It's only fitting that Jay will be gracing our Maryland office once again to face the unbeatable runs of the CodeBoy on UEP's newest release on the Dreamcast, Rippin' Riders. 'Tis a tragedy that they can't go on name recognition; as 989 now has the rights to the title, and the wrongs to the game, of the Coolboarders series, but Rippin' Riders should have no problem catching on just as the first did.

The trick technique, as far as I can tell, is identical to the original, dealing more with timing and precise angles than with button combo mid-air maneuvering. Not a simple system to get used to at all, but once mastered the excitement of pulling off a 1440 Misty air over a bottomless chasm is damn near aneurysm inducing. It's not just pressing X+O at the opportune time, it's calculating your rotations and grab, while factoring in your flips, all on the way to the jump, not during.

The only thing that really sucked about the original version of Coolboarders was the graphics. Gameplay can certainly make up for poor graphics but there's no need to at this point. Rippin' Riders has a very fast feel to it as you progress through the levels. By the time I was on only the third course there were points where I was just guessing as I could not process the information quick enough, or maybe I was just blind in one eye. Regardless, the speed of the game, with the different textures of the ground, and the beautiful backgrounds really made it hard to pick out any flaws. There were a few minor problems with the collision detection, but the major flaw I found was a bit or two of slowdown, for no apparent reason. Whatever, I made it through the other systems plaqued with mystery slow motion sections; for what is delivered these very few spots of drag can be easily overlooked. Definitely a very fluid game, if I had to compare it would graphically resemble the Nintendo 64 title, 1080 Snowboarding.

I can't say for sure, as I've had but a night and a good part of today on the game, but there are a few hidden goodies as well. The Snowman returns, as well as another hidden character. There are extra boards available as well, of which I have, at this point, only earned one or two. But as far as I can tell this is much like the original, and there will be extra boards for each of the three types; Alpine, All-Around and FreeStyle. As for the amount of courses, I can say at least six, but that's as far as I've gotten today. Perhaps a dozen including the half-pipes that are available, see for yourself.

I can't give this title a strong enough endorsement, you must play this game if you've ever played any snowboarding games. It takes more than just a run or two to get used to as well, but the payoff and the replay-ability tower above any other snowboarding titles. Much like Tony Hawk for the PlayStation, it takes a while to get your tricks down, but there's enough to the game that just racing down the mountain like an avalanche is a trip, let alone pulling off crazy airs. I can't wait for Jay to get back to the office, we're gonna' have some fun.

There's an array of different players, each with varying skills.

Title: Scrabble
Developer: Rune Craft
Publisher: Hasbro
Interactive

Format: CD # of Players: 1-4 Difficulty: Moderate Available: Now

Scrabble is...well, it's Scrabble. If you're familiar with the board game, you won't be surprised by much of the virtual version. If you're not familiar with the board game...where have you been for the past 15 years?

The game interface is overall, fairly sound. The menus are easy to navigate and the in-game functions are intuitive and keep a regular flow to the game. The only complaint that I have here is that you cannot zoom out to view the entire board, but rather have to move the camera around to view a section at a time.

There is an interesting Solitaire mode and a time consuming Tournament mode to add some flavor to the letter placing madness.

And if you'd rather not go insane while playing, mute the TV and put on a CD. The graphics are crisp and add to the realistic overall feel of the game. You can actually see the wood grain patterns on the letter blocks. At times I was so immersed in the experience I actually felt like I was playing a board game.

Overall, Scrabble does what it does well. If you want to play a board game on your PlayStation, go get Monopoly. If you already have Monopoly, and you want another game, go get Scrabble. If you're just looking for some entertainment from your PlayStation, you may want to look elsewhere.

Upwards, downwards, diagonally or across-no matter how you look at it, Scrabble's an O.K. game.

savior Speaks/Strategy Guide

Well I've just returned from a brief trip to Wengland, and if I learned one thing while I was there, it's that people talk funny in other countries. Oh yeah, I also learned that it's better to be in the US if you're a gamer. Flipping through the UK mags, talking to some gamers, walking through the local shops, you notice that the "New Releases" are mostly games that we've been playing for months. They do have better-looking women than us, though...and more of them, too! So I guess it all evens out.

Back to the games, though, who's excited for this holiday season? NINTENDO 64 faithful will finally get their hand at Tony Hawk's Pro Skater, as well as an update to Excitebike and a new Castlevania. Of course there is the obligatory slew of PlayStation games including Tomb Raider 4, Twisted Metal 4, Tomorrow Never Dies, Vandal Hearts 2...should I go on. And finally we come to the DreamCast. At last the hardcore RPG gamer will get something on the most powerful console to sink his teeth into. Evolution, Climax Landers and Seventh Cross are all scheduled to be released before Christmas.

So take a moment this holiday season, as you peel the cellophane off of your new games, and think of all the poor blokes abroad in merry old England who won't be seeing those titles for weeks to come. Oh and on a final note, if you are ever in the U.K. and someone offers you a fag, don't worry that you're caught up in some black market, sex slave trading scheme...they're just offering you a cigarette!

On that note, look, an all new feature inside this issue of DW! A strategy guide. Granted it's not the entire guide (we wouldn't want to spoil it for you), however we have a map and a walkthrough of the first area of Resident Evil 3: Nemesis. So, keep reading!

Resident Evil 3: Nemesis

September 28th - Daylight

Walk down the path and jump onto and over the crate.

Now inside the warehouse, you can pick up first aid spray and bullets on the bottom floor. Then go up the stairs and to the right. Up the stairs again, down the path and through the door (01) into the save room. Grab the key on the wall by the door. There is also some gunpowder A in the cabinet and some typewriter tape on the desk. Leave the save room, head back around and down the stairs. Go all the way down the walkway to the exit door (02). Leave the warehouse.

Walk down the alley and through the door (03). Walk to the left and then through the door (04). Walk down the path 'til you see a gray door (05) on your right. Open the door and go down the stairs. Pick up the lighter fluid from the shelf and the shotgun from the rotting corpse. Go back up the stairs and out the door. Make a right out of the door and then the first left. Walk down the path, pick up the green herbs along the way if you want to, and enter the door (06) at the end. Walk down the path, making a right at the broken down cab, until you see two crates blocking a set of stairs. Climb up on the crates and grab the map from the wall. Climb the stairs and grab the green herbs if you want them. Come back down off of the crates and go to your left, continuing down the path 'til you come to a brown door (07). Enter the door and take this path to the first right, down the stairs. Walk to another set of stairs and then to another brown door (08).

Now inside the bar, grab the ammo from the cash register, the postcard from the bar, and the lighter from the pay phone. Go back out of the bar through the back door (the way you came in (08)). Go back down the stairs, through the alley and up the stairs. Make a right at the top of the steps and then you have to choose which path you will take at the fork just ahead.

For the rest of the walkthrough, be sure to check issue 23 due out in January.

Yeah, don't know how I got scammed into this plug, but I bet they'll never ask again. Either that or it will be altered by my dear friend the Ghost Editor. Less-the-none, we've gotten ourselves a new host for our codeline. 1-900-773-7427, our lovely and talented assistant Andy. Though you may think that our codeline is just for codes you'll be jotting down numbers to the endlessly monotonous drone of one of the most recent victims of internal restructuring. But, not only do we have codes, we have our new code host Andy, and he's well worth every penny. Hackers Heaven

Learn How To Hack Like A Pro, From The Pros

Okay, it's that time of the month again! Time for your next installment of Hacker's Heaven, the forum for those trying to hack GameShark codes... "hackers" if you will.

One of the most received questions I have received, even to this day, is "Why can't I hack codes for certain games?" One customer bluntly put it. "For example: Final Fantasy 8" the gentleman continued, "Every time I try to use the Code Generator on said game, it seems to lock up. Forcing me to restart the game, every time!" Well, I have to be honest with you folks, this is one of those classic cases of "Lockupatosis" or "Incompatabilitis." For reasons beyond our control (like anything is under OUR control), certain games just can not be hacked. Now I say "beyond our control" because any one game can have thousands, even millions of lines of code. Thus, searching for one single line of code could take days, or even weeks. In the worst case, you could search for no reason and never find a code. So, I recommend one of two things in this case: A.) lose your grip on reality by hacking for hours, upon hours on end or-B.) just take your losses, remove the game from your system and slowly back away...SLOWLY!

In other cases the occasional lock-up may just be caused by a bad code in the Generator. To make a long story short, the GameShark "overwrites" the code written in the CD's programming. I guess you could say it tricks the system into thinking one value is actually another. Invalid codes may have just one incorrect character in the address, causing the GameShark to confuse the system, thus locking it up. In any case, entering an invalid code into the GameShark system will most likely cause a lock-up. Sometimes you'll still may be able access the Shark and delete any code(s) that might have been entered. However, there are those rare cases in which the Shark has been damaged by this evil code. In such cases, please contact our Consumer Service department for details regarding our reprogramming/upgrade service.
