BEAVIS AND BUTT-HEAD™

omewhere in the midst of the manicured shrubbery and above-ground pools of suburbia lurk two easily-amused teenagers who are sorely lacking in motivation, depth, and of course, girlfriends. They're Beavis and Butt-Head, MTV's first two dimensional personalities and the stars of MTV's original half-hour animated series. Each episode finds the duo embarking on a truly twisted adventure, ranging from the Monster Truck Heavy Metal Tactor Pull Thrashathon to a credit card spendathon at the Mall, or perhaps a day at Burger World fixing up some mouse burgers and french flies. Add in television parodies, lampoons of classic music videos and "really cool" footage of disasters and diseases, and you can see why every day promises something new and different in the low rent, low - IQ world of MTV's Beavis and Butt-Head.

KEY FEATURES

- Unique Beavis and Butt-Head style animation
- Challenging platform/adventure gameplay
- Sampled Beavis and Butt-Head voices, quotes and laughter

BLOODSHOT

In the tradition of Doom comes the most dangerous game to date: Bloodshot. Set in a hostile space station environment with an alien presence on board, Bloodshot is not to be played but experienced. Prepare for high adrenaline rollercoaster ride as you attempt to eradicate the alien occupancy from the station by setting short fuse explosives in key positions and then having to escape the blast radius yourself before detonation.

Set in the year 2049 you must battle your way through 12 levels and detonate the Plasma nodes on each level. There is also a 2 player team or battle option, which operates on a split screen view that does not compromise on speed or detail in the slightest.

Utilising new graphic manipulation technology to create a 3-D environment and added special effects in explosions and enemies along with a moddy, scene setting score Bloodshot is a finely tuned game. Bloodshot is set to be one of the first in a long line of games of this type, and you can tell will go down as one of the better ones.
