ON THE MOVE

RIAA HI-TECH TARGETS CD THEFT: The Recording Industry Association of America (RIAA) announced this week that the major U.S. record companies are prepared to move forward in assessing the implementation of an anti-theft technology on compact discs as recommended by the National Association of Recording Merchandisers. Last month the NARM Loss Prevention Committee revised its criteria for Electronic Article Surveillance (EAS) source tagging, and its actions were unanimously affirmed by NARM's board of directors. Based upon this revised criteria, NARM reiterated its recommendation of acousto-magnetic EAS technology.

One original criterion required that the EAS technology "must have no adverse effect on pre-recorded audio or video product." In 1993, the six major music distribution companies expressed concern that acousto-magnetic EAS technology degrades the sound quality of pre-recorded cassette product to an unacceptable degree. The revised criteria permits the companies to limit the placement of the EAS tags to CDs, which do not experience any sound degradation as a result of the activation or deactivation of the acousto-magnetic technology.

ATLANTIC 'TAGS' KALLMAN: The Atlantic Group has established a new label, TAG Recordings, to be based in New York City, announced AG president Val Azzoli, and Craig Kallman has been named its president. Kallman will continue serving as president of the Atlantic-distributed Big Beat label which he founded in 1987. Azzoli also announced that Kallman had been upped to sr. v.p., Atlantic Records.

TAG will employ a core staff of people with expertise in A&R, marketing, promotion, publicity and sales and selected Atlantic artists will move over to the new label. Included will be Jawbox, the Lemonheads and Madder Rose.

Azzoli commented: "The creation of TAG signals the ongoing evolution and expansion of The Atlantic Group. Coming off a year which saw us rank as the #1 label in the industry, we intend to capitalize on our strength and continue to forge new ventures. We envision TAG as an aggressive, independently-minded label which will be fiercely devoted to the signing and nurturing of cutting-edge artists...."

Kallman noted: "TAG will be a distinctly artist-oriented company, one that combines a focused A&R effort with a pro-active marketing approach which draws on the combined strengths of the label's staff.... We will put all our energies into a select number of artists, who will enjoy the best of both worlds—the specialized, custom-tailored attention of a core staff combined with the tremendous resources of Atlantic. Our ultimate goal will be to develop long-term careers, working intimately with artists at every stage of their musical life."

A MESS IN GEORGIA: Marietta, GA Judge Harris Adams ordered Phil Walden, ex-manager of The Allman Brothers Band, to take a pre-trial deposition in his $250,000 libel suit against former Capricorn Records v.p. Dick Wooley. A counter suit has been filed against Walden and his lawyer Leon S. Jones for frivolous prosecution.

Walden claims his good name and good character were libeled in a letter from Wooley and printed by Atlanta Magazine. The letter was in response to a previous article plugging Walden's music business comeback. Wooley wrote, "Walden should repay his debts," in addition to other statements. At a January 24, 1995 deposition, Walden claimed he's never owed anyone money.

Other testimony, however, disputes that claim and charges that royalties exceeding a million dollars were never paid to members of The Allman Brothers Band by Walden-controlled companies.

Former associates of Walden and other music business witnesses are anticipated to testify at the libel trial, which may be scheduled as soon as March 1995 at the Cobb County State Court in Marietta. Additionally, other allegedly spurned creditors have come forward to relate their stories.

AL KOOPER, the legendary rock and bluesman, played New York's Bottom Line club last week to help celebrate the release of his new MusicMasters Records album Soul Of A Man: Al Kooper Live. The album was recorded during a performance at the club last year, when the show was a kind of retrospective of his 36 years in the music business. Kooper re-united two of his landmark groups, The Blues Project and Child Is Father To The Man, to record the two-CD set. Last week's appearance featured his group the Rekooperators, Anton Fig, Jimmy Vivino, John Simon, Harvey Brooks and the Uptown Horns.

TGIF—N.Y.C. downtown hot spot S.O.B.'s and radio station CD 101.9 FM sponsoring weekly "Friday After Work" parties with live broadcasts. Appearing in the last few weeks have been GRP Records artist Eric Marienthal, RCA Novus' Marion Meadows and Verve Records' Jeff Lorber. Lot of hot networking going on, and net door proceeds go to the CD 101.9 Kids Fund.

BEGGAR ON A BEACH OF GOLD, Mike & The Mechanics' fourth Atlantic album, may be their most impressive to date. The first single, "Mea Culpa," is a haunting love-gone-bad opus that sets the tone for a highly introspective collection of mostly original songs. Mike Rutherford, Paul Young, Paul Carrack and drummer Peter Van Hook perform a tapestry of literate, life-observing songs with fits-like-a-glove arrangements.

Rutherford, of course, is a founding and continuing member of the legendary group Genesis, and successfully balances involvement in the two entities...impressive considering his 25-year association with Genesis and some ten years with the Mechanics. A couple of tunes that may haunt long after hearing are "Someone Always Hates Someone," "Another Cup Of Coffee" and "Web Of Lies." The group is set to tour shortly.

THE VILLAGE VANGUARD is one of the country's longest running jazz clubs, but going back through the years it has also housed comedians, beat-poets and various other eclectic sounds. Marking its 60th birthday in February, the club, in a week-long celebration, welcomed back some old friends. Joining the good times with one-night stands were comedians Dick Gregory and Prof. Irwin Corey, poets Allen Ginsberg and Ray Bremser, folk singer Pete Seeger and singer/pianists Bobby Short and Shirley Horn. And the audience was constantly packed with jazz and pop luminaries.

AROUND TOWN—Hip-hop group Vision Quest celebrated release of their new Undercover Records album Jazz Core with a set at the AKA club recently. Deejay Crazy Ed of WBAU-FM did the spinning...B-Boy Records group the B.U.M.Z. performed their new single "All In The Norm" at the Country Club...Jazz pianist Laszlo Cardony and his quintet played the Blue Note last week in support of his new Blue Note Records release Breakout.

'95 MTV VIDEO MUSIC AWARDS will be held for the second year in a row at Radio City Music Hall, says MTV's programming & production VP Doug Herzog. "The excitement of the city helped make last year's awards show a huge success," he said. "We look forward to taking advantage of everything New York has to offer to make this year's program the best one yet." Herzog will executive produce. Carol Donovan and Carol Eng will produce.

BOSTON BOPS BOSTON'S SCHOLZ: The Federal Court in Boston, MA has ordered Tom Scholz of the rock group Boston to pay his former personal manager Paul Ahern $400,000 in attorney's fees and legal costs. This followed a jury verdict last fall of $547,007 in favor of Ahern against Scholz for breach of contract.

THE HARD ROCK HOTEL OPENING IN LAS VEGAS is shaping up to be one of the biggest events of 1995 thus far. The opening festivities of the luxurious hotel and casino will take place over the weekend of March 10 with two major concerts to be held at the hotel's in-house venue, the intimate Joint, a 1400-seat theater. The first show, to be held Friday, March 10, will be broadcast live as an MTV special and features Duran Duran, Weezer, Duff McKagan and Sheryl Crow. The following night, Crow will open up for The Eagles.

The hotel's opening celebration is the culmination of a long-time dream of Hard Rock president and founder Peter Morton. During a recent phone interview, the very busy restaurateur, who's been spending most of his time traveling between L.A. and Vegas, talked about the event and his desire to bring rock 'n' roll to Vegas....

How long have you been planning on doing the Hard Rock Hotel?

Morton: I've wanted to do this hotel for a long time, and I think we're going to offer a real alternative to people going to Las Vegas.

Peter Morton

Was that your idea in opening the hotel now?
Absolutely.

In what sense do you feel that you're offering an alternative to the standard Vegas glitz?

Everything about it...from the entertainment we provide to the intimacy of the whole hotel. We only have 340 rooms, which is a true anomaly itself in Las Vegas. I know we'll have the most beautiful pool—we've built a real beach club with sand that goes right into the water. I think the music will be far above what they're doing with music in other hotels in Las Vegas.

Given the seating capacity of the Joint, what level acts will you be looking to book into the hotel?

Everything, from Counting Crows to Bob Dylan. The opening we have the Eagles and the MTV special, which will also be broadcast simultaneously in Times Square on the Sony Jumbotron.

Because you don't get to see acts of the level you're talking about playing in such small venues, will you be booking multiple nights?

We'll book acts in primarily on the weekends. We have a totally state-of-the-art facility...electronically, acoustically, sight lines, everything. We're really proud of it.

Will you be incorporating music into the rest of the hotel?

Of course. And in the rooms we'll offer several channels of music, from alternative to the Fashion Zone to rock classics.

Have you been working with labels at all in this endeavor?

Yes. And we've been approached by a lot of the labels that want to take over the whole hotel for various meetings, seminars, conventions, etc.

After the hotel is up and running, how involved will you be in day-to-day operations?

I'll remain involved in everything. I want people to enjoy themselves when they come to this hotel, and that means you have to manage it.

COVER STORY

Outburst Records: Beyond The Domino Theory

Young record executives plan to burst beyond initial successes with a full slate of new artists and aim to become a driving force.

By M.R. Martinez

IN YOUR VEHICLE ON THE MEAN STREETS OF THE MUSIC BUSINESS, it's almost like The Doors song says, "Nobody get's out alive"...or with all their body parts intact. But that's if you don't pay attention to the signals. That's if you don't take your time. And if you're in the business for a fast buck, you're out of the business almost as fast. It's a case of what you invest in it, you will reap.

These are some of the lessons that have been learned by the braintrust that is known as Outburst Records, the Los Angeles-based firm that splashed firmly onto the mean streets with the release of chart-topping rapper Domino's hit "Getto Jam," were wooed to the Sony Music Entertainment factory by Def Jam Records chief mechanics, and shortly after that jetted to the PolyGram Records Distribution universe and now are poised to take positive advantage of the domino effect.

"It's all about the big 'C' factor—control," says Outburst vice president "Greedy Greg" Jessie, a veteran of the music business mean streets as a DJ and manager, during an exclusive interview at the Hollywood offices of Cash Box. "One of the things that's motivated us to make the moves we have [from independent to Sony to PolyGram] has been to have an opportunity for more control over how we managed our company and artists and how we developed as record executives."

Anthony "Anti" Lewis, Outburst chairman; breakout artist Domino; and Outburst vice president "Greedy" Greg Jessie on their way into the recent American Music Awards in Los Angeles.

Outburst chairman Anthony "Anti" Lewis, who forged his financial skills in the real estate investment business and then veered into the sound-bite highway of the music business, says, "I realized early on in this business that only way to really survive was to control your own destiny, to whatever degree you could, and that owning a company was better than working for one or shopping artists to other companies."

Lewis' most notable early drive down Mean St. was with the group Twice The Trouble, which he got signed to a production deal with Giant Records. "My whole thing when I did that was to just get the knowledge," Lewis explains. "I always knew that I wanted to have my own record company. But I didn't want to do it unless I had enough knowledge and input and the right people to put it together."

One of the people that Lewis spotted in helping him put it on the road was Greedy Greg, who came to the table with a legacy in the business. The son of the late George Jessie, Jr., who managed R&B legends like Otis Redding, Johnny Taylor, Jimmy Reed and Bo Diddley, Greedy started deejaying clubs and at private parties in 1986 before jumping into the fast lane of artist management, with his first client being his cousin Tone Loc. He also worked with DJ Quik, helping the artist earn Platinum status with Quik Is The Name. "It was basically a case of trial and error and takin' your lumps as you learn the business," Jessie says.

As Lewis and Jessie developed a relationship, they began to build the engine that would bring their goals within reach. He kept his hand in real estate and had the financial ends to back a record company, but "all I lacked was the knowledge," Lewis recalls. "But I started telling Greg about some of my ideas and I knew he had been successful with some of the artists he was representing."

The duo eventually took the first big step toward their mean street destiny when mutual acquaintance and writer/producer Battlecat introduced them to Domino, the Long Beach lad who was being courted by several established companies but saw his future in an "outburst" of insight. Although they initially put his record out independently, the buzz on the record was so persistent that a bidding war ensued, with Def Jam's Lyor Cohen swinging the play to Sony and company president Don Ienner.

Domino subsequently topped or nearly topped several trade magazine's year-end polls, including Top Rap Male Artist and Top New Rap Male Artist honors in Cash Box's year-end lists. He was also a Top 5 New Male Artist for all urban album sales in 1994.

B.G. Knocccout & Drestar bring a different vibe to the Outburst artist stable and are sure to provide a different identity to the label.

In addition to Domino (who is in the studio prepping a new album), Lewis and Jessie have released Hold On Tight by Detroit rapper La Rocko Tee and are now ready to peel out with product by Los Angeles-based rappers B.G. Knocccout & Drestar. On deck are projects by Jiboh (who performed "Butt Booty Naked" on the soundtrack to House Party III) and female R&B/rap trio Mogenstef.

The Outburst executives insist that the deal with PolyGram will permit them to work the product onto the streets in a variety of ways, and also will give the boutique company access to other resources and creative opportunities. Jessie recalls: "We really got acquainted with the branch system when we were at Sony Music Entertainment. But when we had a chance at the PolyGram deal, and when we looked at the options that situation offered, we thought there was a better chance over there."

Both executives also insist that money was not the factor that enticed them away from the Sony Music fold. "A lot of times when people give you money, that takes away some of the control you have over what you want to do," Lewis says. "We told PolyGram, 'Keep your dollars—give us the control.' If we're with acts that we believe in, then we're gonna get the dollars, regardless."

While Domino's album stayed in the Sony system, La Rocko Tee became the first artist under the new deal to find its way through the maze of PolyGram's multi-tiered distribution net. "We decided to keep [Domino's] record at Sony because we didn't want it get lost again," Lewis says. "It still kinda got lost because it was like a divorce. When you're leaving a company, it's like a marriage ending."

Acknowledging that they are still learning their way through the PolyGram system, Lewis and Jessie nevertheless see its potential for their stable of artists. "They have mainstream distribution, street-level distribution and what amounts to an independent network of distribution that gives us a variety of options for our artists," Jessie explains.

Anthony Lewis and Greg Jessie have demonstrated that they are not likely to fall asleep at the wheel of Outburst Records and are now in positions to change to the fast lane, successfully negotiating the mean streets of the music business. "It's really up to us now to put what we've learned in motion."

REVIEWS by M.R. Martinez

MILK: Never Dated (American 43005). Producer: Milk.

What started out a six-song EP and was recorded over a one-year period (even so some dates listed have yet to arrive; one can only think they might be released as singles or remixes), the now nine-song collection is old-school, shout-and-response style rap. Milk doesn't try to break new ground with his words, but he produces each track with certainty and gusto. The track "Spam," which he co-wrote and co-produced with King Ad Rock of the Beastie Boys, flows on political undertones about diet. "Get Off My Log" and "Smoke Up My Ass" also get to a point.

BARRINGTON LEVY: Here I Come (RAS 3223). Producer: P. Love.

This man has been slowly brewing, like a peppercorn full of rich ingredients, simmering in studio kitchens all over Jamaica. The material here in some cases is a recapitulation of his earlier hits, like the wildly popular "Under Mi Sensei" and "Broader Than Broadway" (which is listed here as the title track "Here I Come"). This is roots reggae without compromise, something evident on tracks like "Vibes Is Right," "Moonlight Lover" and "Aya Weh Deh," which was his first solo single.

VARIOUS ARTISTS: Street Rap Vol. 1 (Street Level 0010). Producers: Various.

A multitude of styles abound on this album, the first release from newly-bowed Street Level Records. These artists are fresh and brand-new, the compilation built on the prime directive of the company being that previously unsigned talent will find a niche in the marketplace given the opportunity to be heard, that radio will listen to the consumer. "Da Soul" and "Get Real" by Precise, "Fry Me Up" by Black Bag of Funk, the edge of Poetry on "B-Real" and the groovy tones of "What U Won't Do" by Freky Fel-Ons (and sampling Bobby Caldwell's famous song) are among the standouts on this.

VARIOUS ARTISTS: Tribal: Best Of House Music, Vol. 6 (Sm:je 80009). Producers: Various.

House and techno-dance do a stylistic fandango on this 12-slice cut of electronic contemplations. The motif that starts each track nearly prevails throughout each song; the textures change as do the intensity of beats, but each stands on its own. At the same time, the selections were picked with a keen ear on how to vary a groove and supply a mix in a single-disc environment. The textural "Whistle" by Anon, the big beat of "Dream Drums" by Lectorlurv and the ethereal groove "Can't Stop" by Plez cover cornerstones of this LP.

PICK OF THE WEEK

DJ QUIK: Safe & Sound (Profile 1462). Producer: DJ Quik.

It's the Quikster turned quipster, kickin' flava like the fast-food grille on the corner of 120th and Broadway in South Central Los Angeles. Ain't no time for love on this collection. There's a booty call or two, but that don't mean love. And compassion? Get real, home skillet. There are several tracks on this record that are phat and don't bother to compromise. "Street Level Entrance," "Get At Me," "Safe & Sound," "Somethin' 4 Tha Mood" and "Don't You Eat It!/Can I Eat It!" (two tracks that will remind you of Shabba's "Dem Dat Bow") all have a sense of humor aimed at clockin' dollars.

THE RHYTHM

By M.R. Martinez

Having each earned three Soul Train Music Award nods, love master Barry White and budding soul/pop diva Brandy Norwood recently hugged it up at the press luncheon announcing nominees for the Ninth Annual Soul Train Music Awards. A&M recording artist White, who gained remarkable exposure in the week leading up to Valentine's Day through NBC-TV promos announcing that day's prime-time line-up, is riding high on the single "Practice What You Preach" from his already Platinum-plus LP The Icon Of Love. And Brandy's self-titled debut album on Atlantic Records has earned Gold and served up the #1 debut single "I Wanna Be Down" and her current hot single "Baby."

PERSPECTIVE FROM SUITES TO STREETS: A pre-Grammy celebration for their fourth nomination as producers of the year, a firing-up of the horn section because of their success with their label Perspective Records, and the announcement of the launching of a new hip-hop/rap-oriented label brought out hitmeisters Jimmy "Jam" Harris and Terry Lewis the day before the annual Grammy tournament during a luncheon at the Perspective Records headquarters in Hollywood. Members of the press and some industry insiders showed up for the event that also attracted artists from A&M Records like the near-Golden artist CeCe Peniston and Perspective executives and artists such as the label's president Sharon Heyward, v.p. of marketing Sheila Coates, v.p. of promotion Don Eason, label media mavens Sheila Eldridge and Denise McIver and artist Raja-Nee.

By the time you read this, all should know if Jam and Lewis earned the Producer of the Year honors, based on their production work on the albums Africa To America: The Journey of the Drum by Sounds of Blackness and Karyn White's Make Him Do Right (White is married to Lewis.) Singles by Raja-Nee, Sounds of Blackness, Janet Jackson, Boyz II Men, Patti LaBelle, Ralph Tresvant and Color Me Badd also have contributed to the nomination.

In addition to Perspective acts Raja-Nee and Sound Of Blackness, Perspective has steadily built the careers of acts Mint Condition and Lo-Key, providing the company with a diverse R&B vibe. As Jam said during the afternoon soiree, "People have been saying that R&B is dead, but it's alive and well at Perspective." And now the company seems poised to diversify with the opening of a companion label aimed at the hip-hop/rap market and the hiring of an A&R person to oversee daily development of the label. P-Street is the label that will be run by Jr. Regisford, who will direct the company's A&R efforts and nurture the careers of the label's initial signees, 13-year-old female rapper Munchie; South Central-bred concrete poet Arrogant (who kicked some vivid and tasteful flavor during the gathering); the Outsidadz, a New York-based collective; and Pudgee (aka Pudgee The Fat Bastard, who Jam said was losing weight and may just be called The Bastard).

Jam and Lewis also unveiled the mutually discovered Solo, a vocal group they heard at separate times while shopping in the Soho District of New York City. Jam described them as a combination of Sam Cooke, The Drifters, The Dramatics and several modern-day crooners who uniquely have played with an upright bass player on the streets of Gotham.

Perspective/P-Street's acts are expected to begin filling the airwaves and pipeline in May or early June.

THE RHYME

By Michael Martinez

Ice Cube and his long-time homeboy Dr. Dre were recently working on the soundtrack to Cube's film comedy debut and directorial debut Friday's. In addition to tracks by Cube and Dre, the soundtrack will feature artists such as Cypress Hill, Scarface, Bootsy Collins & Bernie Worrell, Mack 10, E-A-Ski, Tha Alkaholiks, 2 Live Crew, Threat, The Isley Bros., and Funkdoobiest. The soundtrack is set for an April 11 release by Priority Records.

REBIRTH OF THE BLOW-UP: It was definitely cool like all dat at the House Of Blues in L.A. when the pairing of Dignable Planets and Michael Franti's latest aggregation Spearhead provided an often vigorous set of live, hybrid rap/hip-hop without too much DAT (Digital Audio Tape). The live musicians added an immediacy and adventurous dimension to the mostly jazz and roots music approach of each act.

A packed house on this night makes even more curious the relatively flat sales of Dignable Planets' EMI/Pendulum Records sophomore album Blowout Comb, the follow-up to the Grammy-winning debut album Reachin' (a new refutation of time and space). The set was dominated by selections from the latest album, which offered harder lyrics, and they were propelled with even more conviction because of the live musicianship. Current album tracks like "Dial 7," "Black Ego," "Art Of Easing," "Dog It," "Borough Check" and the collection's first single "9th Wonder (Blackitolism)" did not suffer because of the absence of the guest stars that contributed to the album.

The material was made spontaneously combusive by the band. At the core of the 70-minute set was the responsive interplay of group musical director and drummer Steve Williams, keyboardist John Adams, guitarist Abdul, DJ/mixer Jazzy Joyce and bassist Paul Carter, who provided a tireless pulse on nearly each track. The two-man horn section of bros. Chris (reeds) and Gerald (trumpet & flugelhorn) fought gamely against spotty sound mixing to provide the jazz textures that distinguish the Planet's sound.

Carter's upright bass work on the debut album's breakout, jazz-drenched track "Rebirth Of Slick (Cool Like Dat)" gave a freshness to the rap delivery by Dignable's Doodle Bug, Ladybug and Butterfly. In fact, throughout the show, the trio seemed more at ease on stage than during any of the performances of their maiden tour for the first album.

The opening set by Franti's Spearhead (the group that replaced his Disposable Heroes of Hiphoprisy) was a serving of healthy portions of funky/folky sonic gumbo, with a menu of songs such as "Red Beans & Rice," "People In Tha Middle" and the title track of the group's Capitol Records debut Hole In The Bucket. Franti increasingly invites comparisons to Gil Scott-Heron, but will surely forge his own individuality, no matter what his band is called.

Some youth from South Central Los Angeles were privileged when they went to see the critically-acclaimed (and lengthy) documentary film Hoop Dreams, which was seriously dished by the Academy of Motion Pictures, Arts & Sciences Oscar race this year. But the youth who saw it got stoked by the movie and also got up when treated with gift-bags supplied by In-House Marketing, a division of The Continuum Group. Pictured at the screening are Kareem Abdullah (far left) and Dion Stewart (far right) from the rap group Black Dynasty; (back, l-r): Ande Hamilton, Otis O'Solomon and Richard DeDeaux of the Watts Prophets; Rochelle Epps (front left), director of marketing at Mandingo Entertainment; and Diane Pinsky (front right), director of marketing for In-House Marketing.

REVIEWS By Steve Baltin

■ SHEENA EASTON: "My Cherie" (MCA 3309)

The kick-off single and title track from Easton's forthcoming album continues Easton's long-running attempt to do a variation of R&B. Once again how close she comes is up for debate, but her success with previous efforts is not, nor is the likely success of this single. A pleasant enough diversion that will appeal to fans of Amy Grant and other A/C stalwarts.

■ PHARAO: "I Show You Secrets" (Columbia 6867)

Utterly pretentious in its opening in a way that you can't help but love, this smash in Germany (where they love David Hasselhoff, by the way) sounds like some kind of space-age L.S.D. trip through the cosmos. Going beyond techno, "I Show You Secrets" is a song that is at least interesting, and while everyone knows what that normally means, it's an accurate word for this song and it's not an insult. Pharaoh's five-song single tries something new.

■ MARILYN MANSON: "Lunchbox" (Nothing/Interscope 5961)

If Marilyn Manson's new single was indeed a lunchbox, it would possess rotten eggs, sour milk and a 13-day old sandwich with onions, mayonnaise, head cheese, ketchup, Limburger cheese, horseradish and anchovies. And that's exactly the way Marilyn Manson want it. Designed to offend, disgust and repulse like a fat gym teacher who hasn't showered in two years, "Lunchbox" does just that.

■ EAGLES: "Love Will Keep Us Alive" (Geffen 4714)

It's finally happened—the Eagles covering Captain & Tennille. Oops, sorry...that was "Love Will Keep Us Together." Taken from their megasmash album Hell Freezes Over, this is a ballad in the schmaltziest sense of the word. Still, it's a fairly benign little song. A big, big hit on Adult/Contemporary especially. Top 40 may be a little more iffy on this track.

PICK OF THE WEEK

■ ADAM ANT: "Wonderful" (Capitol 58239)

Adam Ant never had the same level of chart success as many of his '80s peers, but the cumulative effort of his solo work and his groundbreaking days with Adam & The Ants has made him a very recognizable name from that era. Now, Ant attempts to make the transition into the '90s. To accomplish the move, he has greatly softened his sound. Surprisingly, the kinder, gentler Ant works remarkably well. The first single from the album of the same name is a mature-sounding mid-tempo number that flows with a distinguished ease. "Wonderful" is not only a strong comeback song, it's the best thing Adam Ant has done since "Dog Eat Dog" and "Antmusic."

POP ALBUMS

REVIEWS by Steve Baltin

■ FACE TO FACE: Big Choice (Victory Records 0037)

If any band can keep alive the pop/punk phenomenon spurred on by Green Day and Offspring, Orange County's Face to Face are the group to do it. Taking the sound of those bands to the next level with superior musicianship, Face to Face's greatest strength comes from the combination of their playing and energy. Many of the 13 songs here were originally found on their EP released last year, including the Modern Rock hit "Disconnected." However, the titles of the songs don't really matter, as they blend into one like a punk orgy. Face to Face aren't changing the scope of music by any stretch; all they are doing is adding some fun to it.

■ PRICK: Prick (Nothing/Interscope 92395)

Nearly half of the 10 songs here were produced and engineered by Trent Reznor, who runs the Nothing label. Reznor has definitely left his mark on Prick's sound, as Prick's self-titled debut brings to mind Nine Inch Nails' Pretty Hate Machine, particularly on the subdued "No Fair Fights." Like NIN, Prick is actually the brainchild of one voice. Kevin McMahon, with the help of guest musicians, is the architect of Prick's melodic industrial sound. While the similarities between the two bands may be a bit too strong, Prick is still an impressive debut that leaves McMahon as an act to watch in the future, a judgment that is validated by the record's closing track, the beautiful "Makebelieve."

■ TRACI LORDS: 1,000 Fires (Radioactive 11211)

Before the gales of laughter kick in, there's one thing fans should know. The record isn't half-bad. Lords doesn't attempt to show herself as a serious songwriter or an accomplished musician, instead having fun with her techno stylings. Fans of techno dance will find some pleasure in this record, but she still shouldn't give up acting.

■ BETTIE SERVEERT: Lamprey (Matador 92504)

No, Bettie Serveert is not a female solo singer. They are the Dutch quartet that, judging from their press, are expected to carry the next wave of alternative rock. Led by vocalist and guitarist Carol van Dijk, Bettie Serveert might be able to carry off that herculean task, as the group's exceptional hooks, on both the standard alternative pop songs and moodier ballads, create a fetching listen all the way through. The albums that have the most longevity, as proven by Counting Crows, are the records that can go the deepest in terms of singles and airplay, and Bettie Serveert's Lamprey is filled with potential radio-friendly gems, including "Ray Ray Rain," "Tell Me, Sad" and "21 Days."

■ MORRISSEY: World Of Morrissey (Sire/Reprise 45879)

Morrissey is the New Wave's answer to Bob Dylan in a couple of ways: besides being a great lyricist—and after re-listening to the best of the Smiths' works in the mid-'80s there's no denying that—Morrissey is one of the most enigmatic figures in all of today's music scene. Following the disappointing reception given to last year's Vauxhall and I, Morrissey cancelled concert plans and scheduled interviews and hasn't really been heard from since. And in a sense, he still hasn't. This "new" collection is actually a rehashing of old tunes, though it's certainly not a greatest hits and it's not quite a rarities album. Instead, it continues his tradition of eccentricity by seemingly throwing songs in at random, including a live version of "You're The One For Me, Fatty" and a stellar cover of "Moon River." In the World Of Morrissey though, fans wouldn't want anything but this kind of haphazardness.

PICK OF THE WEEK

BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN GREATEST HITS

■ BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN: Greatest Hits (Columbia 67060)

In the liner notes for his first greatest hits effort, Springsteen says of recording "Blood Brothers," one of four previously unreleased tracks, "It was good to see the guys." After listening to "This Hard Land," it's easy to see why, as Bruce & the reunited E Street Band reignite the spark that made them the greatest live band of all time. Fans who were disappointed by the dismantling of the group will be overjoyed by the sound of Springsteen's voice blending into Clarence Clemons' saxophone once again. "This Hard Land" is vintage E Street Band, a rock & roll song that can stand proudly with "She's The One" and "Badlands," one of 14 hits on the collection. Of the new material, "This Hard Land" is the gem, though most long-time fans have often thought of "Murder Incorporated" as one of Springsteen's best. "Murder Incorporated" is a fierce rocker in the tradition of "57 Channels." As for the other two tracks, they're distinctly Bruce: "Secret Garden" and "Blood Brothers," the two songs written this year, continue the process he began on the softer side of Lucky Town and Human Touch. Of the older songs there are seven Top 10s, an Academy Award winner for Best Song ("Streets Of Philadelphia") and "Born To Run," the song that British press recently voted the best of all time, edging out Dylan's "Like A Rolling Stone." Those kind of accolades speak for themselves.

THE LATIN LOWDOWN

By Hector Resendez

LABELS LAUNCH NEW SINGLE RELEASERS: There's been a flurry of new single releases by the majors and indies this past week. RMM Records & Video released the promotional single "Senora Mia" from the Colombian group Orquesta Guayacan's latest album Marcando La Diferencia. Other album singles to be consequently released and heavily promoted will be "Pau Pau," "Cuanto Te Quiero" and "Medillin." The album is consistently strong, both in its material and execution (see album review in last's week issue).

Another Colombian export for RMM is La Orquesta Matecana with their second album for the New York-based indie. Sentimental y Salvaje is being promoted under the new RMM International label. The promotional single "Te Quiero" was arranged by the renowned Isidro Infante in New York. Other singles planned for release are "Cali Calor," "Es Inutil Olvidar" and "Me Recordaras."

RMM's SoHo Latino label has released the debut album of a 20-year-old Cuban singer named solely as Guianko. The self-titled album is curiously titled Guianko, Llamame Yanko ("Call me Yanko") (Sony's SDI should've done this on the album of their new artist Giro). The artist's full name is Guianko Gomez Medina, the son of a well-known singing duo from Cuba called Mirtha y Raul. The promotional single "Temes" was composed by the artist's father and manager Raul Gomez and Gretell. Other singles to be released are "Dime," "El Amor No Miente," "Te Quiero Asi" and "Busco Un Amor."

Finally, another division of the RMM label, Merengazo Records, has just released the most recent production by the Dominican Republic artist Angel Villalona. It is his first production with his older brother and mentor Fernando Villalona. Angel's first solo album was called La Gozadora. On this album, Hecho Con Fernando, the song "Mil Lagrimas" is sung as a duet by the brothers. Other promotional singles will be "Rubia Del Alma," "Me Dejaste Solo" and "Solo Tu."

VENTURA RENEWS CONTRACT: Dominican mega-merengue icon Johnny Ventura recently renewed his contract with Sony Discos in Miami. Ventura has been an exclusive artist with the label since 1986 and has signed on with Sony's SDI division. As part of his agreement, Ventura filmed his very first musical video of his second humorous promotional single "Don Antena." The video, produced by Ossie Forbes of Crime Procine Productions, also features Ventura's two sons, Juan Jose and Juan de Dios. Both sons collaborate with their famous dad on the first album for SDI called Retonando. The first single was "No Quiero De Eso."

ON OTHER FRONTS: New promotional releases have been released by the Miami-based label Karen. There's Juan Luis Guerra's Cuban-son tinged "Los Pajaritos" from his Fogarate album. Rap group Roy Tavare y El Clan de la Furia released their third single, "Esa Mujer," after having good results with "Hazlo Asi" and "Another Cha-Cha." Tavare also filmed a music video in Venezuela. Finally, Francisco Ullola incorporates the Colombian vallenato folkloric sound with the rapid Dominican perico ripia'o merengue beat on the single "El Santo Cachon." Ullola worked on Guerra's latest album....

Meanwhile, across the country in Los Angeles, the tropical cumbia band Internacional Sonora Show also has released their version of Ullola's "El Santo Cachon," which was written by Romualdo Brito. The song is the first promo single from the group's album Oye Como Va for Fonovisa Tropical. The album was produced by Kiko Vargas, along with members of the original group Estrellas de la Dinamita.

■ GALY GALIANO: Amor de Primavera (BMG/RCA 24175) Producer: Rafael Mejia P.

Singer-composer Galy Galiano attempts his hand at recording romantic ballads while being accompanied by El Mariachi Los Reyes of Guadalajara. The album, Amor de Primavera, was recorded in Monterey, Mexico. All but two of the ten selections were either written or jointly composed by the vocalist. Galiano is also known for his tropical salsa recordings.

■ SI ME COMPRENDIERAS: Boleiros con Feeling: Vol. 5 (BMG/RCA Tropical Series 25085) Producers: Various. Digital Producer: Domingo Echevarria.

This is an extraordinary compilation of romantic tropical ballads as recorded by various artists in Cuba, Mexico and New York between the years 1952-1966. All of the 13 selections are classic recordings as performed by the original artists. The title track is by Bobby Capo, followed by a rare duet by Pedro Vargas and Beny More on "Perdon," Hilda Nieves with "Sin Amor," Jose Antonio Mendez "Hay Que Vivir El Momento," Los Tres Ases with "Realidad y Fantasia" and others.

■ ANGEL VILLALONA: Hecho con Fernando (Merengazo 81485) Producer: Fernando Villalona.

The title is indicative of the collaboration that went into this album by Angel Villalona. It was produced by his older brother and mentor, Fernando Villalona. The Villalona brothers come a very musical family of 10 brothers and sisters. They are musicians and composers, as well as vocalists. Here the unique Villalona touch bears the mark of these solid and experienced artists. The album should fare well with merengue fans.

■ JOHNNY VENTURA Y SUS HIJOS: Retonando (SDI 81464) Producer: Johnny Ventura.

Johnny Ventura has recorded more albums than perhaps any other tropical music artist. His latest album Retonando can best explain the reason for his immense international popularity. Ventura's brand of merengue, ballads, salsa or whatever else he wants to play always portrays the immensity of his professionalism. From the remake of the popular merengue tune "Don Antena" to Ventura's suave rendition of Bobby Capo's classic "Piel Canela," this album is certain to have universal appeal.

Playboy: Melding Established And Fresh Ideas

By M.R. Martinez

HOW HERBIE HANCOCK AND JOE SAMPLE end up on the same bill with Boney James and Los Lobos at the 17th Annual Playboy Jazz Festival in the Hollywood Bowl (June 17-18) might be an eye-squinting inquiry among some, but if you've paid attention to this yearly musical ritual, then the pattern is clear: Bring the most music to the most people. And this philosophy is given depth by The Playboy Festival's commitment to free festivals that offer as much diversity as the center stage at the Hollywood Bowl.

But the management of this premier annual jazz event have constructed their identity and operated from the premise that jazz, and artists pressing forward musically, are part of the Los Angeles experience. According to Darlene Chan, associate producer of the fest, through a combination of artist availability, cost and most of all the goal of eclecticism, the Playboy Jazz Festival has continually evolved into an event that is designed to attract the entire salad bowl population reflecting Los Angeles.

"It's mixed bag here, a lot of musicians come here. And what we've managed to do is turn a lot of people on to a lot of new jazz and a lot of new music," Chan says, noting that by working with George Wein, her partner in promotion through Festival Prods. who produce shows internationally, each event is unique in character. "Angelenos are so diverse that the demands have changed annually. Last year, Peter Fountain and his New Orleans crew played against King Sunny Ade." This came after a scheduling anomaly that left bluesmeister Joe Williams kicking soul with perennial show host Bill Cosby. "I think that was something that we couldn't anticipate, and it turned into this year's exclusive show."

Chan was forthcoming when she said that booking considerations were also dictated by the regional availability of certain artists. The all-female big band Diva was booked because of their proximity to Los Angeles and availability on the dates in question. Chan said that other all-female groups had been considered, but concert playing had been considered first. "Proximity, cost factors based on where the artist is, are some factors. But we know that artists like Herbie and Al (Jarreau), Grover (Washington, Jr.) are artists that we wanted to have and that we worked to have as main promotion elements."

According to Playboy Jazz Festival president Dick Rosensweig, the epiphany this year is evident of eclecticism that has come to fruition because of the constant growth of the free community events that have flourished as the Festival's soulful mix. "We're very proud of our community events," Rosensweig said recently. He described Playboy's commitment to the community through its ongoing support on altruistic and promotional levels. But he noted that there are some real financial considerations that have contributed to the growth of the free community events. "This show is sold out very early in the year, so some people who would like to attend the Hollywood Bowl event cannot be there. Some people can't afford the tickets that are available and others live too far away to make it to the Bowl show."

Some of those community events expose more people to the music than the nearly 36,000 that sell-out the Bowl over the two-day period. The community events this year kick-off on Sunday, May 7 in Beverly Hills, gain momentum on Saturday & Sunday, June 3 & 4 in Pasadena and reach a crescendo Sunday, June 11 at Santa Monica. Artists ranging from Patrice Rushen, Ndugu Chancelor and Marco Loya to Tom Scott, Ernie Watts, Frank Capp, Susie Hansen and Everette Harp will hold forth on the events that will be open to the community, which also have a tremendous profile through the Fest's official radio stations—Long Beach State University-based KLON and The Wave, the NAC/New Age Jazz station that created listening habits for a nation.

Rosensweig says that there are currently no plans to take the festival on the road, such as the case in six cities in 1994. "That was a situation promoting Playboy's 40th anniversary. We lost money on that, but gained tremendous profile. It was a positive venture."

George Benson recently signed an exclusive, worldwide recording contract with GRP Records, just 120 days after longtime jazz maven Tommy LiPuma was made president of the label. The eight-time Grammy-winning Benson is reunited with LiPuma for the first time since a flourishing relationship at Warner Bros. Records. Benson's first GRP release is due in July 1995. Pictured following the signing are (l-r): Carl Griffin, v.p. of GRP A&R; Jim Cawley, sr. v.p. of marketing and sales; Benson; LiPuma; and Sandra Trim-Da Costa, director of marketing and sales.

Indie News: On The Cutting Edge

By Steve Baltin

THE ZOMBA GROUP recently announced the launch of Battery Records, a new division devoted to making the best new European dance and pop releases available in the United States. The label's first release will be "Cotton Eye Joe," a techno-flavored single by the Rednex, a Swedish quartet. The track has already hit #1 in nine countries in Europe, including the U.K. and Germany. The single will be available on February 24, while the band's first album, Sex & Violins, is scheduled for a March 28 release.

Zomba's main subsidiary label is Jive Records, which features a plethora of Gold- and Platinum-selling artists, including Shaquille O'Neal, A Tribe Called Quest and Too Short.

WITH AWARDS SHOWS BEING THE FAD DU JOUR, San Diego's Rugburns are getting into the act. The group, whose sense of humor has been well documented with the college hit "Hitchhiker Joe," recently announced the recipients of their first annual "Golden Knee-Pad Awards," presented to those who stoop to conquer.

Nominees were selected by various inebriated college students and the results were kept sealed in an empty Coors Light Party Ball until the magical moment. This year's honorees include:

O.J. Simpson: "Where he's going, he's gonna need 'em."

Rush Limbaugh: "For being considered the 'head' spokesman for the radical right-wing.

Senator Bob Packwood: "As if his name alone weren't enough, he puts the 'ass' in 'harassment.'"

Nancy Kerrigan: "For dating her married manager, she's gonna need 'em when his wife takes out her other knee. You're skating on thin ice, Nancy."

■ UGLY AMERICANS: Ugly Americans (What Are Records? 60010)

Ugly Americans are a hodgepodge of artists from the Austin music scene, all of whom played with known entities. The six-piece "supergroup" display their Texas roots proudly on this nine-song collection of bluesy rock that blends the blues of ZZ Top with the occasional funk of the Spin Doctors. A definite good-time record, AOR is likely to find a couple of favorites, including "Don't Gimme No Lip."

■ HER MAJESTY THE BABY: Mary (unsigned)

One of the happening bands on the very hot San Francisco club scene, Her Majesty The Baby's debut record showcases a deft ear for pleasant hooks. The 14 songs found on Mary have an early '80s pop styling that doesn't quite reach New Wave stature, but transcends the occasionally bland level of pop. A pleasant diversion.

■ MONKEY BEAT: Shake (Lucky 7 Records 9207)

This Dallas trio seem to have found the "spirit of '76" with their guitar-based mixture of Southern rock and Edgar Winter stylings. Those who enjoy checking out '70s revival bands will find something worthwhile in this effort, but since there aren't many of those anymore, don't look for this one to make much impact at all.

■ FRANK ZAPPA: Civilization: Phaze III (Barking Pumpkin UMRK 01, mail-order only, call 818-PUMPKIN)

Don't let the artwork scare you...as it's what's actually recorded on the two CDs here that should prove the most unnerving and awe-inspiring.

Civilization, Phaze III—"a big-time 'Thanks For The Memories,' in some ways," says Gail Zappa of her late husband's last work—is a difficult undertaking to describe, let alone to have created: A massive continuation and extension of his and his band's (the Mothers of Invention) absurdly unique concept albums We're Only In It For The Money (1967) and Lumpy Gravy (1968)—Phases 1 & 2, as it were, though not necessarily respectively, as Zappa was big on arbitrariness—cryptic, occasionally pithy and often hilarious dialogue recorded inside a piano in 1967 between a number of recording studio invitees (again, not necessarily at the same time, or even talking to each other about the same things) that has been intercut with sound effects, electronic textures and orchestral recordings of short pieces has been embellished still further with a more recent generation of piano-dweller conversations, dense Synclavier (a sophisticated computer-driven synthesizer) sequences and live-performance pastiches from the European new music group Ensemble Modern.

In the late '60s, Zappa would spend months making razor-blade edits for such work, and essentially had to wait years for recent digital technology to develop to be able to recreate, approximate and mix-and-match the acoustical properties of his ideas, then and now, that would stand up to the exacting demands of this modern-day composer.

Sound weighty?...you betcha! But to paraphrase his daughter Moon Zappa, a new dialogue participant, in response to something spoken in a language she doesn't speak, "Whatever he said, ditto. I don't understand, but...I...I...feel that he said something I would probably approve of."

Or perhaps this particular conversation on Civilization, Phaze III might shed some light towards comprehension of Frank Zappa, the man and his music....

SPIDER: We can get our strength up by making some music.

JOHN: That's right.

MONICA: Yeah...yeah.

JOHN: But the thing is, you know what?

SPIDER: What?

JOHN: We don't even understand our own music.

SPIDER: It doesn't, does it matter whether we understand it? At least it'll give us...strength.

JOHN: I know but maybe we could get into it more if we understood it.

SPIDER: We'd get more strength from it if we understood it?

JOHN: Yeah.

SPIDER: No, I don't think so, because—see I think, I think our strength comes from our uncertainty. If we understood it we'd be bored with it and then we couldn't gather any strength from it.

JOHN: Like if we knew about our music one of us might talk and then that would be the end of that.

Or perhaps not....

The 37th Annual Grammy Awards

By Karen Sidlow

BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN OPENED the 37th Annual Grammy Awards with a heartfelt rendition of "Streets of Philadelphia," and he then went on to win four Grammys on the evening, including Song of the Year and Best Male Rock Vocal Performance.

On the winning of such awards, Springsteen commented afterwards, "You always like it when you feel you do your best work." The Columbia artist maintains that there aren't any tour plans for him and his recently-reunited E Street Band, despite the fact that three members were on stage with him during the opening performance.

menting on how things shape up between the sexes in the industry, Etheridge noted, "When they televise it, then I think we'll stop griping. It's been five years since they've televised the [Best] Rock Female category." Hopefully it won't be five more.

A&M was one of the big winners of the evening, as Crow labelmates Soundgarden won for Best Hard Rock Performance ("Black Hole Sun") and Best Metal Performance ("Spoonman"). As part of their acceptance speech, vocalist Chris Cornell kidded, "We're not going to leave...until you guys tell us we're heavy metal," while drummer Matt Cameron thanked his mother for letting him practice drums in her house for 10 years. Who says rock stars are arrogant and heartless?

Despite the fact that ever-so talented Henry Rollins didn't walk away with Best Metal Performance, he did bring a Grammy "home" for Best Spoken Word (or Non-Musical) Album for his release Get In The Van: On The Road With Black Flag. His Rollins Band did, however, perform their song "Liar," with Henry sporting a very sartorial tuxedo. Rollins' reaction to his award, "It's great (laughs)...won't really change my life too much." Gotta love an honest man. In response to a backstage question about doing a duet with someone, the in-your-face artist replied, "I'm not the kind of person who gets other people to sing with him." And just how did he feel about being nominated for Best Metal Performance? "I'm about as metal as my mother." Don't go getting the idea that he's not pleased with his success and acknowledgements—Henry Rollins just has a different way of showing his enthusiasm.

Tony Bennett, on the other hand, gracefully accepted his two Grammys, one for Album of the Year and the other for Best Traditional Pop Vocal Performance for his Columbia MTV Unplugged album. "The competition was unbelievable," he commented. "How can I follow Pavarotti?" But that he definitely did.

And then onto the quartet of Boyz II Men. The Motown singing sensations won Grammys for Best R&B Performance by a Duo or Group, as well as Best R&B Album for their sophomore effort II. Their hit single "I'll Make Love To You" won for Best R&B Song, in which the Grammy went to songwriter Babyface. And Babyface as an artist won another Grammy for Best Male R&B Vocal Performance for "When Can I See You," a song he performed on the show.

EMI MUSIC SIGN BLUR: EMI Music won the race to sign Brit Award winners Blur on a worldwide publishing deal. The band picked up an unprecedented four awards at last Monday's show. The first album under the new deal will be the band's fifth, which is unlikely to be released until 1997. Their current album Park Life re-entered the U.K. Top 10 Album charts this week at #2.

HATS OFF TO DENNY: Legendary record producer Denny Cordell died this week aged 51. Cordell lost a short battle against lymphoma cancer in a Dublin hospital on Saturday. Cordell worked on many classic productions including Procol Harum's "Whiter Shade Of Pale" and Joe Cocker's "With A Little Help From My Friends" over a 30-year career. His most recent success was with The Cranberries. Cordell first worked with Island Records founder Chris Blackwell on the launch of Island's Aladdin label in the mid-'60s and returned to Island several times over the next three decades.

UB40 COURT BATTLE: UB40's High Court battle with a 38-year-old Birmingham secretary over the authorship of a hit song drew to a close on Friday after five days' evidence. Mr. Justice Harman reserved judgement in the case, which centers on a claim by Debbie Banks that the words to the band's 1985 hit "Don't Break My Heart" were based on one of her poems. The band's lead singer Ali Campbell appeared in court, claiming the song was written by his friend Javid Khan, who received a one-off payment of £10,000. In an action against publishers CBS Songs and ATV Music Ltd., plus the group's company Fernscan and Virgin Records, Banks says the song was based on a poem she gave Khan. She is claiming a share of royalties and told the court Khan had said he would "see her right."

TOO PURE HOOK UP WITH AMERICAN: New up-and-coming British label Too Pure Records, which launched the careers of PJ Harvey and Stereolab, has signed an exclusive licensing agreement for North America with Rick Rubin's American Recordings. The deal covers all future recordings by Too Pure artists and some back catalogue titles including titles by Stereolab and Pram.

NOVELLOS INTRODUCE FILM SONG AWARD: The 40th Ivor Novello Awards will feature a new category for Best Commissioned Song In A Film to distinguish between entire film scores and especially written songs. Voting begins next month after the deadline for applications close at 6 p.m. on March 3.

Dream Theater (John Petrucci, John Myung, Mike Portnoy and James LaBrie) played a special one-off date at Ronnie Scott's Jazz Club in London January 31. The EastWest band performed an intimate 90-minute set consisting of cover songs by artists influential to the group during their early years. Joining them for some onstage jamming were special guests from Napalm Death, Marillion and Yes. Pictured backstage are (back row, l-r): Petrucci; Steve Hogarth (Marillion); Derek Sherinian; Steve Howe (Yes); Myung; (front row): Steve Rothery (Marillion); LaBrie; Barney Greenway (Napalm Death); and Portnoy.

WARNER AND EMI MEDIA WINNERS: Warner and EMI acts were the biggest beneficiaries of last week's wave of post-Brit Awards media coverage. WEA's Brit opener Madonna and Blur, winners of four awards, dominated the newspaper and TV coverage after the event. While Blur's victory prompted most column inches with double-page spreads in the Daily Mirror, Today and Sun, it was Madonna who had the highest profile on newsstands.

LEVY EXPRESSES FEARS FOR DCC: New digital formats DCC and MiniDisc are in "intensive care," PolyGram chief Alain Levy told last week's annual results conference. Responding to claims that his company's DCC format is dead, PolyGram's president and chief operating officer said, "I think that is overstating the situation. The body is in about as good a state for MiniDisc as it is for DCC; it is certainly in the intensive care unit."

MPA HOSTS MOVIE MUSIC SEMINAR: The Music Publishers Association is hosting a seminar on music for films on March 29. Open to non-MPA members, the meeting will feature up to three expert speakers including Lonnie Sill, head of Windswept Pacific's film music department.

Steve Railsback, Flight Of The Dove Director

By John Goff

Director Steve Railsback makes a point, with the Dove Theresa Russell appreciating his point, during the AFM press conference.

HEY! SOMEBODY TELL STEVE RAILSBACK it's gloomy out. Well, it was February 25 in Santa Monica at the American Film Market (AFM). It was also early (8:30 a.m.), the noise level from the floor of Loews Santa Monica Hotel was only whispering over coffee and Danish. It was overcast outside. But inside Steve Railsback, director, was riding atop the cloud, up there where the sun touched and his enthusiasm wasn't going to let anything resembling gloom pass over him or anyone around him.

Back up a bit... Steve Railsback, director?

You bet. His debut directorial effort... watch for it: Flight Of The Dove, an espionage thriller which looks like a lot more than it actually was. It had to be considering Railsback made it under the aegis of Roger Corman, renowned for getting the best on-screen for the least off-screen. Corman is an institute in himself in the film business with the reputation of never having lost money on a film he was connected with. He knows his directors and so, here, Railsback follows in the footsteps of such other Corman first-timers as Martin Scorsese, Francis Ford Coppola, Ron Howard and Jonathan Demme, among others. The emphasis on a Corman first-timer historically is style, character and substance instead of flash and dash. Flash, dash and smoke-screening come later, with the bigger budgets and larger studios. Here you gotta make damned near every frame pay and pay off in a film. Here, you gotta know your craft.

Railsback hasn't been sleeping between scenes on all the sets he's been on as an actor. He's learned his business and you can bet we'll be seeing his name rising—yes, as Director—in the future.

"I always said, 'ten years down the road'," he said in regards to directing. "All of a sudden I looked around and ten years came up... (and) I've never had more fun in my life."

He says he "found the script after reading a number of them... and there was something special about it."

It's the story of a female secret agent (Theresa Russell) who's soured on the game and a tormented explosives expert (Scott Glenn) who happens across her path. She's trying to escape with her life and he helps her. There is a chemistry between them and they manage to lighten up the shadowy areas of each other's lives.

"From my first reading I wanted Scott and Theresa," Railsback said. He called and got them. He called in a few other favors also from Joe Pantoliano, Lane Smith, Terence Knox, Katharine Helmond and Alex Rocco to complete the cast, and he credits those actors with "making it happen" on screen, by bringing their best to their roles, reaching in and bringing out the excitement.

But it's not all acting. The director has to know when to leave an actor alone, when to encourage, pull back, shape. And Railsback has been under the guidance of some of the best. He credits directors Elia Kazan and Richard Rush with being large influences on his career as both actor and director. On Rush he says, "He'll let you fly, but he'll always be there to catch you... he's a very special man."

Railsback didn't say anything about giving up acting and it's doubtful he intends to, but he does have other plans as both producer and director with a co-production with Clint Eastwood's Malpasco Productions at Warners and another with Paramount. Directorially he has a project gearing up to begin sometime in June or July.

And the noise level was rising then. Maybe the day had appropriated some of director Steve Railsback's excitement because it was as if he had called "Action!" The market and its participants took the cue and Action took over the floor. The wheeling and dealing that goes on at every AFM was heating up as Railsback emerged from the Arcadia Ballroom and into the action, really a part of it—Actor and Director.

Power Moves & Elroy's Toy

A PAIR FROM MIRAMAR, the Seattle-based company continually pushing the computer animation boundaries in entertainment, education and visual/aural combination, as usual these home videos are splendidly crafted and well worth the look.

Power Moves combines the often poetic grace of athletes in such varied sports as skiing, speed skating, synchronized sky diving (sky dancing?), track and field athletics, gymnastics, swimming and diving—the latter in the form of two-time Olympic platform and springboard Gold medalist Greg Louganis—with music to enhance the fluid movements for total enjoyment. One wouldn't think there could be poetry or grace in rock climbing, but as director Jan C. Nickman (The Mind's Eye, Natural States) joins the images with James Reynolds' on-the-dime score there is that and more. Viewers will feel the tension, the adrenaline rush that goes with the excitement of the varied sports and often feel they are there.

Nickman, who has pioneered the long-form music video, teamed with Action Sports Adventure Productions for this one with super results.

Elroy's Toy is a computer and Elroy a young computer-created puppetlike-student out to do his homework when a pranky computer chip and his dog show up to take him on a computer-world journey which is entertaining, inspiring and mind-capturing. Show this to your youngsters for inspiration, but be prepared to allow them plenty of time at the keyboard. This is the latest in Miramar's award-winning Imagination Series, and it will continue to stimulate young imaginations.

Again directed by Jan C. Nickman, the images are humorous and inventive, bringing a viewer right into the screen with the action via colorful animation and catchy original music by Bob Safir. The text was written by Nathan House and Dan Jex and Nickman produced. (BMG Distribution).

Antonio Carlos Jobim: An All-Star Tribute

By M.R. Martinez

YOU ALMOST DON'T have to watch this exquisite document that pays visceral tribute to one of modern music's most enduring innovators to enjoy it. The late Antonio Carlos Jobim, the man who married the "soft samba" with jazz into the form known as "bossa nova," is given praise in music by people like Herbie Hancock (who serves as musical director on this video collection), Joe Henderson, Shirley Horn, Jon Hendricks, Gal Costa and young turk Gonzalo Rubalcaba. The music varies in tempo and texture throughout, demonstrating why Jobim, who is seen here in his last concert appearance, has been considered one of the most versatile songwriters of his generation. Much of his lesser-known work and work that he has inspired is featured; his famous "Girl From Ipanema" (featuring Costa and Hendricks) is the only major songbook selection in this film. But the artists, which also include drummer Alex Acuna, bassist Ron Carter and Alviro Jobim, prevail in the spirit of a man whose music will not let him die. (V.I.E.W. Video, Jazz Series).

Hollywood's Roommates A Fine Pair To Draw To

By John Goff

Peter Falk and D.B. Sweeney play cards to settle arguments but walk through life in step with each other.

ROOMMATES IS A WONDERFUL LOVE STORY on several levels. At the outset you have the feeling it's going to get smarmy—irascible old granddad taking on his five-year-old orphaned grandson to raise. I suppose that presentiment comes with sitting through a better-than-the-average amount of movies, a certain amount of cynicism sets in. Don't do that. You'll enjoy it even more than I did and I liked it immensely. It's not smarmy. It even plays against sentimentality most of the time, working everything out as totally realistic and, therefore, acceptable.

The screenplay by Max Apple and Stephen Metcalfe, from a book based on Apple's own grandparent, employs great dignity in dealing with the love of a grandfather for grandson, man for woman and vice versa, and love of family. It gives great dignity to the aging process (something this country has pushed into the shadows) through the character played by Peter Falk, and it gives dignity to the family unit (another endangered species) through love without ever saying the word. Indeed, love is only verbalized a couple times in the film. Mostly it's displayed, and if you can't display it, you don't have it. It's a wonderfully crafted piece of work.

Peter Yates directs with strength, keeps it from falling into traps of asking for sentiment. Make no mistake, you're going to choke up several times, but it's only because you'll either recognize the emotion, find yourself remembering a similar situation from your own past or wishing you had had or were capable of the love and dignity presented. And it's all presented simply, without fanfare, with...dignity.

Falk and D.B. Sweeney are the grandfather-grandson "roommates" of the title and play off one another realistically. Falk, who ages from 75 to 107, pulls out many colors from the character and doesn't rely totally on the one-note curmudgeonly aspect a lesser actor could have coasted through with...some of his best work in years. Sweeney convinces that he's blood-related, simply a different generation. Julianne Moore, an actress on the rise, offers a solid portrayal of the woman who comes between the two, slightly, but overcomes it through understanding. Ellen Burstyn steps confidently as an overbearing, upwardly mobile mother and mother-in-law with a control problem.

Falk's age make-up was created by Cannom Creations, who did the same for Mrs. Doubtfire and Bram Stoker's Dracula and progresses the aging process subtly...a fine job.

Elmer Bernstein's music offers the same dignity as the script and direction. The Interscope Communications/PolyGram Filmed Entertainment Production in association with Nomura Babcock & Brown film was produced by Ted Field, Scott Kroopf and Robert W. Cort. Executive producers were Adam Leipzig and Ira Halberstadt.

REVIEWS By Richard McVey

■ WADE HAYES: Old Enough To Know Better (Columbia 66412)

With his distinctive yet somehow familiar vocals, Wade Hayes has already hit #1 with the title cut and first release off this debut project. Take note however: the rest of the album is surprisingly very traditional in style. Songs like "Family Reunion" and "Someone Had To Teach You" are the best examples of Hayes' take on his country roots. As a refreshing break from many of today's newcomers, Hayes' debut effort lacks many of the "fluff" aspects that sometimes materialize in "Young Country" albums. Other standout cuts include the upbeat, honky-tonk "Don't Make Me Come To Tulsa," the guitar-driven "Don't Stop" and the scheduled second single release, "I'm Still Dancin' With You." For those country listeners who have one foot in traditional and one in modern, Old Enough To Know Better is the perfect country album.

■ NOAH GORDON: I Need A Break (Patriot 81221)

A high dose of energy is evident on a debut album that packs a quick one-two punch with "One Quarter At A Time" and "Gettin' To You." Gordon, who co-wrote every cut on the album, brings forth his writing as well as his vocal talents. While the ballads ("Prayin' For You" and "After Ours") offer up the best lyrical content, producer Steve Gibson adds the extra touches on fast cuts to ensure the possibility of commercial success. Although his first single release, "The Blue Pages," met with mediocre success, don't count Gordon out yet. His second release, "I Need A Break," just hit radio and may be the springboard this album needs.

■ SHANIA TWAIN: The Woman In Me (Mercury 522886)

Although Shania Twain's face is on the cover, this project is as close to a duo as you get. With all 12 songs written or co-written by Twain and her husband/producer/background vocalist Robert John "Mutt" Lange, this album is the culmination of the two. Twain's vocal prowess shines on ballads as well as the uptempo cuts. Whether it's the fiery fiddle and "We Will Rock You"-drum beat on "Any Man Of Mine" or the current uptempo release, "Whose Bed Have Your Boots Been Under?," this album may provide more solid ground to work with than her previous debut release. One of the most noticeable differences on the album comes in the way of production. Exiting from their production duties on the first album are Harold Shedd and Norro Wilson, who are replaced by Lange. If you're looking for a great voice and some not-so-traditional country production, Shania Twain and The Woman In Me delivers.

PICK OF THE WEEK

■ JOHN BERRY: Standing On The Edge (Patriot 28495)

So much for the sophomore jinx...Berry, following his successful debut album, offers up an impressive 11-cut project. As expected, Berry's vocals stand as the cornerstone for an album that embraces great melodies via "I Think About It All The Time" and "Ninety Miles An Hour"; great lyrics via "If I Had Any Pride Left At All" and "There's No Cross That Love Won't Bear"; and great production via "I Never Lost You." Berry even included his latest hit, "You And Only You," which can also be found on his first album. To best sum up the album, Berry said it best in an interview with Cash Box last year: "It's emotions put to music."

■ DEAN CHANCE: Standing Up For Country (SOR 0081)

With a title that stands as a bit of a pun, this album is made up of country-styled, predominantly patriotic songs. From the title cut, which is being used by the United States Army as an international recruiting anthem to the classic "Star Spangled Banner," Chance covers a lot of flag-waving ground. However, with five cuts written by Chance, he does cut loose on some great country songs like "In The Middle Of A Heartbreak" and "Will You Stay With Me?" Other standard cuts include "God Bless The U.S.A" and even the Elvis classic "An American Trilogy." The last cut, "Giving," was written by Chance, who performed it at the White House and is donating the proceeds from the song to the Youth Service of America organization. If patriotic and country is your style, look no further than Standing Up For Country.

Indie Spotlight

David Clark

IT WAS IN THE SMALL TOWN of Thompsonville, Illinois that a young David Clark grew up listening to the likes of George Jones, Loretta Lynn, Buck Owens and Charley Pride. The Clark household was filled with the sounds of country music. In fact, it has always been a part of Clark's life. He relates, "My mother and younger sister always sang around the house and I've listened to country music as far back as I can remember."

It was at the ripe old age of eight that David made his first public appearance as a singer. "I was in front of our school's PTA, the students and their parents. It really didn't bother me at all. In fact, by the time we finished, I was loving it."

Although his love for music never wavered, it was difficult for Clark to find the time to show off his God-given vocal talents, which were confined to singing in the shower and along with the radio. His talents had been recognized, however, and over the years he had entertained several offers to join local bands. He remained hesitant about taking the plunge into the world of professional music—that is until he was prompted by co-workers, who heard him singing along with the radio, to enter a nationally-sponsored talent show.

Needless to say, Clark made the trip to Nashville, and his version of the Lionel Cartwright tune "Leap Of Faith" wowed many of those in the audience that night, including producer Steven Brown, who later produced two cuts for Clark on Platinum Plus Records, Cash Box's "Independent Label of the Year."

According to Brown, "We saw him on the stage performing and loved his presentation. He has a real quality voice—a seasoned country voice. There's a lot of people who think they can sing that have a lot of growing to do, but David is definitely not one of them. He has great control of what he's doing vocally and we felt that he was highly marketable for country music."

As for David Clark's future, it seems that with his talent, looks, drive and his family and co-workers standing firmly behind him, this country boy will make it yet.

Music On Hard-Drive: A Q&A With Dave Scott of Scott Studios

Give just a little background on yourself.

Well, radio and music have just been my life for a long time. I was a ham operator in suburban Detroit, and I worked in college radio in Ann Arbor at the University of Michigan. I have been involved in computers. I won the National Science Fair and the Detroit Science Fair back in the early '60s, and have just been in radio up to my ears ever since I was old enough to ride my bike to a radio station. I worked part-time in radio, ended up in St. Louis with a few shares of stock in a St. Louis suburban station, and we started another station, which was an FM....

I've been making tapes ever since, and I went to Dallas in '75 as the manager of a company called Century 21 Programming and made automation tapes. We bought out a competitor called TM about five or six years ago. I was the chairman and CEO of Century 21 and TM Century for a total of 17 years. Three years ago, I started my own company called Scott Studios, and we're doing digital audio, mostly music, on hard-drive. We do some systems with CD jukeboxes, but nobody buys them. For every one jukebox, we sell 200 music on hard-drive systems. We're doing computerized cart-machine elimination.

For a small- or medium-market station, what would you say to them as far as having music on hard-drive? What's the advantage?

The main advantage of music on hard-drive is convenience. You've got a thousand songs, more or less, just at your fingertips. With a touch-screen controller, you touch one key and you're into an alphabetical sort, either by title or by artist or by length or by year or by categories or however you want to define it. And you can go through and pick a song, play instant requests. So there's really an awful lot of convenience. I'm not sure if the convenience in the music is as important as the convenience for the comedy bits, the drop-ins, some of the other things that would be vital to a morning show, especially your fast-paced foreground-type morning show.

The other fringe benefit to most of the computerized systems is that you can voice-track and walk away from the station for a night shift or an overnight shift. So the free benefit is that you can do some voice-tracking and instead of having bad part-timers on the weekend, you have people that sound pretty good but are not really in the radio station at the time their show's played back.

How good is the system now as far as talk-overs, getting the system to do ducking properly over music with a voice?

The system is extremely good. You can do everything with the system now that you could do live or that you could even visualize. It just works fine.

If management decided, "Let's explore putting a computer in here," what kind of investment are they looking at? Can existing equipment be used if they already have a 486 with a hard-drive in it? What are we looking at price-wise here?

Well, a complete system with everything delivered and installed and to do it right is in the ballpark of $30,000. That looks like it's more than a car and almost a small house, but the thing is, on a lease payment that's probably well under $1000 a month. So most radio stations don't really have a problem doing a lease payment that's well under $1000 a month for something that is operating like that. And usually they can justify that by eliminating even one salary.

Of course, the other thing is, it costs a certain amount to be in business, even if you don't go buy anything new. Just getting old carts rewound and getting new heads and having an engineer tinker with a cart machine that frankly, after he tinkers with it, might sound good for a couple days...you know, two weeks after the engineer spends hundreds and hundreds of dollars tinkering with it and putting in a part here and there, you end up sounding just as bad after a while anyway. And if the carts aren't any good, it doesn't matter how good the machine is.

If a station wanted to put their jingles, commercials, drop-ins, production aids for the morning show or the rest of the day together, what would it cost to do a basic system like that? What are the advantages, long- and short-term, at that point?

The cost for the lowest of low-end cart machine elimination is about $12,500. The cost to really do it right, you're gonna be in the high teens, and I'll just say...you'll get change back from $20,000, but don't count on an awful lot of change. By the time it's delivered and installed, you really have the interface to the traffic system and the interface to the music scheduler and all the things that you're gonna want. The main benefit is the flexibility. With a touch-screen system, you've got instant access to everything. And so if you've got 500 spots, if you've got 500 different bits and drop-ins, there they are. They're a lot easier to access, they're a lot faster. You can plug something in on the spur-of-the-moment and have the ability to access things.

We all know that there's a joke somewhere but we just can't find it in our 3-x-5 cards. We all know that there's a good sound effect, we just can't find it in our stack of cards. And what would it be worth to you to have access to your full arsenal of all the recordings that you've ever done on a virtually instant basis? And when I say instant basis, worst-case, would be a second or two...if you've got a caller on the phone and they trigger an idea that would be just perfect but you don't have that two minutes to go find whatever it is you need to find and set it up and all that sort of stuff.

To start up from ground zero and buy six brand-new stereo cart machines with all the whistles and bells on them that are necessary for FM broadcasting today, what would that set a radio station back?

I think the record unit for the production room is upwards of $6000 these days. With a couple of triple-deckers, you're gonna end up spending a couple of grand a deck times six. So somebody's really gonna have an amount that shoots the heck out of $20,000 just in cart machines, if you were going to buy a brand-new one today.

If you get the system we're talking about—your system—and put this thing in, they have one master computer. Is that correct?

Well, we have at least two and often three. So there'd be one in the air studio that does all the playback and there's one in the production studio that does all the recording and archiving everything.

What about music scheduling and computer-assisted logs?

What we do in the system is: we're going into your existing commercial scheduler or traffic and billing computer and putting in what's called a local area network card. What that does is connects your traffic and billing system into your air studio, which is also connected into your production studio. Then in a music-oriented system, we also would go into your music scheduler computer and we would also go into your copy computer or your P.D.'s office, any of those. So the first thing you know, you've got five or six different studios in your radio station that are all connected together. This means that if somebody in the copy department changes copy, it's instantly in the air studio. As the music logs are done for the day, as you schedule the music, it's instantly into the air studio.

Road Gang Relocates To Nashville

Cash Box talks with Micki McIntyre, network director for the Road Gang, the coast-to-coast radio network serving the trucking industry for over 23 years.

ROAD GANG COAST TO COAST RADIO NETWORK

Discuss your background in the radio business.

I started in radio in 1978 with WLW in Cincinnati. It was on the business side of the industry, and I worked for various ownership changes and survived every one of them (laughs)....

And then I was working for the general manager and the vice president of sales, and in 1984 they put a truck radio program on, overnight, midnight to 5:00 a.m., and asked me to put it together and sell it. So of course I said, "No," because I didn't know how to sell (laughs). But then I went to one of the major truck shows in Louisville, Kentucky and saw the potential for sales and turned around and tripled my income the very first year on truck radio sales overnight. All that found money was very intriguing to the radio group.

I stuck with that until 1988. I was hired away by a truck magazine group who put a feature together on various stations and had an unwired network with a news delivery for the truck industry. I was there for a while and then I was hired away again by a group out of Chicago for a truck radio wired network. I worked there for awhile and was finally hired away again by the Key Market Group in November of 1991.

Key Market purchased WWL 870 AM in New Orleans from the Jesuits. The Road Gang had been on WWL for approximately 17 years from the time I started with them. Charlie Douglas originated the show and Dave Nemo was Charlie Douglas' backup on this huge, 50,000-watt clear signal. And it was always for the truck drivers. Country music, 800 number live call-in from the drivers on the road. The Road Gang was just a legend. Then Charlie Douglas left WWL and came to Nashville to set up a country radio network. He was on WSM until he just recently retired within the last couple of weeks. Well, when Charlie left, Dave Nemo as his backup, slid right into the spot and the Road Gang just kept on truckin', if you will.

When Key Market bought the entire station from the Jesuits, the owner of Key Market, said, "Look, this legend needs to be heard all over the country. Let's put it up on satellite. Let's put together a truck radio network." So we all put our heads together, they brought me in to do that, and we started out with KRVN 880 AM out of Lexington, Nebraska with a 50,000-watt signal. That was our first on the bird. From there we had a station in Wheeling, West Virginia for a while. So this thing continued to grow, without changing a thing on the program as far as delivery and format and information for truck drivers and country music. It has grown now into six 50,000-watt clear-channel AMs: WWKB in Buffalo, New York; WLAC 1510 AM in Nashville; WWLA 870 AM in New Orleans; KXDL, Waterloo, Iowa; KRVN is still with us, 880 AM in Lexington, Nebraska; and KSL 1160 in Salt Lake City, Utah. We're on that bird out of Louisiana Network in Baton Rouge, and we're live seven nights a week from 11:30 p.m. (Central) until 6:00 a.m.

It's been said that AM radio is dead.

(Laughs) Well, I don't know who started that ugly rumor. But the reason we're on the air is to keep the long-distance truck driver alert, entertained, informed and get him safely from point A to point B. You can't do that with FM signals. There are too many dial divisions to change, too many digital settings to go to. We've got six of the most powerful 50,000-watt AM stations in the U.S. We just tell them, "Set your dials now to these positions" and we run it down, starting with 870 and going right up the dial. They've got us on six dial positions from Maine to L.A. We blanket the U.S. So if AM is dead, I think somebody better tell about 1.5 million truck drivers that they're not listening to anything but dead air.

You have made a big move. You're now in the Music City.

That's right. WLAC was purchased by Key Market in the spring of last year. WLAC's location is Interstate 40, exit 209. And it's right on Music Circle. We're right down the street from all the publishers. You can have these people after they complete a recording session stop in at the studio. So this is the reason we are here. We are here to support the country music industry and service our audience even better.

One of the things that we're doing is we're going to be broadcasting live from Tootsie's Orchid Lounge. We're going to be doing approximately three hours of the show about once a month from Tootsie's. We're going to be bringing people in, and it's going to be live from the Green Room. And what we're going to do is have the patrons of Tootsie's vote on bands, if you will...going back to the battle of the bands, battle of the talent. And then we're going to feature that particular monthly winner live on the Road Gang. That's one concept.

The other concept is we're starting a new feature called "Shooting Star of the Week." We're going to have up-and-coming artists in development and writers in the studio live with us and they can perform live or they can bring us their latest demo. We'll talk to them about what they're doing, where they're going, where they've been, the entire history of that artist. And it's going to be live nationwide on the Road Gang....

We also go all over the country to truck stops and we do live-action broadcasts, full show. We do a lot of pre-promoting about our live broadcasts. And we invite them to come, bring their instrument, bring their talent, we'll put 'em live on the Road Gang. This is their show, because we are audience-driven, we're not advertiser-driven. We are on the air for the audience who appreciates the Road Gang, whether it's a long-distance truck driver or a third-shift worker or an insomniac. We are on the air for the audience.

What about acquiring more stations? Are you working on anything right now?

Well, as a matter of fact, we've had an inquiry from CKLW [in Canada], talking about doing overnight truck radio. They realize that we're U.S.-driven basically, but our weather information that is so critical to the truck industry occurs at :15 and :45 past each hour. That information goes up into Canada and we give it by interstates, North and South and East and West. It's critical information to any driver. And now, since NAFTA has occurred, where the borders have opened up, we've got a lot of Canadian trucks coming South and then going back up into the Provinces. So we feel that we can be of use to CKLW. With that powerful signal, we can help out the Canadian market quite a bit. We are looking at the Washington State area and we're in talks with a few stations up in that area. But at this particular point, with our overlapping signal strength on the 50s, we're pretty much blanketing the U.S. with what we have right now—although we never turn down a station who would like to pick up the Road Gang. If they have the receiver and they want to pull it in, we will tell our audience what that station is, their calls and their dial position. And we welcome them aboard.

Brian Barrett: From Pilot to Performer

By Wendy Newcomer

NEW STAR SONG ARTIST Brian Barrett did not aspire to have a career in music. The Mona, Tennessee native originally planned to join the military and follow in his father's footsteps, becoming a pilot. But, as divine intervention would have it, Barrett instead followed in The Father's footsteps and pursued a career in Christian music.

"It [music] is nothing that I set out to do," says Barrett. "I came back from college...and I was planning on flying airplanes. I wound up videotaping the revival service, running camera at this little church in Smyrna [Tennessee]. God knocked on my heart's door...and I gave my life over to Christ."

At that same revival meeting, Barrett met a songwriter who took him under his wing and helped mold his songwriting talents. "It was about then that I decided I wanted a career in this music," he says. A meeting with Word Music soon led to a year-long writing stint. Barrett then gained industry attention when he entered and won the Gospel Music Association's New Artist Showcase in 1992, which eventually led him to sign with Star Song as both a writer and an artist.

Although Barrett never dreamed of having success as a Christian artist, his background is filled with many musical memories. As a child, he listened to 45s on his parent's cabinet stereo. The sounds of '50s and '60s doo-wop groups, Elvis, Chuck Berry, and music of the Grand Ole Opry provided a diverse history from which to learn. "I like guitar music, because that's what I play," he says. "My dad taught me how to play guitar when I was 11. He was a songwriter, too, so I grew up listening to his songs." Barrett's brothers also influenced his musical tastes. "I listened to whatever they played, so it's varied, from all sorts of different directions."

In high school, Barrett played in his first band, which was guided by the school band director. "It was great. We were doing the garage band thing, four of us in the senior class. He knew there was some talent there, but he knew it needed to be harnessed and put in a direction, so we wouldn't just go off into everybody doing a solo at the same time," he says. "It taught me discipline and practice, and to work things out so that you do the best with what you've got." The band, which played Christian music, even entered a competition at Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Oklahoma. "I don't think we won anything, but we had a blast doing it. It was fun," says Barrett.

Building on those early experiences, the singer-songwriter began to choose songs for his self-titled debut album. "We sat down and wrote quite a bit," recalls Barrett, who co-wrote seven of the 10 songs on the album. "I went back and picked two or three that I'd written a couple of years ago. And then I wrote some with the producer and some of the players that were on the album," he says. "It just kind of came together. Even the ones I didn't write I can relate to. There are little bits and pieces of me in each song."

Many of the songs on the album are written from a first-person point of view. "They're very introspective...really a Christian's heart-cry to God," says Barrett. "And I think [it's] who we are, and realizing who we are. This first album was a lot of that."

Since the debut of his single "No One Knows My Heart," Barrett has experienced a few surprises regarding the music business. "I guess the surprise is how much time you don't have. There's a lot more business and a lot more time-consuming things other than artistry, and it takes a lot out of you," he says.

Barrett has also been surprised at the amount of traveling required of a new artist. "I've been doing mostly a lot of solo dates...and visiting radio stations at the same time," he says. And radio has welcomed him with open arms, as is evident in the array of formats on which he has been getting airplay. "Radio's received me really well. It's really amazing to watch. All across the board I seem to get airplay [in] just about every format, from A/C to CHR to Christian Country to Country."

With his radio-friendly country-pop sound, this newcomer could have gone in many different musical directions while still managing to live a Christian life. However, Barrett's choice of artistic expression was made without regard to music. "You know, there are people who are Christians who are doing secular music. For me, it has nothing to do with music at all. It really doesn't. It has everything to do with who Christ is," he explains. "The reason I chose Christian music is because of everything that's real in my life...I just wanted to express that, and it seemed the best venue would be Christian music, because the message is pretty clear. I think God just said, 'I'm going to give you the boldness to say what needs to be said and call it what it is.'"

As his first single swiftly moves up the Cash Box Positive/Christian Country charts, Barrett is already preparing for his second album, due out in August. The sophomore release will be produced by Warner Brothers' country artist Russ Taff (formerly a Contemporary Christian artist) and James Hollihan. "I'm looking forward to it...and I'm excited about the songs we're picking. I'll be writing quite a bit for it and playing on the album," he says.

Fans of Barrett's sound can expect more of the same, along with a few surprises, on the second album. "I think it will have a little bit of a different sound, simply because of the environment and, of course, the different producers," he says. "I'd like to stick to a bit of a country/pop thing, for sure. But you never know, we may even throw in a little rock & roll and boogie woogie in there," he adds. As for touring to support his albums, Barrett says, "There will probably be a fall tour. And we've talked about going over to Europe, also. Those things are in the works."

As a new artist in the relatively new format of Positive/Christian Country, Barrett has several goals he would like to attain—but these goals aren't entirely dependent upon chart successes and album sales. "As a Christian artist, I would like to express the realness of Christ and that He is my goal as an artist. If I've communicated an authenticity and a love of Christ, then that's being successful."

"The reason I chose Christian Music is because of everything that's real in my life."

PAPA 5 Produces New World Pinball Champ

NEW YORK—Despite a weekend blizzard which frosted the Big Apple, over 800 players from 27 states and nine countries competed in the February 3-5 PAPA 5 World Pinball Championships for almost $40,000 in prizes. The fifth annual championships took place at the Park Central Hotel in New York City.

Paul Madison, a 25-year-old man from Minneapolis, earned the title of World's Greatest Pinball Player, defeating Lyman "Silk" Sheets, 1993 world champion. Madison scored 3,187,218,330 points on the new Williams' Dirty Harry machine, taking home $2,000, a new pinball machine and a trophy along with the title.

Other winners included Natalie Baker, a 24-year-old student from New Haven, Connecticut, who took the top spot in the Women's Division, and 15-year-old Chicagoan Joshua "Razor" Sharpe, who conquered the Junior's Division.

PAPA 5 saw an unprecedented representation of flipper enthusiasts from nine countries, including champion teams from Austria, France, Denmark and Sweden and players from the United Kingdom, Australia, Japan, Canada and Brazil. While strong international players have made individual appearances at past PAPA tournaments, in terms of overall placement, this was the first year in which teams from other countries gave Americans some tough competition.

Amtex Software, leading manufacturer of computer simulation pinball games, brought a new dimension to this event with Cyberclash '95, a tournament-within-a-tournament. Playing on Amtex's hyper-realistic simulations of the classic games Eight-Ball Deluxe and Royal Flush, players fought it out for $7,500 in prize money.

The Professional and Amateur Pinball Association (PAPA) was created in 1986 by Steve Epstein, owner of New York's legendary Broadway Arcade. Since 1991, PAPA has been hosting the World Pinball Championships in New York. The event has become the premiere international venue for the rapidly expanding field of competitive pinball, and pinball manufacturers are known to time the releases of their newest games to premiere at the championships. This year, the following games were introduced at PAPA: Williams' Dirty Harry, Premier/Gottlieb's Shaq Attaq, Sega Pinball's Frankenstein and Bally's The Shadow.

Mortal Kombat Tour Kicks Off This Summer

CHICAGO—Mortal Kombat: The Live Tour, adapted from the highly successful video game and, reportedly, the first live show to feature interactive audience participation, is set to kick off in summer '95 with one of the most extensive cross-promotional packages in the history of live tours.

Renowned live-show producer David Fishof is currently speaking with potential major sponsors for the $2.5 million, 100-plus market national tour, which will feature state-of-the-art special effects and lasers, illusion, martial arts and, courtesy of CD-ROM, precedent-setting audience participation opportunities, allowing the audience to actually influence the sequence of events and eventual outcome of each performance. Co-executive producers of the show are Danny Simon, president of the Licensing Group, and Larry Kasanoff, producer of Mortal Kombat: The Movie.

Fishof, who is responsible for some of the most lucrative tours in the industry, including The Monkees Reunion Tour, The "Dirty Dancing" Concert Tour, Ringo Starr and His All Starr Band and The "American Gladiators" Live Tour, is planning aggressive cross-promotional tie-ins with the numerous current and upcoming Mortal Kombat opportunities. Discount coupons for the tour will be packaged with Mortal Kombat home video products and tag lines for the show will run on the arcade versions of the game. Over 50,000 Mortal Kombat arcade units are in virtually every entertainment center in the world.

Additional plans call for New Line Cinema's Mortal Kombat: The Movie to feature tag lines for the live tour.

The Mortal Kombat franchise extends to over 50 licensees, including Acclaim, Tiger Electronics, Malibu Comics, Berkeley Books and Hasbro, which will feature the show information on Mortal Kombat toy packaging.

Mortal Kombat: The Live Tour will be directed by Jeff Lee (Joseph and His Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, Cats). Ticket prices will start at $10. Over 20 of the world's finest martial arts experts will star in each of the two simultaneously-touring units.

Booked by International Creative Management, the tour will play in large arenas such as Madison Square Garden in New York, The Rosemont Horizon in Chicago and The Forum in Los Angeles. The show will also tour internationally.
