Council tables vote on 200-home development

By JENNIFER L. RODGERS
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Hoping for a "more creative" proposal, Newark City Council members voted Monday night to postpone their decision about rezoning land between William M. Redd Park and Curtis Mill Road to accommodate 200 new homes.

Although the housing plan would decrease traffic by down zoning the 74.12 acres of land from manufacturing to residential, most council members weren't persuaded to vote for it.

The land in question, owned in trust by S. Hallock duPont, is zoned for a 600,000 square-foot office building. The zoning, known as manufacturing, was negotiated and agreed to when the city annexed the property in 1989.

Richard "Dick" du Pont, family representative for the land, told council it was originally his plan to construct the building, but admitted he miscalculated the market for office space, saying it has decreased by "leaps and bounds."

He explained that his family believed it was prudent to benefit from the land's sale now, rather than wait out the lull in the office-space market. He also assured council he would construct the building eventually if the residential zoning was not approved.

When councilmembers Thomas Wampler, Irene Zych and Jane

Tripp listed the reasons they opposed the rezoning, it began to look as if the proposal were doomed. However, Councilman Hal Godwin moved to table the proposal. Council unanimously agreed.

"City council members seemed awfully mushy," Godwin said. "They couldn't make any decisions."

The city's ability to provide services, such as water, electric, police and trash pick-up to 200 new homes and overcrowding schools were among the reasons dissenting councilmembers discussed. Upsetting the ratio of houses-to-offices was another concern.

Al Porach, a Park Place resident, asked why a more innovative cluster housing option was not presented for council to consider. Porach suggested more diversity in the types of houses and more

Wave of burglaries under investigation

By TONJA CASTANEDA
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark is experiencing a rash of commercial burglaries. Since May, cash has been reported stolen from 14 local businesses.

"We believe there is a relationship between the burglaries," said Newark Police Chief William Hogan. "We think that many of the burglaries, if not all, are related."

Main Street businesses that have been burglarized the last few months include: Blue Hen Comics, Grassroots, Bing's Bakery, L & N Laundry, the Newark Senior Center and Newark Chinese Laundry.

Businesses burglarized on New London Road include New No. 1 Chinese Restaurant and Subway Sandwich Shop.

Other cash burglaries have been reported at Sally Beauty Supply, College Square Shopping Center; Bileyn Hair Co., Haines Street; Pepper's Pizza Restaurant, South College Avenue; Oaklands Swim Club; Hillside Road, Video Paradise and The Barber Shop on Elkton Road.

There have been attempted burglaries at Agency Rent-A-Car and Pizza Movers, both on Elkton Road. Merchandise has been reported stolen from Blue Hen Comics, Delaware Tire on South College Avenue, Nottingham Swim Club on Radcliffe Drive and Persimmon Creek Swim Club on Arbour Drive.

Hogan said the police department has developed leads in the burglaries and have some suspects.

The only burglaries police do not believe are linked, Hogan said, are the break-ins at three swim clubs in Newark. "These were probably committed by juveniles who broke in to swim there," he said.

Police are closely following the pattern of burglaries, Hogan said. Police presence has been increased on Main Street, he added.

Although Hogan would not specify the number of police working on the burglary cases, he said that the department is taking a "team approach" by spreading out the number of officers investigating the cases.

"We've put an extraordinary number of hours into this," Hogan

Office supply distribution center brings jobs here

By JENNIFER L. RODGERS
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

About 100 jobs have been added to the greater Newark area economy this summer.

Staples, Inc., an office supply store pioneer that operates 261 stores nationwide, recently opened a new East Coast warehouse distribution center in the Interchange Business Park off Elkton Road in Newark.

Staples had been looking for another east coast distribution center, and the Delaware Development Office recruited the company, according to Christine Watson, communications manager at the development office.

Delaware's low taxes, operation costs and convenient transportation routes enticed the company to choose the Small Wonder as its home, according to Beth Stone, spokesperson for Staples.

About 43 employees have been hired so far, and Stone said the remaining people will be hired by October.

The new distribution store will serve Staples' retail stores in the Mid-Atlantic and west to Ohio. The Newark distribution store received its first product shipment June 29.

No 'Wilburfest' action until fall

By JENNIFER L. RODGERS
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark City Council voted 4-to-3 Monday night to postpone voting on an ordinance aimed toward an annual student party saying they would rather wait than appear sneaky.

The all-day event held in the backyards of five houses on Wilbur Street is attended by as many as 5,000 students, most from the University of Delaware. When alcohol is added, the event becomes an extremely large and sometimes out of hand beer bash. Newark police arrested 84 people this year.

Referencing a July 8 editorial in the Newark Post that suggested council postpone the vote and avoid the appearance of a clandestine vote was read aloud during the meeting, councilmen Jane Tripp, Irene Zych, Tony Felicia and Mayor Ronald Gardner supported the delay. Councilmen Hal Godwin, Gerry Grant and Thomas Wampler voted against the postponement.

"Perceptions are really important," said Zych when referring to students' perceptions. "If the perception is there that we sneaked it (the ordinance) through, although we didn't, it's worth waiting."

However, Sue Lamblock, city secretary, said there is nothing abnormal about discussing the ordinance now. It was placed on the agenda as soon as the new language was finished, which actually took longer because of its legal nature.

"The ordinance is on docket in July because the students raised so much cain in May," Godwin said.

Godwin, who initiated the ordinance that will require organizers of a large party to reimburse the city for expenses— even if it is on private property, said he is more concerned about the residents who live in the area year round.

Wilburfest organizers traditionally charge $5-6 for admission to the party and donate most of the proceeds to the Emmaus House, a homeless family shel-

Roadside stand a 17-year-old summertime fixture

What a Newark couple began in 1977 as a way to counter unemployment has blossomed into an annual summertime tradition on Salem Church Road.

Helen & Tom's Garden Fresh Produce, owned by Tom and Helen Eldridge, began when Tom was laid off 17 years ago. "We went went down to Middletown to pick strawberries and came back and sold them to supplement our income," he said.

The stand, across from Christiana High School, has evolved and now offers an array of produce ranging from sweet corn and tomatoes, green peppers, yellow squash and cucumbers to lemons, peaches, strawberries, watermelons and cantaloupes.

"We keep saying every year that we're not going to run it again," Tom said. "but customers come to the house in the spring asking when we're going to open." This year the stand opened June 23 and will close the week after Labor Day, around Sept. 15.

Tom said he sells 800 to 900 ears of corn and more than 250 pounds of tomatoes daily.

He has to estimate how much will sell in one day, because he journeys every morning at 5:30 a.m. to southern Delaware to buy freshly picked produce at Money's Farm in Middletown or Willey's Farm in Odessa.

He said he enjoys the morning ritual of driving the 40-plus mile round trip. "One morning I saw a red fox and recently I saw a new fawn," he said.

Eldridge, 70 and retired from the Medical Center of Delaware as a stationary engineer, does grow his own vegetables on his property in a garden that covers three-fourths of an acre.

"From the very beginning we sold stuff from our garden and customers were our neighbors and friends," he said. "And they still are."

"We sell the best and I pay top dollar for everything," he said.

But customers do not pay high prices. Eldridge said he tries to sell his produce 25 to 75 cents below what grocery stores charge.

Prices range from corn at $2.95 a dozen, tomatoes $2 for two and a half pounds, and watermelon,

Police beat

Man arrested for burglarizing church: Newark police responded to a call July 6 from the Newark United Methodist Church Organist about a man burglarizing the church on Main Street. Police arrested Maurice Jamal Williams, 21, of Elsmere for third degree burglary, possession of burglary tools and criminal impersonation. Police said they found a wristwatch and a scale on Williams, which was property of the church. Williams was arraigned at Court 11 and committed to Gander Hill Prison in lieu of bail. Police would not comment if the incident is connected to the rash of burglaries the last few months in Newark.

Produce stolen: Vince's Produce on Marrows Road was reportedly burglarized twice in one week. On July 5, five cases of soda and assorted fruit were reported stolen. On July 10, a crate of tomatoes and a crate of cherry tomatoes were reported stolen, police reported.

Police catch suspected bike thieves:

While on a plain clothes assignment July 8, Newark police officers saw three men steal a bike from the garage of a house on the corner of Ritter Lane and Phillips Avenue. Police followed the men and saw one of them riding the bike and the other two following on foot. Police said they confronted the men. One man fled, but the other two, Matthew Morgan, 18, of Newark and Oliver Cobuccio, 18, of Newark were arrested and charged them both with receiving stolen property.

Police scratched, cut:

Two police officers sustained cuts and scratches on their arms, wrists and hands during the July 9 arrest of a 25-year-old Newark man. Newark police answered a call at Players Bar in College Square Shopping Center, where a man was allegedly jumping on the hood of a limousine and denting the car. Police confronted the man and he fled. After a chase, police caught the man, who shouted profanity and kicked the officers. Police called Aetna Hose Hook and Ladder Co., which transported the man by ambulance to Christiana Hospital emergency room, where the man continued to scream profanity and spit. The man was released hours later from the hospital, but police informed him that warrants for his arrest would be filed in the near future.

And he takes good care of the produce to make sure it tastes fresh to customers. He keeps the ears of corn in a wheel barrel in the shade, covered with a wet cloth or he said the corn gets dried out.

The Eldridges have operated the stand from the front yard of their home of 45 years. Although Helen took charge for the years when Tom returned to work, Tom has since assumed much of the responsibility.

"It (the stand) was all right when it was small but as it got larger, it was a little more that I needed to be working at," Helen said.

She said she would like for Tom to close the stand because she doesn't like to see him having to face all the rigors of operating the business. She admits, though, that he would miss running it. "I hate to see him working so hard in the humidity, but he'd go crazy if he closed the stand, so I guess it will always be," she said.

"We have a good business," he said. "We try to be real nice and we also guarantee 100 percent what we sell."

The produce stand is open seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. "We don't have a real strict schedule," he said. "Sometimes I open before 8 a.m. and if we have a storm, we'll close a little early."

Newark John Kohan has worked at the fruit stand for four summers waiting on customers. He is a physical science teacher at Gauger Middle School during the school year. "It's different from the kids," said Kohan. "It's a pleasure to work with adults."

And after the stand is closed as autumn approaches, Tom keeps his thumb green by preparing the garden for spring planting. In the winter he tinkers around the house and volunteers at Calvary Baptist Church in Newark.

Hogan would not speculate on the possibility of the crimes being committed by one or more people.

"It appears this person or people have moved to different locations around the city," Hogan said.

He said police efforts may be paying off, since city businesses have not been hit in the last few weeks. The last commercial burglary was reported June 28 at Pepper's Pizza.

He said Newark police picked up on the rash of burglaries as soon as a pattern formed because the department regularly tracks crime similarities in Newark.

The police department has distributed tips on preventing business break-ins and offers free crime prevention surveys to examine businesses and homes and make recommendations for security of property.

Hogan said the police philosophy is to encourage merchants to keep only small amounts of money on site, properly protect businesses after hours and encourage alarms.

Hogan said as soon as burglaries occurred on Main Street, he contacted Newark Business Association President John Wisniewski and asked for merchant cooperation with the investigations. Wisniewski said the merchants in the association are not panicked. He said some business owners don't even seem to be aware of the crime rash.

"Surprisingly, there is not too much talk about the burglaries," he said.

He said the merchants don't discuss the burglaries because the thefts have included the loss of small amounts of cash, not a lot of costly merchandise.

For a copy of commercial burglary prevention tips from the Newark Police, contact Curt Davis at 366-7111.

Councilmembers agreed commercial space, such as sundry shops, and open space interspersed between groups of housing would be a more attractive proposal. The issue remains a gamble for du Pont. If he changes his plan to include the aspects council suggested, there is no guarantee it will be approved, a councilmember said. Certain questions remain unanswered, however, such as if council will decide the city can provide increased services, such as electric, and if there is more open space and a corner market in the proposal.

"When you get to the end of a process without a consensus, you don't go to war," du Pont said. "We will go back into the process and ask Newark what it wants."

ter in Newark. Godwin, who is also chairman of the Town and Gown Committee (a liaison group for the university and city) proposed the party be moved to the backyard of the Emmaus House.

"I have no problem with creative ways to raise money," Godwin said. "I don't think it should damage any neighbors though."

A resident of Cleveland Avenue where it meets Wilbur Street, Ted Davis, told council he had 150 students on his property during the 1993 party. He said both men and women were urinating on his property, drinking beer and smoking dope.

In fact, Davis was so upset, he allowed the Newark police to use his property as a command center.

The vote is tentatively scheduled for mid-October.

Thank you, Newark...

I began my tenure at the Newark Post on April Fool's Day, 1990. Maybe that explains why I have a soft spot in my heart for a good practical joke, and maybe that can justify the many practical jokes I have played on others here at the newspaper.

There was the time when I turned my back and telephoned a reporter from across the room, with news of an imaginary bank robbery. I disguised my voice and kept it up for nearly five minutes before being found out.

And there was the time I called our publishing headquarters in Elkton, Md., asking the receptionist at the front desk to page Mr. "Frank Furter". She did so over a loud speaker several times before realizing she had been had. (She's since tried her best to retaliate, but has yet to succeed.)

One of my fondest memories happened at last year's Christmas party, and I was on the receiving end. It had to do with my gift — a new wallet. It even had a dollar bill peeking out. The problem was that it exploded when I opened it. They say my expression was priceless.

But all joking aside, there have been many other fond memories of a more serious nature collected while at the editorial helm of the Newark Post, and they will always be with me. Working behind the scenes, I have seen Newark smile, cry, laugh and mourn. I've seen Newark rally to support the troops during the Desert Storm conflict, and I've seen Newark rally to jeer racists and bigots.

While serving as editor, I have also had the privilege of making many new, wonderful acquaintances, and have been overjoyed by the tremendous community support I have received.

After this week, I'm being promoted to a new assignment at the Kent County News in Chestertown, Md. and publisher Jim Streit will be taking over the editor's spot for the time being. He'll be assisted by sports editor Marti Valania, and I know the office is being left in good hands.

I'll be saying farewell soon to so many good people. Most of all, I want to thank all of you loyal readers who have faithfully supported this newspaper.

I hope you feel it's your newspaper just as much as I have considered it mine.

— Scott Lawrence

PASSING THOUGHTS

He's heading south and staying there

By JIM STREIT

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The author is publisher of the Newark Post.

Six score after it first happened in Appomattox, Va., the North has won again. Today, we are sending our "southern" editor back across the canal, to stay. But we do so with some tears in our eyes.

For nearly five years — almost a lifetime in community newspaper years — Scott Lawrence has edited this newspaper. Soon, he will continue his career with Chesapeake Publishing in Chestertown, Md. Scotty, as family and friends in his beloved Middletown call him, will report for duty at the Kent County News, one of our company's most prestigious and prosperous local newspapers. Chesapeake president Tom Bradley needs Lawrence there as that paper undergoes its first change of editors in more than two decades.

All of us at the Newark Post are thrilled for Scott. He's happy, too. He has ancestral roots in Chestertown that go back generations. He cut his journalistic teeth at his hometown newspaper in Middletown. Founded in 1793, the Kent County News still operates in a manner reminiscent of the "good ol' days" that Scott loves so intensely. And, best of all for him, he won't have to "come north" every day, driving over the bridge on 896 to work with us "Yankee" Delawareans here in Newark.

During his tenure at the Newark Post, Lawrence has endured a change in publisher, which is always a traumatic event in an editor's life.

He led the difficult conversion from a free, regional paper to a paid circulation, community-based weekly. He has smiled as the number of subscribers has doubled in the past 24 months. This is a testament of your support of his efforts to produce a weekly paper in our busy suburban area that is as community-minded as our collective energies permit.

He forged new trails when this paper began extensive use of color, a difficult challenge because most newspaper people have only black ink in their blood. "Cyan" and "Magenta" sounded like towns in New Jersey to most of us when color presses were first installed and a "separation" indicated a marital problem.

Eighteen months ago, Lawrence tossed the old Compugraphic typesetters in the dumpster here behind the Robscott Building. The dinosaurs were replaced by color Macs. With his support and patience, we became one of the first, if not the first newspaper in

PER CHANCE

Yesteryear's players deserve a niche

By ELBERT CHANCE

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

It is to my late mother-in-law, Geraldine M. Wyatt, that I am indebted for an afternoon of enjoyable reading and reminiscence about one of Newark's pioneering dramatic organizations. Shortly after her arrival in the city, Jerry and her husband joined the University Drama Group, which had been growing in both stature and membership since its founding in 1934. Her involvement could be traced through a collection of programs, pictures, newspaper clippings and letters she had preserved.

The UDG initially was composed of faculty, staff members and their families, but it quickly expanded into a full-fledged community theatre group. By the early 1950s, its membership approached 200 and it was sharing the Mitchell Hall stage with the university's theatre company, the E 52 Players. Since Dr. C. Robert Kase had been instrumental in organizing both groups, it was a cordial relationship. Often, when E 52 plays required older actors, UDG members would appear in guest roles; in turn, students sometimes were invited to fill youthful parts in the community theatre productions.

But what was most noteworthy about the UDG of the late 1940s and early 1950s was the participation of many of the town's leading citizens in its productions. Programs reveal such well-known names as Joe Shields and Norma Handloff, both later to serve as mayor. Dr. C. Royer Donoho and wife Dorothea, Alan and Vera Duff, G. Taggart and Richard Evans, Ed and Marjorie Hein, Bob and Betty Kase and daughter Judy, Michael and Helen Kubico, E.C. "Curly" Mahanna and Virginia, attorney John P. Sinclair and Jane, and Earl and Jerry Wyatt all played important roles either on stage or behind the scenes.

Other names trigger pleasant memories. Robert C. Currie, an English professor, wrote the lyrics for the University of Delaware Alma Mater. Frances M. Patnovic, high school drama teacher and dedicated UD graduate, was chosen Alumna of the Year in 1969 by the Alumni Association. Wilhelmina Press Brown, one of E 52's best-remembered actresses, continued her stage appearances with the UDG after her graduation. Rave notices were accorded performances by Bea Young and Ed Mullen and the versatile Taggart Evans appeared successfully in a long series of productions.

Inevitably, time marches on. Growing UD enrollments led to ever greater scheduling difficulties and the UDG tie to the university eventually was broken. Its successor company, the Chapel Street Players, is housed in a former church on the street whose name it bears. Few of its current members recall, indeed, many were not even born, in those exciting years when the UDG was earning laurels for its Shakespearean productions and classics like "The Bishop Misbehaves", "You Can't Take It With You", "The Night of January 16th", "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and "The Little Foxes". But these plays and players of yesteryear clearly merit a prominent niche in our city's cultural history.

Lightning Sets Fire To Barn At Ogleton

Early Sunday morning, during the severe electrical storm, lightning struck the barn on the farm occupied by William Appleby, near Ogleton.

The barn, a large frame structure, some straw, farming implements, and one of the horses, were burned before help could be secured. Newport firemen responded and saved the other buildings.

Mr. Appleby was in the barn milking at the time but fortunately escaped injury. The property belongs to Frank E. Williams of Elkton.

Searchlight Demonstration Draws Large Crowd

An unusual privilege was accorded residents of this vicinity on Friday night when through the kindness of the Engineers in charge of two huge government searchlights, they were given a demonstration on Delaware Ave, that evening about 10:30.

The crew was on its way to Washington from Hazelhurst Field, Mineola, where it had assisted in the landing and departure of the English dirigible R-34, the first to make the transoceanic flight.

The news spread rapidly through the town and in a half hour more than 200 people had assembled on Delaware Avenue where the searchlights had been placed. Many also from the surrounding country hurried in to see what was happening. The engineers were the guests of the Newark Inn and Restaurant over night.

Newark PD To Move Headquarters

A check for $13,500 has been given to the trustees of the First Evangelical Presbyterian Church, East Main Street, Newark, by city council to hold that property for possible purchase by the city. The decision to draw the check was made at an executive session at council, following last Tuesday's regular meeting.

The city manager's staff will now begin to negotiate for purchase of the property pending final approval by the Newark governing board.

If the property and three buildings are acquired by the city, the Newark Police Department would move to the site after interior renovations are completed.

12 Channel Cable TV Coming To Area

Vistavue Cable T.V., subsidiary of WNRK, Newark, has begun construction a 400-mile network of cables which will eventually spread across southern New Castle County, with the exception of the City of Newark. According to the H.C. Mungo, chief engineer and general manager of Vistavue, the $2 million system will make 12 channels available to about 35,000 families at $5 per month per subscriber. No installation or cancellation fee will be charged.

City Facility At Fairfield Demolished

The Fairfield Barn, which since 1977 has housed Newark Department of Parks and Recreation equipment, has fallen on hard times. In fact it has fallen.

After fire ravaged the barn in early June, city officials began considering whether or not the building could still hold its own. They finally determined it could not.

The Carrington Construction Co. was awarded a $13,000 contract to demolish the barn, which over the years had suffered five fires.

Greenhouse signs adult daycare legislation

County Executive Dennis E. Greenhouse has signed County Council's Adult Day Care legislation, which means that adult day care centers will now be permitted in most commercial and residential areas, just as child day care facilities are permitted in these areas.

"In the past, strict zoning regulations allowed adult day care facilities by special petition only," said County Executive Greenhouse.

"But we needed to amend our laws to meet the growing needs of our citizens. The number of elderly citizens is growing rapidly in New Castle County and throughout Delaware and we need to ensure that elder care is easily accessible to elderly citizens and their families."

County Council member Karen Venezky sponsored the Adult Day Care bill, which Council passed unanimously on June 28, 1994.

Venezky joined County Executive Greenhouse for an official signing ceremony for this important legislation.

"This new law will make it easier for families to find someone to watch an elderly relative for a few hours a day," said Venezky. "It will also be nice for older adults to have an opportunity to get out and be with other people in a supervised care setting."

It's been a moving week at the newspaper

this area to be completely prepared electronically. This is significant because the time savings allow us to spend more of our hours in our community instead of being chained to paste-ups tables in Elkton. As a result, we are a better community newspaper.

One year ago, Lawrence assisted in launching a graphic redesign of this paper that coincided with the return of the Newark Post nameplate. A visually pleasing paper better serves readers and advertisers.

According to my estimates, during his stay at the Newark Post, Scott has given birth to more than 220 weekly editions, presided over the paste-up or design of more than 5,280 newspaper pages, and watched the printing of a minimum of 2,640,000 papers.

But these flowery words and lofty statistics do not describe his grandest accomplishment: Scott Lawrence is a true community journalist. As such, in spite of budget cuts, home office edicts, tough economic times and changing staff, he has tried to make this newspaper as important to you as it can be. He's also made many friends, myself included.

All of us here at the Newark Post wish Scott well. We believe that his skill, knowledge and love of the shore will combine to make him an important contributor to the chronicles of life in Chestertown.

This, unfortunately, is the week for good-byes. Soon, we will bid "adieu" to Vickie Boyle, a vitally important member of our staff whose name doesn't even appear on our mast head.

For years, she has been responsible for coordinating the "dummying" of our paper (the placing of ads on our pages). Sounds easy. Not so. We use a lot of color on our pages. Press configurations are something that only a genius can understand. Vickie is a genius.

The newspaper business is frantic at best. There are a million deadlines, one right after another, each of them unbreakable. Problems must be solved immediately and correctly, for ours is a business where mistakes are published and delivered to the mailboxes of more than 20,000 readers.

Some how, Vickie has managed to be the calm in the middle of these weekly storms. She has served as the critically important link between our busy staff in Newark and our composition and printing departments in Elkton.

This spot is the worst in newspapering. "Antsy" ad sales reps and cranky editors demand proofs and page dummies from Vickie. In Elkton, rushed ad designers and pressed camera operators race to her with questions as the printing deadline nears. She always answers with a smile, no matter what.

Vickie Boyle's first love is teaching and she is returning to the classroom this fall. We'll miss her, her smile, and her tasty contributions to staff parties.

■ ■ ■

All this said, like a reliable old friend, we'll return to the news-stands and mailboxes of Newark next week to offer you reports on life in the town that we all call "home."

Local students have a 'world affairs' experience

By TONJA CASTANEDA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Three local high school students recently experienced global relations while emulating duties of foreign diplomats at a World Affairs Conference.

Hodgson Vocational-Technical School students Heather Iverson and Chris Foster and St. Mark's student Kirsten McGregor were sponsored by the Newark Rotary Club to attend the seminar.

About 1,300 teenagers debated their opinions on current international affairs such as the wars in Rwanda and Bosnia, the presidential election in South Africa, the North Korean situation and the Israeli and Palestinian conflict in the Middle East.

The conference, held June 12-17 at the University of Wisconsin in White Water, brought students from around the world.

Newark Rotarian Greg Warren, international service director, said this is the third year the Newark Rotary club has sent local students to the event. Warren said the club paid about $600 per student to cover airfare, room and board and bus transportation.

He said students applying to go on the trip filled out an application, submitted letters of recommendation from peers and teachers and went through an interview.

"I interviewed eight candidates," said Warren. "They were all outstanding students but the three chosen really stood out."

McGregor, a senior this coming school year, said she went to the conference because she wants to someday be a foreign diplomat.

She already has some idea of other cultures because her family is multi-cultural and she was born in Australia. Her father is a New Zealander and her mother American. She has aunts in Guam and Greece and other relatives who have lived in Brazil.

She furthered her knowledge of the world as the president of the Model United Nations Club at St. Mark's. The daughter of Paul and Linda McGregor, she is also in the Key Club, chorus and band.

She said students did not decide how to solve world problems, but would split into discussion groups after each topic speech.

"Everyone had an opposing view, there was no consensus on how to resolve problems," said McGregor. "It (the conference) mocked the world in general."

Newarker Heather Iverson, also a senior, said she attended the international seminar to meet people from around the world and hear their opinions on world issues.

"I liked the power discussion when international students answered questions from Americans," said Iverson. "Other countries don't always want our (U.S.) help in solving their problems."

She is the daughter of Jerry and Sandy Iverson and participates in cross country, basketball, track ski club and is the president of the National Honor Society at Hodgson.

Hodgson Senior Chris Foster said he went to the seminar to find out different sides to the world's problems. "I wanted to see what I can do to solve them," said Foster.

He found out that there are more international problems that he thought. "I learned countries want the U.S. to stay out of their problems and let them solve them on their own," Foster said.

He said he enjoyed debating in the discussion groups where people tried to come up with resolutions.

He is the son of Chris and Geri Foster and is active with wrestling and weight lifting club in school.

YOU ASKED

A feature devoted to discovering the answers to curious questions about people and places in Greater Newark.

BY NANCY TURNER

I have heard that some municipalities install separate water meters, at customer expense, in homes where people use water outside for gardens and pools that does not go into the city sewer lines. Since Newark's sewer charges are much higher than the water charges, can we have this option in Newark?

Yes. But when you hear the city's guidelines for installing a separate meter and water line, you might decide it would be more economical to just to flush your wallet down the tubes.

"It entails an entire separate service line," said Joe Dombrowski, director of Newark Water Department. "This means that you have to get a separate water tap to the main at the street; run a separate line across your lawn; put a separate meter in the basement; and then hook up your irrigation or whatever to that line. The city would then send you a separate bill for that line that would reflect water use only."

The cost for this ordeal varies according to location, but ball park figures might be: $1000 to cross the street to connect to the city water line; $800 to put the new line in through the front yard; and whatever attachments you need from there. The city installs the second water meter at no charge.

Wouldn't it make more sense to simply T-off the new metered line a few inches above the existing water meter?

"That's the easiest thing to do," said Dombrowski, "but it was about a decade ago when we ran into a problem with that. On occasions when residents did not want to pay their bills for those separate meters, we could not turn them off without stopping all their water. The city adopted the policy that a separate service and shut-off valve was required so that if there was a problem with payment or service, the water lines could be shut-off individually."

Dombrowski says that the city does take into consideration that many people use water in the summer that does not go into the sewer system. The adjustment is factored into the sewer rate and it is figured by the committee that sets the sewer rates for the entire county.

Whether you have a question about people or places in Greater Newark or are just plain curious about something, staff writer Nancy Turner might just be able to find an answer for you. Send your question to Nancy, in care of the Newark Post, 153 East Chestnut Hill Road, Newark DE 19713. Be sure to include a daytime telephone number where you can be reached.

Plant propagation is thrifty entertainment

NEWARK OUTLOOK

FROM THE STAFF OF THE COOPERATIVE EXTENSION OFFICE AT UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE

I've always enjoyed making new plants out of my favorites. Since my tastes in plants often exceed my budget, I buy that one special specimen, then propagate from it to fill in the landscape design. Many gardeners are familiar with rooting a mint or houseplant cutting in a cup of water on the windowsill. Doing the same for most woody plants wouldn't be as successful, but it's not necessarily difficult once you learn a few tricks.

Cutting propagation is a way to preserve the genetic qualities of a particular plant. Planting seeds from your favorite apple tree would certainly give you more little apple trees, but none of them would be exactly like the parent tree. By the same token, special flower colors or pest and disease resistance would probably be lost or diminished in the lottery of genetic diversity scientists call sexual reproduction. But asexual, or vegetative propagation, will give you an identical clone of the parent plant from which you take cuttings.

Stem cuttings are the easiest way to root trees and shrubs. A beginning propagator might want to try lilac, hydrangea, forsythia or weigela. These species are forgiving and forgetful of the mistakes you make as you hone your skills. Here are the procedures for producing rooted cutting in the summer.

Absolute cleanliness is very important to prevent losses to rot organisms. Scrub your cutting and potting tools and equipment with hot soapy water. Buy a fresh bag each of perlite and peat moss. Mix together one part peat with eight parts perlite and moisten the mix. Fill eight- to ten-inch pots with the mix and stand them in a pan with water one inch deep. Now you're ready to take some cuttings.

One type of cutting you can try now is called softwood cuttings. These are the newly sprouted ends of branches from the late spring into early summer. You can easily bruise the stem of a softwood cutting with your fingernail and the tissue still snaps when bent. Softwood also tends to wilt somewhat after being cut. By late July, most shoots will have passed the softwood stage.

Take softwood cuttings that are four to five inches long, or that include at least two nodes, or points of leaf attachment to the stem. If the cuttings wilt immediately, they're too soft, so cut further down the stem into less soft tissue, or wait a week and try again. Poke a hole in the rooting medium with a clean chopstick or pencil and gently stick the cutting into the medium. For best results, try to ensure at least one node is below the surface of the medium. Firm the medium around the cutting and continue sticking until you have six or eight in the pot. If you like, you can further increase the rooting success of some species by dipping the cut ends in a rooting hormone powder before sticking.

Set your pots in the water tray in a place where they get bright but indirect sun. The north side of the house would be good, or use a set of grow lights indoors. Increase humidity around the cuttings by fashioning a clear plastic tent over the assemblage. Then be patient. Inspect the cuttings daily to remove any that blacken or get fuzzy with mold—they're dying or dead and a source of infection for the others. Don't let the water tray run dry, either.

After about three weeks you can gently tug each cutting to test for rooting. Resistance signals success. It may take as long as four to eight to 12 weeks for some species to "strike" roots. When your cuttings have indicated they've had roots for a couple of weeks, you can knock them out of the pot with the medium and pot them up into fresh potting soil. Grow the cuttings on in a protected nursery area and start a twice-monthly soluble fertilizer program until the end of the summer. If your little plants really take off, you can transplant them into the landscape by the first of October. Otherwise they'll need to be overwintered in their pots in an unheated building.

Master Gardener Harry Tribull presented a paper last year on the "lazy-gardener's" propagation method for trees and shrubs. Not that Henry is lazy; it's just that he loves gardening, but can't find enough time to do everything he wants in life. He reports great success with hardwood cuttings buried in the ground over the winter. The cut ends callous and start growing roots the next spring when he pots them up. Harry says his greatest rooting rates have come from spirea, weigela, snowball bush, pyracantha, hydrangea and red-twig dogwood.

He's going to see how well he can do with cotoneaster, river birch and flowering cherry, among others.

Harry's tale of propagation and other choice bits of gardening wisdom are included in the 1993 Master Gardener Advanced Training Yearbook. Copies are available for $10 postpaid from University of Delaware, Home Hort Publications, Room 032 Townsend Hall, Newark, DE 19717-1303.

Great opera season in the wings

Let's start with a quiz. Paper and pencil ready? What was the first opera ever performed in the "Grand Old Lady of Locust Street," Philadelphia's Academy of Music?

After the quiz, confession time! The reason I know that it was Giuseppe Verdi's "Il Trovatore" is that the Opera Company of Philadelphia's PR Director Craig Hamilton mentioned it when he told me that "Il Trovatore" was the first opera of their season at the venerable old house.

Among the many international stars who will sing with the Opera Company of Philadelphia during the 1994-95 season are Manfred Hemm who will be heard in the title role in Mozart's "Don Giovanni".

Granted that at this time in July most minds in Post Country are on the beach, the shore, the mountains or whatever vacation retreat you covet. But the team at the Opera Company of Philadelphia has its mind set on the upcoming season and what a season it will be. Great singers, great conductors, great operas, great productions, what else can one ask?

There will be three new productions this year and one co-production with Opera du Rhin in Strasbourg and the Lisbon Opera which will make its American debut here. Again this year there will be four performances of each opera. "Il Trovatore" will be on the Academy boards October 21, 24, 27 and 30; Mozart's "Don Giovanni" is set for November 12, 14, 18 and 20; Strauss' "Salome" is on March 6, 10, 12 and 16 and the season finale is Gounod's "Faust," April 24, 28, 30 and May 4.

"Il Trovatore" will be directed by OCP General Director Robert Driver who brought us such an interesting "Die Zauberflöte" last season. He is, indeed, a man of many talents. Bulgarian soprano Elena Filipova, who was here in the 1993 production of "Eugene Onegin," will lead the international cast as Leonora. Kirov Opera tenor Gegam Grigorian will sing the role of Manrico. Director Driver heard Grigorian at Royal Albert Hall in Tchaikovsky's "Iolantha" and quickly signed him up for this role. Italian mezzo-soprano Elizabeth Fiorillo will perform Azucena and American Gregg Baker, fresh from his Metropolitan Opera triumph as Crown in "Porgy and Bess," will sing the role of Count di Luna. Mauricio Babacini will conduct.

When Wolfgang's hot blooded "Don" arrives in Philadelphia, it will have another great cast to bring it to life and, in the finale, death. Manfred Hemm, renowned on both sides of the Atlantic, will be in charge of the title role. He recently sang Papageno in the Met's "Die Zauberflöte" and "Don Giovanni" will mark his OCP debut. Returning to the company is Stella Zambalis in the role of Donna Elvira, who has performed at the Met, Berlin and La Scala opera companies. The list-keeping valet will be sung by Arthur Woodley who recently sang the title role at Strasbourg's Opera du Rhin. Mark Flint will be in the pit.

When "Salome" opens in March it will be the American debut of a co-production with Opera du Rhin and Lisbon Opera. After two production meetings in Europe and after an eight hour "building rehearsal" it was announced that the production will be designed to accommodate the stages of all three opera companies involved in the initiative. Leading the artistic team is Dieter Dorn, one of the most sought-after directors on the continent today. Dorn's American debut will be with the new "Salome." Rosalie of Stuttgart will design the set and costumes and Friedrich Haider will round out the production as conductor.

American soprano Cynthia Markis will sing the title role in her American debut. She has already drawn popular and critical praise for her work in this role in Europe. Mezzo-soprano Vereia Baniewicz will sing Herodias.

The provocative production timelessly underscores the inherent decadence of this masterpiece. Strauss' driving rhythms and fiery score will be explored not only by the singers and orchestra, but also by the innovative lighting and set design. If you are a Strauss fan, this will be a "must see" for you!

Next season will close with an opera by Charles Gounod, as did this season. This year it was "Romeo et Juliette," next year it will be "Faust." Singing the role of the man who sells his soul will be OCP favorite Vinson Cole who sang the role of Don Jose in the company's 1992 "Carmen." Joining Mr. Cole as the innocent Marguerite is Barbara Fritoli who sang Micaela in the same production of "Carmen." James Caraher will conduct the opera.

Well, opera lovers, there is a season to be savored. With those operas and casts, tickets will become scarce quite quickly. Subscriptions range from $60 to $510 and single tickets from $18 to $130. OCP really does try to bring their prices in to the range of just about everyone. For more information, a season brochure or tickets, you may call the OCP Box Office at 215-928-2110.

Truly, those of us in Post Country are fortunate to have a world class opera company so close by and so easily accessible. I hope this season you will enjoy it!

Canal Major girls romp to 23-0 victory

By MARTY VALANIA
NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

GLASGOW — Another year; another powerful Canal Major League All-Star softball team.

The 11-12 year-old girls all-star team from Canal dispelled any notion that the league was on a decline as it pounded New Castle 23-0 in an opening round game — mercifully halted in the middle of the fifth inning — of the District II tournament. Canal moves on to play Stanton-Newport in the winner's bracket final Saturday morning at 10 at the New Castle Little League complex.

Despite constant turnover of players, coaches and parents, the Canal Majors have won the state title every year since 1982. This year's team, with only three players from last year's squad, is aiming for the 14th straight title.

"The returning girls know all about the tradition," said Canal Manager Bill Nefosky. "But we still want it to be fun for the girls."

"They work very hard. I think that's the big key. We've practiced every day and have even had some double sessions. But the most important thing is to make it fun."

Allison Deboda limited New Castle to just two hits while the defense played

Canal Major baseball team wins opening two games

By MARTY VALANIA
NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

The Canal Major League All-Star baseball team has opened District II tournament play with a bang.

After a first-round romp over West Wilmington, Canal beat Newark American 4-1 in an area showdown. The win advances Canal to a winner's bracket semifinal against Suburban Friday night at Newark National's Clark Field at 8 p.m. The winner's bracket final is slated for Monday at Midway Little League's complex at 6 p.m. The district championship is scheduled for Saturday, July 23 at Canal at 7 p.m.

Newark American, after ripping

Wilmington Optimist 25-0 in its opening round game, fell to the loser's bracket where it met local rival Newark National Wednesday night in an elimination game.

Pitcher Tim Vaillancourt starred for the winners, hurling a one-hitter with 10 strikeouts.

"Tim pitched a great game," said Canal Manager John Hollenbach. "He only threw about 60 pitches; he was terrific."

Offensively, shortstop Brock Donovan continued his torrid hitting pace by knocking a home run (his second of the tournament), a single and scoring two runs.

"It was a good game," Hollenbach said.

"We know Newark American always has a great program. We knew it would be a tough game; especially after they scored 25 runs in their first game.

"We were fortunate to hit the ball and get the win."

The winners jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Donovan singled, advanced to third base on two wild pitches and scored on Nate Husser's infield ground out.

Canal, who ripped West Wilmington 16-1 in its opener, improved the lead to 2-0 in the second when left fielder Shawn McCarthy — who belted two home runs in the first round game — walked and eventually scored on a wild pitch.

Vaillancourt, meanwhile, was cruising on the mound. He sailed perfectly through the first three innings; striking out five and not allowing a ball to leave the infield.

The lead was stretched to 4-0 in the bottom of the third as Donovan homered and Husser, who singled, came around to score on an error.

Newark American picked up its lone hit and run in the fourth inning when Steve Hauer singled home Mark Dickerson.

Vaillancourt, though, was able to shut down American the rest of the way, retiring the last six batters in order including the last four by strikeout.

"We're just going to take the games one at a time," Hollenbach said. "I think we have a good team but we still have to play well."

Newark residents Jonathan Nichols and Jayna Cronin captured the gold medal in ice dance at the United States Olympic Festival two weeks ago in St. Louis.

Local ice dance pair captures gold medal at U.S. Olympic Festival

By JOHN HOLOWKA
NEWARK POST SPORTS WRITER

A week after taking home a gold medal at the United States Olympic Festival in St. Louis, the luster might have somewhat faded for Jonathan Nichols and Jayna Cronin. But that could only brighten their future.

The Newark residents and University of Delaware Figure Skating Club members won the ice dance championship at the national event and will represent the country in the 1995 World Junior Championships this December in Budapest.

"The excitement for me has probably worn off a little bit," said Nichols, 17, a Newark native. "I was excited when it was on TV (taped); that was pretty exciting. But the feeling has subsided a bit."

"I feel about the same; I'm still in shock," said Cronin, 15, who has been skating with Nichols for six years. "It's definitely our biggest victory."

Nichols, a freshman at the University of Delaware and Cronin, a Timonium, Md., native and sophomore at Newark High, glided through the compulsories, which combine technique and expression and the original dance routines. They led comfortably going into their strongest event, the freestyle dance.

"In the compulsories I think we scored 4.9 or 5.0," Nichols said. "Our original dance this year was a quick-step to timed music of our own version with no lifts. Going into the final (event) I was a little more nervous than I would have been, probably because it wasn't very probable for the second and third place teams to pull ahead. But you still think about it."

The pair integrated three musical scores from the movies, "Cool World (The Cool World Stomp)," "Roger Rabbit (Jessica's Theme)" and "A League Of Their Own (Flying Home), in the final phase of competition where four of seven judges voted them first.

"It was last year's program so we had more polish and work this year," Cronin said. "The music is very lively and makes you energetic. Basically we were going faster and making it look stronger and more confident. Our presence our strongest point."

"You always have in back of mind not to mess up," Cronin said. "That makes me skate better, and with the lead I felt more relaxed and comfortable on the ice."

Between now and December, Nichols and Cronin will be preparing for the World Juniors, where they finished 17th last year in Colorado Springs. To completely focus on the international competition in Budapest, they'll miss an annual open competition at Lake Placid in August, but could be selected to a couple of world events held in Italy and Germany early this fall.

"We're changing our free dance program so we decided to take time

Wish granted for local Little Leaguer

By MARTY VALANIA
NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

One of the most inspiring stories of the year had a neat update recently.

Back on April 20, nine-year-old Keith Kowanick — a Scottfield resident — played his first baseball game of the season. The thrilling thing about that day was that Kowanick was playing just three and one-half months after having cancer discovered during a routine appendectomy.

While covering a Major Division All-Star game Monday night at Newark American's Little League field, I saw Keith's mom, Cindy, working in the concession stand. I wondered to myself how Keith was doing.

Tuesday night I was watching the Major League All-Star game on television when, all of a sudden, I was watching Keith Kowanick on a commercial with Ken Griffey, Jr.

I guess Keith is doing pretty well! The Make a Wish Foundation set up Kowanick's meeting with Griffey two Saturday's ago. In fact, Keith had his Little League championship game slated for that day, but the coaches involved agreed to move the game up two days in order that Keith could fulfill his wish.

There he was hanging out with his favorite player — Ken Griffey, Jr. — right there at the batting cage during batting practice, right there in the dugout, right there on TV!

Little League All-Star update

Some local teams are again faring well in District II Little League All-Star competition.

In the major (11-12 year-olds) baseball division, Canal has won two straight games and is playing in the winner's bracket semifinal Friday night. A win there sends the team to Monday's winner's bracket final. The district championship is scheduled for next Saturday at Canal.

Newark American and Newark National played each other Wednesday night in a loser's bracket contest. The winner stays alive while the loser is eliminated.

In junior (13-year olds) league action Canal was beaten 1-0 by nemesis Midway in a terrific winner's bracket tilt. Midway is the team that

Errors hurt Newark American Seniors in loss to Brandywine

By JOHN HOLOWKA
NEWARK POST SPORTS WRITER

GLASGOW — Brandywine took advantage of a variety of throwing and fielding errors and defeated Newark American 5-1 Sunday in a District II 14-15 Senior League state tournament game at Canal.

In the pivotal third inning, Newark committed three miscues that led to four runs and staked Brandywine to a lead it wouldn't surrender.

"This is very uncharacteristic for this team," said Newark Manager John Hall. "This is not us. We preach defense and work on it. Then we had a couple we threw away and that was it. I really wanted to come back (Sunday), but we'd like to play them again."

That's a possibility as Newark dropped to the losers bracket and could face nemesis Brandywine once more, a team that defeated many of Newark's players last year as 13-year-olds in that tournament.

Newark took a 1-0 lead in the first inning following a two-out walk to Billy Cooper, who moved to third on Mark Thomas' double to right

PARKS &amp; REC SOFTBALL

All-Star game on tap for Sunday

By DAVE TELEP

NEWARK POST SPORTS WRITER

On July 17 at 5pm, the city of Newark Blue and Gold softball All-Star's will gather together at Kells Park for the league's 16th annual softball extravaganza.

Each year the league holds an All-Star game matching the top players from their respective leagues. The event is sure to be just as competitive as it is fun for all of those involved.

The divisions will match up head to head in a two game series. Game one showcases the players who won the balloting at their respective positions while the second game will feature the reserve players who were also elected to the squads via the managerial vote.

In the event that the two divisions trade victories, don't be surprised if the players decide to play a third game just to settle the issue of who reigns supreme for 1994.

Traditionally, the Blue has dominated the Gold in this event but don't count out the Gold squad, which features some great defensive stars to go along with a potent offensive lineup.

The Gold is going to have to rely on the speed of their outfielders to track down some of the prodigious blasts that the Blue lineup is capable of unleashing. Sorry guys, NO FENCES!

Don't be fooled into thinking that this is an innocent gathering of Newark's brightest softball stars. On the contrary, this game is for bragging rights to which division is stronger. There is a lot of pride involved in the series which should make the games all the more competitive.

Much like they have dominated the regular season, East End dominated the Blue's All-Star roster by placing 10 men on the team, including six starters. Taylor's Ink will send six men to the game followed by the Crab Trap with three, Deer Park with two selections and each remaining team sending one player each.

If you look closely at the Gold Division, Time Out put nine players on the team as they bid for a league title (2 additional Time Out players were selected but cannot play). Williams Realty will send seven players followed by Thirysomething with three selections and each remaining team sending one player each.

The game gives the players a chance to relax and do some "scouting" for the upcoming league championship series which will have teams from both divisions playing against each other in search of a championship.

The event was born way back in 1978 by Steve Taylor, Dave Vickars and Charles Remsburg, Remsburg, a writer for the Newark Post and player in the league has since passed away. Because of this game, his legacy will always be remembered by all of those involved with Newark League softball.

Canal Juniors fall 1-0 to Midway

By BRETT LOVELACE

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

Midway's Brian Hudock pitched a one-hit shutout to edge Canal 1-0 Monday in a District II Junior League winner's bracket semifinal at the Newark National Little League complex.

The loss drops Canal into a loser's bracket contest Saturday morning at 10 at Newark National while Midway advanced to Friday night's winner's bracket final at Brandywine Little League.

"I felt a little nervous until the third inning," said Hudock, whose Midway team is virtually the same one that edged the Canal Major team last year on its way to the district championship. "Because I really didn't have my control until then."

The southpaw recorded five strikeouts, backed by a flawless defensive effort from shortstop Rafael Rodriguez, left fielder Pat Mason and center fielder Drew Sherlock.

Midway appeared to steal a run in the top of the first inning when Hudock attempted to tag up from third base on Steve Harden's fly ball to right field. But Canal's Joe Simpson quickly dashed that hope by combining with first baseman Brian Timpson on a perfect relay to nail Hudock at the plate.

Hudock continued to cruise on the mound while Canal starter Jimmy Murphy kept pace with his own no-hitter. Davey Stevens snapped Hudock's no-hit bid with a lead-off single in the bottom of the third.

"It didn't bother me that I lost the no-hitter, just as long as we won," Hudock said.

Midway again threatened in the fifth inning after Murphy walked the bases loaded with two outs. Mark Rosenwald took the mound in relief at that point and induced a fly ball out to end the inning.

Midway finally scored the lone run of the game in the sixth inning.

Anthony Argioudis led off with a walk and Harden advanced him to second with a bunt. Rodriguez followed a single to left to plate Argioudis.

"I just try to keep all the players focused throughout the entire game," said Midway Manager Tom Hudock. "When your confident about your ability, it really helps."

Hudock retired the next six Canal batters to seal the win.

"We're just taking this thing one game at a time," said the manager Hudock. "Canal has a good team and I wouldn't be surprised if we ran into them again."

Newark American Majors romp

BRANDYWINE HUNDRED

On a day when the only number rising faster than the temperature was the scoreboard run count, Newark American All-Stars kept their cool.

Newark scalded overmatched Wilmington Optimist 25-0 Saturday in an opening round District II Major League tournament game at broiling hot Naamans Field in a game mercifully called after four innings.

"The kids kept focused," said Newark Manager Tom Eleuterio, who in the mid-90 degree heat went to his bench freely after the first inning. "We had the chance to use several players and that worked out really well. I was happy we stayed in the game (mentally)."

The All-Stars jumped on Wilmington starter John Paul Gamiewski in the top of the first for 12 runs off nine hits, numerous wild pitches and a balk. Micah German smacked a 2-run homer to center field and RBI-singles by Rob Standarowski, Mark Dickerson, Steven Hauer and John Williams gave Newark a comfortable lead.

Williams finished the inning with a base hit and a double for three RBIs. Standarowski had a pair of singles and scored twice. Dickerson and Hauer each scored two runs and Jon Gagliardino opened the inning with a double and scored.

Every player in the starting lineup got a hit and scored as Sean Heller, Sean Callahan and Brian Glass all reached base on walks or errors and scored. In the game Heller reached base five times, had three base hits, scored three runs and knocked in two RBIs and German finished with three hits and five RBIs.

Newark starter Standarowski allowed a lead-off single and then struck out the side. He replaced by Ken Malin in the second, who let up one hit in three innings, fanned four and didn't let a runner past first base.

"We did hit well and Wilmington was a little frustrated after the first inning," said Eleuterio. "I think our No. 1 pitcher overpowered them. But we have to keep everything in perspective and take one game at a time."

Newark American slugged 19 hits and took advantage of 10 wild pitches, two passed balls, a host of miscues in the outfield and by the third inning most of the starters had retired to the relative coolness of the dugout.

"The (starters) didn't want to come out," said Eleuterio. "They're gamers."

Newark scored twice in the second on German and Hauer's RBIs and then put 12 batters to the plate in the third and scored eight times to take a 22-0 lead as Mike Sharp had an RBI and Jesse Crossan knocked in two runs with a base.

Newark ended with three runs in the fourth on three hits as Malin, John Brennan, and Heller knocked in runs.

Canal Senior girls nip Stanton-Newport

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

It wasn't a normal District II debut for the Canal Senior League (13-15 years old) All-Star team; but it still was a victory.

After having grown accustomed to romping through early rounds, Canal beat back an inspired and experienced Stanton-Newport team 5-3 Wednesday night in both teams' All-Star opener at the Newark American Little League complex.

Adrienne Maloney, one of just three 15-year olds in the Canal starting lineup, pitched a four-hitter and made up for a shaky defense, which committed six errors.

"We just didn't play Canal ball tonight," Maloney said. "Give Stanton-Newport credit. They hit the ball and played well."

Canal jumped out of the gates early, scoring three times in the top of the first inning.

Kirstin Nau and Jamie Sassaman led the game off by reaching on consecutive walks. Jodi Mandichak followed with a two-run triple to the centerfield wall. Mandichak, herself, scored on Lisa Delcollo's ground ball.

Stanton-Newport, featuring 11 15-year olds on its 14-player roster, answered in the bottom of the first with two runs its own as Jenny Wilson singled home Tina Collins and then scored herself on an error.

The winners stretched the lead in the fourth inning as Maloney beat out an infield single and moved to second on a bunt-single by Delcollo. Felicia Freimuth then sacrificed both runners to second and third with a good bunt.

Brenda Marley's sacrifice fly to left plated Maloney and Delcollo came home on a wild pitch.

Stanton-Newport scored another unearned run in the sixth inning to close the deficit, but Maloney was able to close the game out.

"Adrienne did a good job for us," said Canal Manager Ralph Sassaman. "She hung in there and got us through."

"The first game is always tough; it was a wake-up call."

CORRECTION

John Williams - a member of the Newark American Little League's Major Division Orioles - belted a grand slam in the series-opening 16-6 win over the Braves.

Williams was misidentified in a story in last week's edition.

center. Cooper scored after back-to-back walks to Tim High and John Hall that loaded the bases, but Brandywine starter Matt Johnson fanned Newark's batter to end the inning.

Johnson pitched five innings, gave up four hits and one run and again pitched out of a bases-loaded situation in the second with two outs by popping up the final hitter. He was replaced in the sixth by John Manis and Ryan Brazell pitched the seventh.

Brandywine tied the game 1-1 in the second after David Glazier drew a two-out walk and scored on a single and an outfield error after the relay throw was late.

Major damage occurred in the third. Brandywine scored four runs on three hits, an overthrow to first, a wild pickoff attempt at second and an outfield error to take the 5-1 lead.

Newark, which left 11 men on base, had a chance to pull closer in the fifth with runners on second and third with two down, but a diving play by the right fielder quelled the rally. In the sixth, Newark had men on first and second with two out, but again flied out to end the threat.

"I think we could turn it around," Hall said. "We'll practice and we'll come out swinging in our next game. We'd like another shot at these guys."

Jason Bedford, Cooper, Thomas, Kevin Murphy and George Griebel all had hits for Newark. Griebel started and pitched six innings with five strikeouts before being relieved by High, who retired the side.

All-Star action hot and heavy

won the district last year as 12-year-olds in terrific games against Canal.

Newark American and Newark National are both in the loser's bracket as well.

The senior baseball division (14-15 year olds) sees all three teams in the loser's bracket.

On the softball side, the Canal major girls advanced to the winner's bracket final with a 23-0 win over New Castle in their opener and the seniors did the same with a 5-3 win over Stanton-Newport.

We'll have more run-throughs and mentally we'll have to be in a positive attitude. We don't know who'll be there, but we're trying to place at least in the top 10 well behind her. Deboda also added two hits and two runs-batted-in to help her own cause.

Club member Tara Lipinski, 12, a Houston native, also qualified for the World Junior Championships by winning the ladies figure skating event.

Offensively, Canal broke open a close 2-0 game with a 12-run third inning. The winners scored three more times in the fourth and six more in the fifth to provide the final margin.

Shortstop Erica Richardson helped lead the Canal charge with three hits and five runs scored. Right-fielder Melissa Perez added three hits (including a three-run triple), four runs-batted-in and four runs scored.

Others contributing to Canal's offensive attack were Stacey Watson (four runs scored, RBI, single), Stephanie Rice (three runs scored, three RBI, single, double), Jessica Marley (three hits, three RBI, run scored), Annie Nefosky (single, run scored), Megan Richardson (run scored), Kelly Stanwell (run scored, RBI) and Lisa Scanlon (run scored).

"We really hit the ball well," Nefosky said. "I have to give a lot of credit to my assistant coach Charlie Marioni. He has really helped the girls with their hitting and that showed during the game."

Nefosky was also quick to point out that the win was only one and it doesn't guarantee any further success in the tournament.

"We just have to keep working and playing as a team," he said. "This is a team that needs all 14 of its players. Everyone is capable of playing; and we'll need everyone."

SENIOR CITIZEN SERVICE DIRECTORY*KEEPING YOUR COOL IN THE HEAT

KEEP COOL. Spend as much time as you can in cooler surroundings, such as a cooler room in your home, an air conditioned shopping mall, senior center, public library or movie.
AIR CONDITIONING can provide lifesaving relief from heat stress, especially if you have a medical condition like heart disease.
COOLING WITH FANS. Fans can draw cool air into your home at night or help to provide good indoor air circulation during the day. Air movement reduces heat stress by helping to remove extra body heat. (When it is extremely hot, a fan may cause you to gain body heat by blowing very hot air over your body.)
BATHS AND SHOWERS. Cool baths or showers (with water temperature around 75°F) provide amazing relief from the heat. Cool water removes extra body heat 25 times faster than cool air.
CLOTHING. Wear as little as possible when you are at home. Lightweight, light colored, loose fitting clothing is more comfortable in hot weather. Cotton is very comfortable. Wear a hat or use a parasol or umbrella to protect your head and neck when you are outdoors.

How To Save Money On Your Family's Clothing
- Buy color-coordinated clothing which can be mixed and matched.
- Buy all-season styles, fabrics and colors when possible.
- Buy clothes of a design that will stay in style.
- Look for quality fabric and good construction in clothing.
- Choose clothes with simple trim that is of good quality and requires the same care as the rest of garment.
- Before buying a garment, check fabric labels and care instructions. Is it wash-and-wear? Can it be dried in the dryer? Avoid clothing that requires special care such as dry cleaning.
- Read and follow care instructions to make clothes last longer.
- Dress up or modify an outfit you already own. Accessories can add a new look to last year's wardrobe for a minimal cost.
- Store clothes properly to protect from sun, moths, mildew and stretching.
