Dear Sega Gamers and Friends:

Are you ready for the next level? We are!

Sega once again swings into full-tilt action in 1994, producing dynamite software and entertaining new products as we debut a whole new generation of ground-breaking technology. Genesis 32X's emergence in fall of this year ushers the arcade experience into the home.

This amazing hardware upgrade will give Genesis owners "2 x 32-Bit" arcade-quality game experiences—from their existing 16-Bit Genesis™ system. When attached to the Sega Genesis or Sega CD™, the Genesis 32X™ produces the most exciting game play found anywhere—at a phenomenal price. While all the 16-Bit Genesis games in each game player's home library still operate at peak performance levels, the new 32X cartridge and CD software transports players to a level of game playing experiences only possible in arcades, or on far more expensive hardware platforms.

Leading the 16-Bit marketplace, Genesis still sets the standard for compelling game play. Original character-driven titles and mega hits such as Sonic 3, Dynamite Headdy, Art of Fighting, Shining Force 2, Taz in Escape from Mars, Streets of Rage III, World Heroes, and World Championship Soccer 2 only hint at the full line of fun. Sports fans step into the batter's box in World Series Baseball, or do their best tomahawk jam in NBA Action '94, Game Gear, the leading color portable game system, will move players to new levels of entertainment, and is destined for another great year in 1994. Look for some of the hottest games to be introduced such as Aladdin, GP Rider, NBA Action, Shining Force: The Sword of Hayja, Dynamite Headdy, Sonic Spinball, and Taz in Escape from Mars. These games are sure to keep you revved up for action.

Sega CD leads the market with incredibly realistic game play, including our new TruVideo™ game with live-action video—Tomcat Alley—the ultimate aerial F-14 dogfight. Debuting on Sega CD will be Formula One World Championship for hang-on-to-your-seat driving action. And our wonderful family of third party publishers have a lineup of hit games in 1994 that are even stronger than last year's.

Sega's diversity in premier arcade technology, leadership in the video game industry, and commitment to family entertainment is now on display at Walt Disney World in a spectacular new exhibit area called "Innoventions" at Epcot. Our newest games and future technologies are featured in more than 100 interactive game play units, along with our most popular state-of-the-art arcade machines—Virtua Formula, Virtua Fighter, and the riveting three-axis ride simulating machines—AS-1. The sights, sounds, and sensations of this Sega showplace turns the company's slogan into an experience—Welcome to The Next Level!

We are also proud of the work of the Sega Youth Education and Health Foundation where we have given $5 million to worthwhile organizations to benefit children's health and education nationwide. Sega has rocketed to the top in 1993 and we're not stopping. We will push the envelope even further by developing and creating the best systems, games, and arcade machines ever.

Sincerely,

Thomas J. Kalinske

WELCOME TO THE NEXT LEVEL 1994 AND BEYOND...

Dynamite Headdy brings new thrills to the very common action genre.

Mortal Kombat II offers martial arts combat like you've never seen before!

Sonic, Tails, and Knuckles are the stars of Triple Trouble for the Game Gear.

THE NEXT LEVEL BEGINS...

Welcome back for the summer 1994 edition of Sega Force, the one-stop source for all the latest and greatest info on what's new in the world of the Genesis, Sega CD, and Game Gear. So if you live, sleep, and breathe nothing but Sega, this book should keep you quite happy until those games hit the store shelves. Happy shopping!

WHAT IS THE X-FACTOR?

Sega is preparing to bring gamers beyond the next level and into the stratosphere. With the upcoming release of the Sega 32X, Sega hopes to conquer a relatively unexplored part of the market. Just what does the 32X promise for gamers? Well for starters, by combining the 32X with the Genesis and Sega CD, Sega is offering players a huge step up in performance without much more cost involved. Sound interesting? It certainly is. The Sega 32X also offers better features for older Sega CD titles that had TruVideo sequences by offering crisper and clearer video, not the pixelized stuff that the Sega CD has.

A few of the important features include faster processing speed, texture-mapped polygon graphics, changing 3-D perspectives, high-resolution video on Sega CD, and over 32,000 colors. There will be six games available at the system's launch and 10 more coming soon.

Those who've been waiting for a new Sega system need wait no longer. The 32X will be available in the fall of 1994 at a price that's very competitive. The X-Factor means power!

Clockwork Knight for the Saturn blends smooth animation with great graphics.

Ecco the Dolphin returns to the Genesis in search of his missing pod, again.

LIFE ON THE SIXTH PLANET

The much-anticipated Saturn is still under development in Japan. This powerful hardware boasts impressive specifications like two Hitachi 32-Bit RISC chips for the main CPU. Well-suited for a life of handling 3-D computations, these chips offer the power to rival the arcade scene! There are tons of cool softs being developed for this system and it only looks like a matter of time before the Saturn proves to be a very powerful celestial body in this expanding solar system of gaming.

TAKING GAMES FOR A SPIN...

After all the hoopla over Sega's Saturn and 32X dies down, under the dust will lie the Sega CD. This system has really brought new life back to the Genesis with its large variety of software that's been flooding the market these days. Good, quality games like Jurassic Park, Silpheed, and Sonic CD really put the name of the Sega CD out on the market. In the coming months there will be even more games for the Sega CD trying to break down the floodgates. Great names from Sega include The Adventures of Batman & Robin, Eternal Champions, Mighty Morphin Power Rangers, Ecco is now coming to the Genesis 32X with a whole new mission to solve.

and a very unique game called Wirehead. From third-party companies, be sure to watch for games like SimCity 2000 from Imagineer, Snatcher from Konami, Myst from Sunsoft, and many others. The Sega CD isn't out of the video game race yet.

THE GENESIS RAGES ON

Of course, one could never leave out the Genesis when it comes to serious gaming fun and value. The lower priced, restyled model is now joined this year by Sega's own Sega Club version. Splashed with blue and red colors with a creatity/drawing program packed in, this system will make a great gift for the aspiring, young artist. As for the games, we could spend all day talking about all the great, new games we'll be seeing in the coming months. Why, Sega alone is cranking out some pretty nice games like Ecco: Tides of Time, Disney's Bonkers, Jurassic Park: Rampage, and the long-awaited Phantasy Star IV.

TAKE THE PORTABLE WAY OUT

Last, but certainly not least, is Sega's own color portable system, the Game Gear. With a new colored case and a sports cart pack-in, the Game Gear Sports Pack is a great gift for the sports fan on the go. Many of the latest games for the Game Gear are downsized versions of the 16-Bit games, but for you true gamers who never leave home without your games, the Game Gear is the only way to really satisfy your needs.

Heart of the Alien for the Sega CD takes over where the first mission left off.

Genesis

Sega's biggest seller of all time continues to impress consumers with its wide variety of quality software and long-term commitment to the market. What else could we be talking about but the Sega Genesis? This system introduced the world to 16-Bit gaming and has never let its guard down. Top-notch software continues to roll in and keep this viable system in the top rankings. Sega has continued this tradition with upcoming games like Sonic & Knuckles, Ecco: Tides of Time, and Dynamite Headdy. Sega has even started a new lineup just for kids called Sega Club. This unique branch of software is geared toward a younger audience with many creative drawings and simpler action titles. It really is a market which Sega tapped into with great success. Sega's past has been quite good and the future looks even better!

The J-Cart from Codemasters

The latest creation from Codemasters, those wizards in England (the creators of the insanely popular Game Genie), is called the J-Cart. Basically, it's a Genesis cartridge with two additional joystick ports built into the cartridge casing. This eliminates the need for an after-market four-player adapter, while also adding a new dimension of skill and challenge to Codemasters' sports games. There are a total of six sports games under the Sportsmaster title being developed by Codemasters with this J-Cart technology: tennis, rugby, soccer, U.S. football, ice hockey, and basketball. Although no price has been set, the idea behind this breed of cartridge and multi-adapter is quite fascinating and should prove very popular for every sports fan.

Sega CD

The Sega CD has really shaped into a winning system for 1994 and beyond. This system has finally been blessed with the quality software that it needed, not only from Sega, but from all the great third-party companies developing games for it. The trend in games for the Sega CD seems to be computer port-overs, but that's not a bad thing. Some of the most exciting games come from the PC. Of course, there are also good, original titles that will keep Sega CD owners busy throughout the coming months. On the following pages you'll see previews for the majority of the games that are slated for release before the end of the year, mostly around Christmas.

The Sega CD has really come a long way since its introduction a few years back and it looks as if it's going to stay for quite some time.
